Defenses Are Deep

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 3.—Australian troops storming the Italian fortress of Bardia, Libya, already have taken more than 5,000 prisoners, a quarter of the garrison, the British command reported tonight in a special communique.

The communique said merely:

"Operations are developing successfully at Bardia. So far, more than 5,000 prisoners have been captured."

Earlier dispatches from the battle zone declared that the sudden attack, led by the fight-hungry Australians, had broken through the half-ring of forts protecting the Italian port and that the assault was continuing, supported by tanks.

The thrust was preceded and supported by the heaviest aerial bombardment yet conducted in the African war, authoritative sources reported.

All last night and this morning, from dusk until dawn, the Royal Air Force planes crossed and recrossed the perimeter of Bardia, dropping tons of explosives and incendiaries on the beleaguered Italians and starting huge fires all over the town, it was reported.

Not a Plane Lost

Not a single plane was lost in this extensive operation, R. A. F. headquarters said.

The British command conservatively indicated that if things continued to go well the fortress would be taken in "a few days."

The Italians were asserted to have the advantage in a number of well-built blockhouses, concealed machinegun nests and barbed-wire entanglements, the whole network of defenses being backed by heavy artillery, including at least one big-caliber naval gun mounted ashore.

Attack at Dawn

The Australians launched the assault at dawn upon a southwest segment of the Bardia semicircular defenses and by noon it was said a fairly deep penetration already had been made.

An attack on these positions apparently had been considered unlikely by the Italians whose guns had been laid to point the opposite way.

Some 20,000 Italian troops have been penned up in Bardia for two Troops Throw Up Barricades as Protest to Berlin Is Ordered

By Dan Campbell
United Press Staff Writer

Dublin, Jan. 3.—Troops of neutral Eire tonight manned highway barricades thrown up against any invasion as the government sent an "energetic protest" to Germany whose bombing planes are alleged to have laid siege to Irish towns and countryside for two nights.

Fears of a possible German invasion striking at the "back door to the British Isles" mounted after 36 hours of bombings culminating early today when a huge bomb smashed into a Dublin residential area, injured a number of persons and left 40 families homeless.

In all, 72 bombs and two magnetic sea mines were said to have been dropped on Eire territory, killing two girls and a woman and injuring nearly 25 persons.

Just Misses Barracks

The huge bomb which smashed into the Donore Avenue area of South Dublin today, injuring 20 civilians, fell only 150 feet from the Irish army's big Griffith barracks.

The government announced that examination of the bombs dropped at a dozen or more points, mostly around Dublin, revealed a number of them to be of German origin.

The bombs included incendiaries, high explosives, land mines and magnetic sea mines sown by raiding planes along the coast facing England, it was said.

"The charge d'affaires at Berlin has been instructed to make an energetic protest to the German government against this violation of Irish territory by German aircraft and the loss of life and destruction of property which took place as a result of the bomb explosions and fire," the government statement said.

Claim Full Reparation

"He further is instructed to claim full reparation and to insist upon effective steps being taken to avoid the recurrence of such happenings. Investigation into the origin of bombs dropped in other places is proceeding."

The only bombing during today was at 4 a. m., when a lone raider swept over south Dublin and dropped a huge bomb, reported to have been a 6-foot-long land mine, upon a thickly populated residential area of the Irish capital.

A large synagogue and two houses were demolished and about 40 houses within a two-block area were left uninhabitable.

Twelve persons, all wounded by bomb fragments, were taken to hospitals and 10 or 12 others were injured to lesser extent.

Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock three bombs had dropped near Ballymurrin in County Wexford, southwest of Dublin.

The government information bureau said that today a civilian passenger plane arriving in Dublin from England was forced off its course by bad weather.

"Warning shots were fired by antiaircraft guns and the plane returned to its course and landed safely at Dublin airport," it was stated.

The incident led to reports that more bombs had fallen on Ireland in the day.

Dies Would Bar Federal Jobs to Aliens

Tells House Nazis Are Getting Funds Here Through Russia

The Dies Committee called yesterday for legislation providing that only American citizens may be employes or officials of the Federal Government.

It likewise proposed that employment in defense industries and Government service be denied to any person "who has been or is now" active in any political organization found to be under the control or guidance of a foreign government.

Chairman Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, last night declared that Soviet Russia recently deposited $15,000,000 to the credit of Nazi Germany in one New York bank within a period of 60 days.

Sees U. S. Outwitted

Dies said his committee has voluminous records showing that the "totalitarian powers in the past few years have received more financial and material aid from the United States than has England," and that his committee, if extended by Congress, will issue a report furnishing the "exact figures."

"Germany has completely outwitted the United States, in deriving large financial assistance from this country, both through Russia, acting as a 'front,' and through indirect, devious and clever methods," Dies said soon after his committee submitted its report.

Not only have there been "frequent and mysterious" transfers of large sums of money from a Soviet Union to a German Reichsbank account in a New York bank, but similar transactions in "other banks in other large American cities," and

Navy May Man Trade Ships in War

Plan Revealed as Antiwar Marchers Here Demand Union Pay in Service

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The United States Navy has plans to take over the entire American Merchant Marine in time of emergency or war, supplanting civilian seamen and radio operators with bluejackets.

The reason is the Navy's deep concern over the strong hold a Communist minority has gained on a large part of the Merchant Marine personnel.

The Washington Post learned of this yesterday as an antiwar delegation "marched" on Washington, its leaders advocating a "democratically administered" Army and Navy, with union pay and union hours.

Among the organizations represented in the march were the National Maritime Union and the American Communications Association, one made up of seamen and the other of radio operators. Both are left-wing C. I. O. unions and both have been accused of being dominated by Communist minorities.

Only 339 Enrolled

Four years ago, the Navy announced that it would seek to enroll 30,000 seamen in a Merchant Marine Naval Reserve.

A check-up yesterday showed that actually only 339 had been enrolled. There are something like 50,000 seamen in the American merchant service.

The National Maritime Union (C. I. O.) is openly urging its members to stay out of the Merchant Marine Naval Reserve until the Navy agrees to pay union wages and to pay for overtime.

Otherwise, said an editorial in last week's issue of the Pilot, official voice of the N. M. U., unionized merchant seamen ought not to change their status "as free men for the sake of wearing a monkey jacket."

50 in Peace March

Frederick N. Myers, field organizer for the National Maritime Union, was the first to break into print with a call for a "gigantic people's march" on Washington to protest aid to Britain and President Roosevelt's "drive to war."

Dr. Walter Scott Neff, of the American Peace Mobilization, who headed the 50 marchers arriving here last night, said that, while Myers was supporting the current movement here, he was really talking about a much greater march that is to take place about February 1, when between 800 and 1,000 will come here.

Myers, known on the New York waterfront as "Blacky," was graduated in 1937 from the "Red Annapolis," a school conducted by the Communist Party near Beacon, N. Y., for the training of sailors to spread Stalinist doctrine in the American Merchant Marine.

Myers has done a good job since he left that school to work toward the party's goal—"A Communist unit on every American ship." Rank and file members of the National Maritime Union have tried to oust

U. S. to Build 200 Ships by Mass Means

Merchantmen to Be Constructed on Basis Of Assembly Line; Cost $300,000,000

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

An emergency program calling for construction in new American shipyards of 200 cargo vessels costing $300,000,000 to $350,000,000 was announced yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The ships will be built on an assembly-line basis, of the simplest construction, and some of them may be ready in a year, under a rush program that could make this country the "great shipyard" as well as "the great arsenal" of democracy.

President Roosevelt turned aside as "iffy" all questions asking whether the 200-ship program would result in release of existing vessels to the hard-pressed British.

Expects Need to Be Dire

He began his announcement of the plan at a press conference by saying, however, it was perfectly obvious that so much tonnage was going to the bottom that probably at the end of the war there would be dire need of more vessels.

Elsewhere in the Capital shipping experts speculated that the 200 ships might be used to replace any U. S. or foreign vessels that are requisitioned and given to Great Britain under plans now in the study stage.

The order for 200 more ships is the biggest job that has been handed to the shipbuilding industry since World War days when anything that would float was rushed into the water in a feverish attempt to maintain the "bridge of ships" to Europe.

$36,000,000 Allotted

President Roosevelt revealed he has already started action on the program for construction of the yards from his special discretionary fund.

The vessels will be about 7,500 tons each, aggregating 1,500,000 tons.

Speed will be the major factor in building the vessels, taking precedence over desirable features of design.

The President said that the ships would be of one standardized type and would resemble oblong tanks more than craft in whose lines a lover of ships, like himself, would take pride.

Paris Prefabricated

The yards will operate insofar as possible as assembly plants putting together parts prefabricated elsewhere.

The President declined to reveal where the new yards would be located or when actual construction of ships would start. He left that to the Maritime Commission, which will have full charge of the new program.

The 200-ship program will be over and above the current Maritime Commission shipbuilding schedule that calls for 50 ships a year for ten years. The commission's long-range program began in 1938.

The 200 ships, while they will not include all the refinements that the Maritime Commission normally installs on its vessels, yet will not be "temporary" jobs, the commission

Glass Suggests U. S. Send Navy 'To Shoot Hell Out of the Axis'

Virginia Senator Hopes America Acts Soon Enough

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

Senator Carter Glass yesterday told The Post that the United States Navy should be sent to Europe to "shoot the hell out of the Axis powers."

Spending a quiet birthday eve in his Mayflower Hotel apartment, the Virginia Senator observed that "things could be worse for us and will be worse unless we help Great Britain."

"I do not think that what we have done was done promptly enough," he said, adding that he would not comment on where the blame might be put.

Hopes U. S. Acts in Time

He said he hoped this Nation would not have to send its Army abroad, but "I'm in favor of sending the Navy and shooting the devil out of the Axis powers."

Asked when this should be done, the Senator raised his voice and said, "to put it more emphatically, to shoot the hell out of the Axis powers."

He said he favored sending anything in order to beat the Axis powers. It was his hope that the United States would act in time to save England.

An outspoken critic of much the Administration has done, Senator Glass yesterday was as outspoken in praise of the President's speech of December 29 in which the Axis nations were told that this country would not be intimidated from aid to England by any threats.

SENATOR AND MRS. GLASS

Message Monday On State of Union Expected to Ask Unlimited Authority

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

In steel-girded chambers already humming like the factory the President seeks to make of America, an old Congress died yesterday and a new one was born.

The Seventy-seventh Congress, stemming at noon from the Seventy-sixth, breezed busily through opening formalities, then recessed and waited.

It awaited the President's message on the state of the Union on Monday—his expected request for unlimited authority to lend or lease war materials to Great Britain.

Details of his recommendations were outlined to leaders at a White House conference preceding the session, hewing to the line of his Sunday night defense speech.

The plan was to call for a broad authorization to permit sending war supplies abroad, financed out of Congressional appropriations, said Majority Leader Barkley.

General Authorization Sought

Barkley said the authorization sought would be general in character, would probably cover things already built and already appropriated for as well as new appropriations.

There would be no limit on the amount, and no mention of Great Britain by name, merely Congressional authorization of funds for the manufacture and purchase of goods which could be lent or leased to a belligerent. There would be provision as well for return of the goods or an equivalent in value.

But there was no hint of this in the routine opening formalities, in the swearing in of Senators and House members, in the election of House officers and the bustle of a Congress taking over.

In place of the usually gay session end and session opening festivities, a solemn tone pervaded proceedings. In the House, Speaker Rayburn struck the theme in a speech thanking members who had just reelected him.

Democracy on Defensive

"Democracy today throughout the length and breadth of the earth is on the defensive," said Rayburn.

"It is going to take all of the patriotism, all of the fine common sense of every inhabitant of every democracy on the face of this earth in the months that lie ahead of us, to see that democracy survives and that tyranny does not take its place."

The Speaker called on his own party to support the Administration program "with as much unanimity as possible." On matters of safety and security and defense of America, he said he expected "practical unanimity, regardless of party."

As the House and Senate opened, the great steel braces thrown up during the recent recess as support for weakened roofs cast unaccustomed shadows. With grim humor, members likened the effect to a bomb shelter or a workshop.

In his opening prayer, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, House chaplain, had prayed for the survival of democracy, saying: "Hold our Republic as the ultimate hope of man."

Vote on Party Lines

In the reelection of Speaker, the House divided strictly along party lines, with 247 voting for Rayburn and 159 for Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, nominated for the post at an earlier Republican conference. The Progressive vote divided, with 2 votes for Representative Hull, of Wisconsin, and 1 vote for Repre-

The Gallup Poll

Public Blames Plane Lag On New Deal

This is the second of a series of articles by the Gallup Poll dealing with public opinion on the defense issue.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director of American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 3.—American voters are no more satisfied with the present rate of defense production than defense leaders are themselves.

In fact, a Nation-wide survey by the Institute finds that nearly six persons in every ten of the country's 50,000,000 voters—or approximately 30,000,000—think warplane production today is far behind what it should be, and the largest number place the chief blame for this situation on the Roosevelt Administration.

The Institute is conducting an intensive survey of public sentiment on all important aspects of the defense program. Results are being published in a series of articles, of which today's is the second. Friday's report showed that a great majority of American voters believe the future safety of the country de-

Roosevelt Lifts 8-Hour Law At New Bases

Denies Like Action Is Foreshadowed On Projects in U. S.

President Roosevelt, citing an "extraordinary emergency," yesterday suspended the eight-hour day for work on the offshore base sites leased from Great Britain, but denied this foreshadowed like action at home.

The President gave as reasons for relaxing hours restrictions the isolation of the defense base sites from sources of labor supply in the United States, the emergency of the work, and the desirability of conforming with local labor practices.

Officials expected that workers on the Caribbean and Atlantic bases would be worked ten hours a day and would be paid time and one-half for work in excess of eight hours.

Asked at a press conference about statements by the National Association of Manufacturers urging that the Government be ready to adjust contracts so that plants could work around the clock and pay time and one-half or double time for overtime work, he replied by saying the inquiry was too general and sounded like a political question. He would require something more specific, he added, before he could answer.

She'll Make Coat Do

Mrs. Roosevelt Picks Three Gowns for Inauguration Day

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

New York, Jan. 3.—For the ceremonies attending her husband's third inauguration as President, on January 20, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is having three new dresses made but she will wear the same fur coat she wore four years ago.

"I hope this coat will serve as long as we are in Washington," she said today following final fitting of the gowns.

For the inauguration ceremony, Mrs. Roosevelt will wear under the fur coat a wool dress of a new vermilion hue, described as "Americana red." She will wear a small red hat of the same material topped with two white feather decorations.

The red gown was made on severely plain lines with an all-over tuck top, long sleeves and slightly padded shoulders. Crystal bead decorations adorned throat and front.

The afternoon dress which Mrs. Roosevelt will wear when she receives inaugural guests of the White House was of crepe in "White House blue," a pastel shade between green and blue. The wide revers, sleeves and two buttons were decorated with Persian embroidery in coral seed pearls and gold, a reflection of the recent exhibition of Persian art. The gown has a slight train, a 1941 fashion innovation credited to American designers.

For her satin evening gown, Mrs. Roosevelt selected a shade known as "rose white," just a suggestion of rose relieving the severity of pure white. The gown has "fluid shoulders" and short petal sleeves. The bodice has a sweetheart neckline, front and back. The skirt falls in a cowl drape in the front, and in the back lengthens into a yard-long train. From the shoulders at the back two long columns of the satin fall to the floor, spreading out in a train. The neckline and sleeves are decorated in seed pearls, purposely kept inconspicuous, as Mrs. Roosevelt wishes to wear her diamond necklace, the gift of her godmother, Mrs. Henry Parish, at the time of the first inauguration.

For His Close Friend

Hopkins Is Going to London On Secret Roosevelt Mission

Harry L. Hopkins, close personal friend and adviser to President Roosevelt, prepared last night to leave for London on a personal and secret mission for the Chief Executive.

HOPKINS

Making the announcement at a press conference yesterday, the President said Hopkins would leave very soon and would stay in England perhaps two weeks. He will have no title, no official status or authority, said the President.

Though the President did not define the mission, it was generally believed in informed quarters that Hopkins would reveal to the British government the President's innermost plans for aid to Britain.

There was also speculation that Hopkins might play some part in British negotiations to secure rights to military bases in Eire.

The President said that he expected next week to appoint an Ambassador to Great Britain—not Hopkins—to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy, who has submitted his resignation.

Pending that appointment, he said, Hopkins would maintain personal contact for him with leaders of the British government.

The Government will pay Hopkins' expenses and give him a per diem allowance, but no salary, the President said.

The trip to England may turn out to be the most important of the many jobs that Hopkins has performed for the President.

Hopkins, one of the original group of so-called New Deal "brain-trusters" and WPA head for several years, has had no official position since he resigned as Secretary of Commerce last summer.

McCarran Steps Aside

Reynolds to Be D.C.'s 'Mayor;' Outlines Plan for Model Capital

By James D. Secrest

An extensive program of municipal improvements, with lower real estate taxes and a race track to add to the city's revenue, was outlined by Senator Robert R. Reynolds, (Democrat), of North Carolina, yesterday after he was assured the chairmanship of the Senate District Committee.

Senator Reynolds' election to the post of "mayor" next week was made possible by the withdrawal of Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, from the race. McCarran said he would not consider the chairmanship, even though he were to lose the Judiciary Committee contest, but that he would remain an active member of the committee.

Promising a lively and vigorous interest in District affairs, Senator Reynolds said his aim is to make Washington the model capital of the world.

His program includes:

A stadium capable of seating 150,000, to be constructed by the Federal Government.

An auditorium capable of holding the largest conventions.

Lower real estate taxes and an increased Federal payment to the District.

A hearing on suffrage.

Senator Reynolds, who has visited the principal capitals of the world, is determined to make Washington an outstanding example of municipal efficiency. He referred frequently yesterday to stadia, recreation centers and underground garages that he saw on a recent

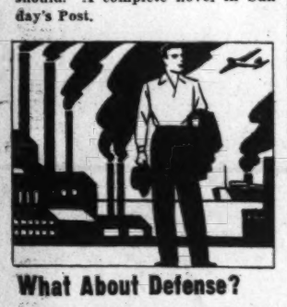
The Singing Heart

An English doctor returns from a vacation in France with an orphaned girl whom he plans to make into a great singer. If you were his fiancee would you be jealous? She was! If you were his family would you be unsympathetic? They were! So the doctor's plans were ruined and the girl ran away. After joining a circus she had to run away a second time, and things look black for the doctor and for Cupid. But "The Singing Heart" ends as all good love stories should. A complete novel in Sunday's Post.



What About Defense?

How would you answer these questions that Gallup interviewers have been asking the American public?

1. Should factories making war materials hire enough men to work 24 hours a day on three shifts?

2. If it would help speed up the defense program, would you be willing to work more hours per week at your present rate of pay per hour?

3. Should the Government take over factories which refuse to make defense materials at reasonable prices?

4. Should employes on defense projects have the right to protest if they believe they are underpaid?

5. Should they have the right to strike?

Tally your opinions on these subjects and then look at the Gallup Poll in Sunday's Post to see whether you agree with the majority of Americans.

The Propaganda Boys

"Appeaser!" "War-monger!"

Verbal brickbats are flying through the air as eminent Americans line up into propaganda groups designed to (a) give more aid to England or (b) keep strictly out of everything pertaining to the war. Both claim to be interested only in saving America. One says the way to save America is to help England lick Hitler. The other side says to keep our money, planes and other war materials at home for our own Army and Navy.

What do you think? What do you know about the propagandists? Sunday's Post carries a special article that introduces you to these new pressure groups.

Smith Report Called Peril To U.S. Unity

Healey and Murdock Charge Majority Opposes Labor Act

While turmoil continued over the issue of revising the Wagner Labor Relations Act and reorganizing the National Labor Relations Board, the National Mediation Board reported "all is peace" in railroad and airline relations.

The NLRB dispute was kept hot as two members of the Smith committee investigating the labor board vigorously took issue with a majority report which sharply criticized the board.

Representatives Healey (Democrat of Massachusetts), and Murdock (Democrat of Utah), declared in an informal statement:

"The tone of the majority report and its failure to recognize the contribution of the board to industrial peace evidences the uncompromising opposition of the majority to the principles underlying the National Labor Relations Act."

Other members of the committee are Representatives Smith (Democrat), of Virginia; Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, and Routzohn (Republican), of Ohio.

The majority committee report recommended "complete reorganization" of the board personnel, and asserted that some of the employes were "partial and biased" in their attitude toward litigants, and had indicated "their determined objection to the American form of government."

Healey and Murdock said they held "grave fears" the majority report would sow "seeds of disunity in a time of great peril to the country." They said they would undertake soon to "show that the blanket charges against employes of the National Labor Relations Board are entirely unwarranted."

"The majority," they declared, "has completely ignored the fact that the Wagner Act, as administered by the board, has successfully carried out the principal purposes for which it was enacted . . .

"The fact is that under the Wagner Act tremendous strides have been taken in stabilizing industrial relations. The number of strikes has been steadily dropping since the validation of this law by the Supreme Court."

The National Mediation Board, composed of Chairman George A. Cook, Otto S. Beyer and David J. Lewis, reported that the Railway Labor Act "functioned perfectly again last year in that there was not an essential interruption to interstate commerce in the air or on the rails; nor was it necessary for the President to issue any proclamations creating emergency boards" under the act. They said the 125 disputes settled in the year set a record for the six years the board has been in existence.

The committee, which officially expired yesterday, asked that its work be continued by House authorization "with an adequate appropriation."

In a year-end report to the House it proposed legislation to bring about:

1. Immediate mandatory deportation of alien spies and saboteurs.
2. Mandatory deportation of aliens who advocate any basic change in the form of the Government.
3. Stipulation that all employes and officials of the Federal Government be American citizens.
4. Refusal of Federal funds to any educational institution which permits faculty members to advocate Communism, Fascism or Naziism.
5. Outlawing of every political organization shown to be under control of a foreign government.
6. Stoppage of all immigration from foreign countries which refuse to accept the return of their nationals found deportable under American law.
7. Restrictions on distribution of "totalitarian propaganda."
8. Extension to ten years of the statutory period during which citizenship papers can be revoked.
9. A tightening up of the passport laws, particularly an extension of from three to seven years of the period in which fraudulent use of such documents can be prosecuted.

Correspondents Oust Nazis

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Association of Foreign Press Correspondents has removed from its rolls two active members mentioned in the Dies Committee "White Paper" on un-American activities and has accepted the resignation as an associate member of Dr. Hans Borchers, German consul general.

The developments were disclosed yesterday in the association's official bulletin.

Fred Kreutzenstein, who had listed himself a correspondent for several Brazilian papers, was expelled. Dr. Herbert Gross, American correspondent for the Nachrichten fuer Auesenhandel, official organ of the German ministry of economics, resigned under fire.

Both had been charged formally with "unprofessional conduct."

The "White Paper" had listed Kreutzenstein as an employe of the Transocean News Service, an organization described in the document as Adolf Hitler's "agency for the dissemination of propaganda in foreign countries," and Gross was named as having been identified by a committee witness as "an agent of the German government."

Peace Mobilizers Here to Offer Varied Program to Congress

Want No War, but Urge Embargo on Japan; Unions Accused of Communist Tinge Are Represented in Delegation

At 10:55 o'clock last night the latest "march on Washington" entered the city and scattered through the rain to private homes and hotels for the night.

This was no ragged Coxey's Army tramping into the Nation's Capital on broken shoe leather. Nor did it rumble in on hard riding trucks and wheezy flivvers as did those of the early depression years.

These 50 "marchers" rode into Union Station in a special car attached to a Pennsylvania train, determined to take their fight against aid to Britain, against war in general, to Congress today. Their "march" was organized by the American Peace Mobilization; their ranks contained representatives of a dozen labor unions, of several liberal organizations, of New York Councils of the A. P. M.

The program they intend to present to members of Congress today is a startling mixture of demands for measures to insure peace and neutrality coupled with a demand for a "full embargo" on Japan.

Its Territory Wide

Sandwiched among its appeals for peace are others such as attempts "to weaken or repeal the National Labor Relations Act and the Wages and Hours Act" be defeated; that the "Smith no-strike bill and all similar attempts to limit or deny to labor the right to bargain collectively and to strike" be defeated; that "all proposals for compulsory arbitration in labor disputes" be voted down.

The American Peace Mobilization today will present to members of Congress demands that the Selective Service Act be repealed and "prior to repeal" be amended "to insure fair and nondiscriminatory administration." It will demand that "excess profits in war production industries" be taxed 100 per cent, that no "nondefense items" be "stripped from the budget" and that Congress enact the antipoll tax and antilynching bills.

This program, the A. P. M. announced, it would present today to Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana; Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia; Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, and Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas.

Senator Sheppard said last night he had agreed to receive the organization in his office. Senator Wheeler said he had an appointment with "a labor organization." Senator George said he did not expect to be in his office, but his secretary "might have made an appointment on condition I was to be in." Representative Sumners was out of the city and was not expected back today.

The half-hundred delegates who arrived last night, and who said they expected to be joined today by "about 30 more" who would come in today by automobile, were led by Dr. Walter Scott Neff, young instructor in psychology at the City College of New York. Though his peace organization has had the open support of avowedly Communist organizations and of the Communist press, Dr. Neff is no Communist. He said so.

"Our movement has no connection with the Communist Party," he assured reporters. "It has received no funds from them and has not solicited their support. Of course, if our aims in respect to a desire for peace coincide, that can't be helped; people who fight for peace are called either Communists or appeasers, anyway."

Dr. Neff said the American Peace Mobilization is not opposed to the defense program, but insists conditions in the Army should be brought "at least to the level" of wage-hour law standards. Their "principal beef" with the Navy, he said, was because of its policy of "racial segregation."

The American Peace Mobilization is largely concerned, Dr. Neff indicated, with the fear that a war would change the American mode of life.

The National Maritime Union, repeatedly accused of Communist domination, was respresented in the "march" on Washington last night. So was the American Communications Association, which has shrugged off the same charge in the past. Delegates were included from New York locals of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, the United Office and Professional Workers, the United Wholesale and Warehouse Employes, the Furriers Joint Council, the Furrier Floor Boys and Shipping Clerks, the Furniture Workers Union, and the United Retail and Wholesale Employes.

The A. P. M., Dr. Neff said last night, represents 12,000,000 people in the United States. The delegation which reached Washington last night, he added, represents 300,000 in New York.

'Don't Tell Your Girl,' Army Says of Secrets

By the Associated Press

The "Don't Tell War Secrets" placards used widely in England now have their counterparts in the United States War Department.

New posters adorn the Army's central offices here. Decorated with cartoons, they bear only the words: "Don't Tell Aunty and Uncle . . . or Cousin Jane . . . and Certainly Not Your Girl."

Coordinated 'Okie' Program Asked in House

Tolan Committee Urges Cooperation By U. S. and States

Attributing large-scale interstate migration primarily to "man-made" economic causes, a special House committee studying the plight of "Okies" and "Arkies" declared yesterday that its findings indicated an "imperative need for a coordinated Federal transient program.

Among the "man-made" causes cited was the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program.

"Almost without exception," the report said, "the experts who came before the committee agreed that the benefit payments have generally been converted into capital with which to further mechanize farming operations," thereby reducing the number of workers employed.

The Committee on Migration, headed by Representative Tolan (Democrat), of California, also advised the House in a preliminary report that many witnesses had urged closer Federal-State cooperation in the handling of destitute migrants.

The committee made no specific recommendations at this time, asking instead for three months more in which to prepare a final report which probably will contain recommendations.

The preliminary statement asserted that "migration is symptomatic of economic dislocation and, in more serious situations, of economic decline or disintegration." Mechanization of industry and agriculture, the committee added, has been responsible for many such dislocations.

In addition to these economic factors, the report said, droughts, soil erosion, plant disease and insects have driven people to the open road.

Roosevelt Plans 200 Cargo Ships said yesterday.

The emergency vessels will be capable of operation for many years, Commission officials recalled that some vessels constructed during the World War rush period are still in service.

Construction of new shipyards was decided upon, Mr. Roosevelt said, because existing yards had been expanded tremendously.

The steel industry's capacity probably is sufficient to take care of the 200 vessels, the President said. He added that he expected a report on the general steel situation from the industry in two or three days. He said he had recently ordered experts to review the situation, in the light of new demands for steel.

Meanwhile the Commerce Department estimated that war losses of merchant shipping, the background for the President's announcement, had totaled close to 6,000,000 tons by December 31, 1940.

270,000 Tons Lost a Month

British, allied and neutral losses accounted for 4,325,000 tons of this total, a study in the current issue of Foreign Commerce Weekly said.

The monthly average of British, allied and neutral shipping losses for 15 months of this war is lower than for the 15 months of unrestricted submarine warfare after February 1, 1917.

According to the Commerce Department study, the monthly average of losses for this war was 270,000 gross tons, compared with 473,000 gross tons during the World War period.

The study also showed the importance of the German, Italian and Axis-controlled vessels on which British Minister of Shipping Ronald Cross has cast a "covetous eye."

Merchant vessels owned by Germany, Italy and Axis-controlled nations aggregate more than 30 per cent of the world's tonnage, the study, prepared by Albert E. Sanderson, department transportation expert, showed.

The article pointed out, however, that over 400,000 gross tons of Axis shipping have been captured by Great Britain, while in addition Britain and her allies have gained possession of many Norwegian, Dutch, Belgian, French and Greek merchant vessels.

"Blacky." They have distributed sample election ballots with Soviet hammer and sickle emblems opposite his name. But he and other Communists have managed to hold on and even strengthen their dominance over the N. M. U.

When "Blacky" Myers issued his statement in New York December 15, he called for a "gigantic people's march on Washington from every large city in the United States to halt the Administration's drive toward war."

He said that the purpose of the march would be to defeat the Smith "antistrike" bill and the halting of war loans and sale of ships to Britain. Britain's supposed need of ships, he said, was "entirely faked," and he later accused the British of letting Italian merchant ships escape because they were insured by Lloyds.

Try to Wreck Arms Program

Between the Communist Party and other keep-out-of-war organizations there is a great difference in the matter of aims. The Communist Party not only is trying to halt aid to Britain. It is trying to wreck the whole American preparedness program—and is ready to yell "red baiter" at any one who exposes that aim.

To the Communists who talked up this march "Britain's supposed need for more ships is entirely faked;" Britain's war against Germany is an "imperialist war;" William F. Knudsen is a General Motors tycoon who is "tied up closely with German finance," and Sidney Hillman is a "Benedict Arnold" because he denounces Communists and "has the audacity to call upon the American workers to relinquish the right to strike, work longer hours and not ask for more pay."

The United States Maritime Commission and the United States Navy have long been concerned over the personnel situation in the Merchant Marine. In a notable report in 1937, the Maritime Commission frankly stated that American seamen had honest grievances, particularly in respect to bad living conditions on old merchant ships. At the same time it denounced the lack of discipline among the men.

For more than four years now, the Maritime Commission has been building up a fleet of new ships with much improved living quarters, galleys and the like. The commission also has been seeking to improve quarters on old ships.

They Wait In Vain

However, Chairman Emory S. Land and other members of the Maritime Commission have waited in vain for the overthrow of the outright Communists or Communist-controlled figures who dominate the N. M. U.

The Navy, of course, has a vital interest in the situation because the Merchant Marine is a potential auxiliary to the fleet.

Testifying before the House Merchant Marine Committee in March, 1937, Capt. W. O. Spears, then director of personnel, told of the Navy's plans with respect to the Merchant Marine.

"In case of war or national emergency," Spears said, "the Navy would require approximately 1,200 merchant vessels as naval auxiliaries.

"A minimum of 5,000 officers and 35,000 seamen would be necessary to operate these vessels . . . We naturally expect this personnel to come from the Merchant Marine."

If Capt. Spears were in the Navy Department now instead of being with the fleet, he would revise that statement. For the fact is that the Navy emphatically does not expect to get that personnel from the Merchant Marine.

Four years ago the Navy started to build up a Merchant Marine Naval Reserve. It would be something like such organizations in the British, German and Japanese navies, where virtually all merchant sailors are naval reserves. The United States Navy set a goal of 30,000 merchant sailors for its reserve.

But, as has been said, a checkup yesterday showed that, while 4,180 officers had joined up, only 339 seamen had been enrolled in the Naval Reserve—339 when the original goal was 30,000.

There are two principal reasons for this situation. First, the National Maritime Union's opposition to its members becoming reservists, and, second, the Navy's prudence about accepting those members.

Editorial Shows Attitude

How the National Maritime Union feels about the Navy Reserve was shown in an editorial carried by the Pilot last week. This said, in part:

"The time has not arrived—yet—when a merchant seaman must join up with the Naval Reserve to get a job, although a lot of people seem to think it won't be long.

"As for us, we think it will be necessary for the Navy to first try improving its living conditions before asking unionized merchant seamen to consider changing their status as free men just for the sake of wearing a monkey jacket.

"When the Naval Reserve starts paying union wages, overtime, and in general improves its standards—in fact when the Navy can offer as much or more than the Union—then—it will offer some competition.

Nazis Aren't So Strong

"But until then—no smoke."

In the World War, the Navy took over some merchant ships outright and manned them with Navy crews. Other merchant ships continue to ply the Atlantic with their regular civilian crews, reinforced by Navy gun crews.

But in the World War, the Navy had no Communist Party to worry about.

The Nazi element in the American Merchant Marine is not nearly so strong as the Communist, suspected Nazis for the most part being stewards on passenger ships.

U. S. Reveals Total of Arms Sold to British

Rifles for 3,000,000, Artillery for 1,000,000 Sent After Dunkerque

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The American Army furnished Great Britain from its "surplus" stocks last year sufficient old rifles, machine guns and light artillery for a military force of upward of 1,000,000 men.

This was disclosed by a detailed report furnished Congress yesterday by Secretary of War Stimson, listing for the first time the quantities of war materials declared "surplus" by the War Department and resold for export to Britain and other nations.

The report revealed the transfer to the United States Steel Co., presumably for resale to Britain, of 945,000 .30-caliber rifles, 83,581 machineguns and 2,245 75-millimeter field guns, besides sizeable quantities of ammunition, pistols and other arms.

This arms total, considerably larger than many observers had believed involved in the transfer, would provide enough shoulder rifles for an army of nearly 3,000,000 men, sufficient machineguns for a force of above 2,000,000, and the light field artillery for an army well above the 1,400,000-man force which the United States plans to have in service next summer.

Arms Called Serviceable

The weapons were all taken from World War stocks and while they are of types no longer in use in the Army, they are considered serviceable. Great Britain is understood to have wanted them to replace equipment lost in the retreat from Dunkerque last spring, pending manufacture of new weapons, and for arming every available man to resist invasion.

Elsewhere there were other developments on the defense front. R. J. Thomas, president of the United Authomobile Workers (C. I. O.), charged that some aircraft and automobile manufacturers are secretly opposing the union's plan for mass production of warplanes in idle auto plants. He said he feared the proposal of Walter P. Reuther, C. I. O. executive, for turning out 500 planes a day might be given only "off hand" consideration as a result.

Attacks Ford Contracts

Thomas declared that "selfish" airplane manufacturers, concerned over profits, and some sections of the automobile industry—preferring "huge profits to be made on pleasure cars"—are "secretly throwing cold water" on the plan. He said there has been "talk" that it will be given only perfunctory consideration before being "damned as impractical."

The union leader also attacked the award of defense contracts to the Ford Motor Co., held by the NLRB to have violated the Wagner Act as "an incitement to further lawbreaking" and urged adoption of the C. I. O. proposal for joint industry, management and Government councils in the defense industries.

Stinson's report showed that the military supplies sold by the War Department last year originally cost $59,853,179 and brought $22,929,438. Besides the sales to the United States Steel Co. for transfer to Britain, it was disclosed that Finland bought 200 .75-millimeter guns of the 1917 model, with carriages, limbers and sights, and 32 8-inch Howitzers and 9,200 projectiles, 11,000 fuses and 11,200 powder charges for them.

Panama Bought Rifles

Panama purchased 1,000 .30-caliber rifles with bayonets and scabbards at $12.50 apiece, the report showed, while 5,000 rifles of the same caliber were sold to Nicaragua and 10,000 to El Salvador.

Other arms sold to United States Steel for transfer to Britain included: Two hundred and twelve old 6-ton tanks at $240 each; 17,716,500 pounds of TNT, 316 3-inch Stokes mortars and 98,113 shells, 200,000 .45-caliber revolvers, 100,000 ammunition belts, 100,000 ammunition chests, 25,000 .30-caliber Browning automatic rifles with 1,000,000 20-round magazines, 1,081,000 rounds of ammunition for .38-caliber revolvers and 6,148,107 rounds of ammunition for .30-caliber machine guns, 4,000,000 rounds of .30-caliber rifle cartridges.

The War Department yesterday announced that a fourth plane assembly plant will be situated at Fort Worth, Tex., as part of a plan for building thousands of bombers with the help of the automobile industry.

The plan, formulated before the C. I. O. presented its blueprint for production of 500 planes a day, calls for assembly units at Fort Worth, Tulsa, Omaha and Kansas City to turn out 300 long-range bombers monthly from parts fabricated by the auto industry.

sentative Gehrmann, of Wisconsin. Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, voted for Martin.

The Senate actually merged the two sessions, by assembling at 11:30 for completing business looseends. Vice President Garner, back in Washington to serve out his remaining 18 days of office, was in the chair. Garner dropped the gavel opening the new session at 12:02. Thirty-three minutes later Senate was recessed until Monday.

In groups of four, new Senators were administered the oath. An interruption came when Senator-elect Langer (Republican), of North Dakota, started down the aisle, escorted by his colleague, Senator Nye. Senate Majority Leader Barkley announced receipt of petitions protesting Langer's election. He said they contained charges which if true might affect his qualifications for a seat. Barkley obtained permission for Langer to take his oath "without prejudice," pending committee investigation of charges.

In the House, conforming to custom, House Clerk South Trimble had opened the new session. After Rayburn's reelection, Representative Adolph Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, House dean, administered the oath to the Speaker. Rayburn, taking the chair, administered the House oath to the membership in a body. At 1:55 p. m. the first session of the new House was adjourned until Monday.

In the morning the Senate's leadership triumvirate—Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, had called at the White House for a discussion of Monday's message and the program ahead. Speaker Rayburn and House Majority Leader McCormack had seen the President the previous day.

of the Social Security Act. In addition to broad authorization for armament loans to England, he said some changes in the Neutrality Act may be necessary.

Barkley confirmed that the overall budget will be roughly $17,000,000,000, of which about $10,000,000,000 will be for defense and $7,000,000,000 for "ordinary" expenditures, the latter about $1,000,000,000 under last year.

The majority leader predicted the "ordinary" nondefense budget will be brought into balance, and favored enactment of about $1,000,000,000 in additional taxes to make a start toward amortizing the defense deficit.

Specific nature of the Social Security recommendations, he said, were unknown to him, but he said there is wide demand for "Federalization" of old age needy pensions, to provide a flat Federal $20 to $25 pension, without regard to the sums put up by the states.

R. A. F. Blasts Bremen Again; Fires Rage in 2 British Towns

Heavy Damage Reported in German Shipbuilding Yards

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 3.—The big German port of Bremen underwent its second straight bath of bomb and fire last night in a mighty, all-night assault by the R.A.F. in a continuation of its retaliation for the big Nazi "fire" raid on the heart of London, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

While the British bombers were adding new fires to those started the night before in Bremen, wave upon wave of German raiders in an apparent retaliation-for-retaliation attack gave the great coal port of Cardiff in South Wales its worst drubbing of the war. "Scenes reminiscent of Ypres (Belgium) in the World War," was the way the British Press Association described parts of pummelled Cardiff.

Carrying the war to the Axis by sea as well as in the air, the British announced the sinking of an Italian submarine by the British submarine Thunderbolt, formerly the Thetis which sank June 1, 1939, with the loss of 99 men, but which later was raised, reconditioned and renamed.

The Thetis, 1,090-ton submarine, went down in the Irish Sea during a trial run when, it was discovered later, a bit of enamel blocked a test cock in one of her torpedo tubes. Only four of the 103 men aboard escaped.

Recounting last night's raid on Bremen, the air ministry news service reported the R. A. F. attackers swarmed over the city from shortly before 8 o'clock until almost daybreak, setting off "enormous" new fires in shipyards and factories which produce Adolf Hitler's warships and other war materials.

Besides the destruction of these targets the British assault was described as for the purpose of "prolonging the inevitable disorganization of the city."

The raid was not on so grand a scale as Wednesday night's when 20,000 fire bombs were dropped, the air ministry said, but it lasted much longer. The R. A. F. pilots found the air clear over their targets after bucking a fierce snowstorm to get there.

"The same shipbuilding yards which were so badly damaged on Wednesday night were bombed again," the ministry's news service said.

Large Building Destroyed

"The attack had scarcely begun when the Bremen fire brigade, which could have had no rest for 24 hours, had to rush to work once more. Several bombs fell directly on a large building forming a part of the Deschiang shipbuilding yard.

"The building caught fire and burned so fiercely that within a very short time the flames had spread to other buildings nearby.

"Both in these yards and in the naval base and dockyards fires there were enormous flames and terrific explosions of bombs falling in their midst.

"Later in the night the shipbuilding works were again raided. The weather was still good in this part of Germany, though bad elsewhere, and the pilots could clearly see their bombs explode where they were aimed.

"Near the railway junction a very long factory building was alight inside and as our aircraft left the scene the fire was making steady progress. Many industrial buildings just west of the station were burning and many high explosive bombs fell close beside the station itself."

Participating pilots said the night was intensely cold and one reported that his radio receiver was frozen for some minutes.

A pilot describing the Bremen assault said:

"The docks and railway junction just stood up as though asking to be bombed. We dropped our incendiaries first. They started a belt of fire, then we turned around and put the heavy ones down."

British Capture 5,000 at Bardia

weeks, with their backs to the sea, under constant fire from British guns ashore and afloat and British bombers above.

An earlier announcement was barren of detail, because of military necessity. It said merely:

"Just after dawn this morning Australian forces supported by tanks penetrated a sector of the defenses of Bardia. Operations are continuing."

Defenses Are Deep

Military experts explained that the perimeter of pillboxes, antitank ditches and traps, supported by heavy guns near the town and sheltering Bardia for a distance of 17 miles from the coast, is some 5 to 6 miles in depth.

(From Rome a radio report said the "sacrifice garrison" in Bardia "holds fast, in spite of every British attempt to pierce its defenses." A high command communique claimed that Italian bombers off the African coast had hit a British cruiser.)

The R. A. F., hitting hard again, was reported to have started fires and explosions at Tripoli, all the way across Libya, in two heavy overnight raids January 1.

Bombs straddled a mole where five cruisers were moored; others spread flames in seaplane hangars, hit the customs jetty and damaged two big motor vessels and at least one other ship, a communique said. The flames were reported visible for 60 miles.

French Sub, Oil Tanker Torpedoed

Vichy, France, Jan. 3 (AP).—The naval ministry announced tonight that the French submarine Sfax and the oil tanker Rhone were torpedoed December 19 by a warcraft of unidentified nationality en route from Casablanca to Dakar, French West Africa.

The submarine was convoying the Rhone but it was not learned if there were other ships in the convoy.

Sixty-four members of the Sfax's crew and ten of the Rhone's were lost.

France Asked To Admit Scion Of Napoleon

LOUIS NAPOLEON

Great-Grandnephew Of Conqueror Now Is in Switzerland

By the Associated Press

Nyon, Switzerland, Jan. 3.—Bonapartists are negotiating with the Vichy government for return of Napoleon's great grand-nephew so that he may become the ruler of modern France, it was reported on good authority today.

The prince, Louis Napoleon Jerome Victor Emanual Marie, who prefers to be called the Count of Montfort, has been mentioned frequently among French royalists ever since Adolf Hitler returned the remains of "L'Aiglon," Napoleon's only son, to Paris three weeks ago.

The dark, handsome, 26-year-old prince, last of the conquering Corsican's line, now is living quietly in his villa north of here—not far from the French border. To make his return possible, the Vichy government would have to abrogate a 55-year-old law which bans any male descendant of a French ruling family from France.

The next step would be to win Hitler's blessing, which some regard as more important than that of Marshal Petain.

Montfort's one major rival for the throne of France is the Count of Paris, pretender of the old Bourbon Orleans line.

Montfort's backers say that during his nation's brief war with Germany the young prince served under the name of Louis Blanchard as an armored car driver with the Foreign Legion in Tunisia.

In deference to Swiss neutrality laws he now remains inactive politically in his expansive lakeside villa, which is surrounded by barbed wire and bristling with tank barriers. This is a part of Swiss military precautions along the frontier and not solely to guard the prince.

The author of a volume of letters compiled from Napoleonic manuscripts in the family's possession, the prince is now engaged in completing a second volume.

He speaks animatedly of everything concerning France and declares the nation's "present sorrow" is only temporary.

He is unmarried, but his engagement to various European princesses has been rumored frequently.

Martinique to Get Devil's Island Fugitive

Eight fugitives from Devil's Island, held at Miami for deportation, will be started for Martnique tomorrow, officials here understood last night. The prisoners have said they fear death before a firing squad if they are sent to the French possession.

Sometime ago an offer was made to the men whereby they could leave for any country of their choice, except a country contiguous to the United States or an adjacent island. Officials say the prisoners have not availed themselves of the offer.

Midlands, Southwest Cities Battle Huge German-Set Blazes

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), Jan. 4.—Hundreds of firemen and volunteers fought desperately early today against great German-set fires in two British towns—one in the western Midlands and the other in southwest England.

The assualts by German airmen hurling fire and explosive bombs began last night and appeared to have assumed the proportions early today of previous Nazi attacks on London's "city," Cardiff, Birmingham, Coventry and Bristol.

Four firemen and two soldiers were killed in the southwestern town in fighting the flames.

One hospital whose ground floor was badly damaged by explosive was reported to have been evacuated without casualties.

(This town possibly was Plymouth, or Cardiff, which was violently assaulted Thursday night.)

London Is Spared

London had three alarms by early today, but only an occasional plane was heard overhead accompanied by sporadic bursts of antiaircraft fire.

Hundreds of incendiaries were cast upon the west Midlands town (possibly Birmingham). Civilians were kept busy extinguishing the fires that sprang up, and scores of buildings were thus saved.

A hospital was reported badly damaged by a high explosive bomb; also reported hit were another hospital and nursing home, a municipal clinic, a convent, a movie theater, a hotel and three schools.

Other raiders were stated to be over a town in the northwest and Liverpool.

Snow still fell tonight and a northwest wind made the English Channel choppy.

The British Press Association said that sections of Cardiff, Wales, hard hit by the Nazis Thursday night, were "reminiscent of scenes at Ypres (Belgium) in the World War."

The city, an important coal port, suffered its worst pounding. The government announced that damage was "considerable" and disclosed that there had been an unstated number of casualties.

During the day, informed sources disclosed that it is planned to dynamite all save churches of the buildings damaged in the "city"—the oldest district of London—by the Nazi fire bomb raid of Sunday night.

1940 Expenditures By Treasury Set Peacetime Record

The Treasury spent about $9,800,000,000 in 1940, the largest amount in any year since the World War.

Making a calendar year analysis, officials found that the year's record-breaking peacetime total was swelled by $2,587,000,000 worth of defense—a figure likely to be more than doubled in 1941.

Receipts were $5,834,000,000 last year, leaving a deficit of $3,966,000,000. However, since receipts went up faster than spending last year, the deficit was under the $4,020,000,000 of 1939, when spending was $8,938,000,000 and receipts $4,918,000,000.

Last January the Army and Navy spent $132,000,000. This pace changed little until the new fiscal year began on July 1, when the first of the large defense appropriations passed last spring became available.

Then the spending for defense took this course:

July, $177,291,781; August, $199,251,126; September, $218,432,482; October, $283,855,963; November, $365,033,578; December, $459,878,832.

Last January WPA spent $119,000,000, and after a $134,000,000 peak in March, whittled its costs gradually until they reached $105,000,000 in November. The December figure rose to $114,000,000.

Japanese Charge U.S. Marine Began Cabaret Fight

Peiping, Jan. 3 (AP).—Japanese military officials, countering demands for an apology for the "illegal arrest" of five United States Marines December 30 in a cabaret incident, charged today that the affair was precipitated by "a celebrating Marine who grabbed a pipe from the mouth of a Japanese."

The statement denied a charge by Col. Allen H. Turnage, United States Marine commander here, that the incident was "Japanese-instigated."

The Japanese said "our highest authorities are investigating the affair."

Retains Dower Rights In Tangible Property Worth Under $10,000

By the United Press

Sarasota, Fla., Jan. 3.—Mrs. Pluma Louise Palmer, widow of Potter D'Orsay Palmer, today renounced her claims on the multimillion-dollar Chicago hotel fortune of the Palmer family.

She recorded a deed transferring to her father-in-law, Honore Palmer, her "property, title rights, interest and claims" under the wills of her husband's grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Mrs. Pluma Palmer was a waitress in a "juke joint," a glorified hamburger stand, when she married the playboy of the Palmer family. He died May 13, 1939.

One of Mrs. Pluma Palmer's attorneys at one time contended she would be entitled to $10,000,000, upon death of her husband's parents.

The playboy's widow retained dower rights in the tangible property her husband held at the time of his death. This was less than $10,000.

The recorded deed said Mrs. Pluma Palmer renounced her claims on the Palmer estate "for and in consideration of the sum of $2,389."

There was no indication whether any additional sum was involved.

Survivors Tell Of Luckner's Polite Ways

Count Gave Each One 'Complaint' Book After Sinking Their Ships

By the Associated Press

Hongkong, Jan. 3.—The story of how Count Felix Von Luckner, again at his old job of prowling the seas for Germany but as always, a gallant, gave his victims a "complaint book" to keep during their captivity was credited today to the survivors of two Norwegian ships, one seized, one sunk.

The story came to light today through a European who said he had heard it when the Norwegians passed through Hongkong, en route home via Vladivostok.

Some time ago, according to this account, the crew from a Nazi raider boarded a Norwegian ship in Sumatra waters after an exchange of fire in which nine Norwegians were killed.

Count Expresses Regrets

The raider, at first mistaken for a peaceful merchantman, turned out to be the former British liner Glengarry, 7,100 tons, seized by the Germans at Copenhagen and sent into the Pacific by a devious route.

Von Luckner, the story goes, was at the helm.

He addressed the survivors personally, saying he regretted that he had had to fire. Then he presented them with the "complaint book" and assured them it would receive his personal attention.

The raider went into the Indian Ocean with the Norwegians below decks, approached another Norwegian ship and shelled and sank her; then took the survivors aboard and headed for Kobe.

Norwegians Sent Home

There the prisoners were placed aboard the German liner Scharnhorst. Subsequently a number of the Norwegians were released and repatriated by arrangement of the British and Norwegian consulates.

The most recent exploit credited to the Glengarry, reputedly Von Luckner's 1940 Seeadler, is the sinking of the British liner Ranciltane on November 26. The ship's crew and pasengers were landed on a little island near New Guinea, and later rescued.

It was in the Seeadler, a made-over windjammer, that Von Luckner, 24 years ago, ran the Allied blockade and made his way to the south Pacific, leaving a trail of wrecked merchantment. In 1916 and 1917 he sank more than 25 Allied ships before a tidal wave drove him on the Montpelier Island reef while he was trying to land prisoners from the American schooner Manila. In another vessel he got as far as the Fiji Islands, where he was captured.

Berlin, Jan. 3 (AP).—An attempt by telephone to locate Count Von Luckner at his home in Schloss Altfrancken, near Dresden, brought today the reply of a servant:

"I am not permitted to give any information."

Public Polled On Plane Output

pends on England winning the war, but that England cannot win without American war materials.

In today's study an attempt was made not only to find out whether the public is satisfied with defense production, but also to determine how well informed the voters are about present warplane production here and in England.

The first question was:

"Do you think America's warplane production is going ahead fast enough?"

The replies were:

Yes	28%
No	58
No opinion	14

Those who replied in the negative were next asked:

"Whose fault do you think it is?"

The leading factors mentioned, in order of frequency, were as follows

1. Roosevelt administration
2. Labor and labor unions
3. Industry and business
4. Congress and politicians
5. Government red tape

That the majority with opinions are not satisfied with present production is especially interesting in the light of another fact revealed in the study, namely that the public thinks more warplanes are being produced than actually is the case.

Varied Answers

A question on warplane production was asked in the survey for the specific purpose of discovering how well-informed the people are on production figures. It read:

"About how many warplanes would you guess the United States is now producing a month?"

One-half (50 per cent) of those questioned ventured a guess. The median or average figure named was 800 planes a month, which means that one-half gave a figure more than 800, and one half a figure less than 800. But as many as 26 per cent actually thought warplane production was in excess of 1,100 per month.

While many conflicting figures on actual production have come from defense experts, the latest and most authoritative estimate is in the neighborhood of 700.

Thus, those voters who made a guess in the survey tended to overestimate the number of planes. Yet, by and large, the public is still not satisfied with the production rate.

The study also found that the views of the average American fail to square with the estimates of various observers and experts on warplane production in England and in Germany.

The median figure named by those who ventured a guess on British production was just the same as for American production —800 a month. For German production the median given was only 1,200—a figure considerably below the best guesses of experts.

The voters believe, however, that American warplanes are the fastest and 'best now being produced. When questioned on this point, 56 per cent said they thought the American planes were best, while 15 per cent thought German planes were best, 12 per cent thought English planes were, and 17 per cent gave no opinion.

Future Worries Her

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BOBBYE VAUGHAN 19, the most photographed drum majorette in America, asks the question: "Is there any future for girl drum majors?" She leads the band for Mississippi State College. Georgetown boys saw her in the Orange Bowl

By the Associated Press

State College, Miss., Jan. 3.—Sprightly Bobbye Vaughan is thinking of solving a burning academic quetion:

"Is there any future for girl drum majors?"

But 19-year-old Bobbye, one of the most photographed female drum majors in America and currently leading the 86-piece Mississippi State College Band, is not taking any chances on her own future.

As a sphomore in the college's school of business and industry, the shapely Bobbye is studying how to make a living in the workaday world where the emphasis is on figures in red and black ink.

Bobbye has been prancing in front of bands since she was a high school freshman five years ago, but now she's wondering:

What becomes of girl drum majors when they get out of school?

"I think I may be able to answer that for myself," she said seriously. "I'm thinking of opening a school for high school girls who want to be majorettes and go to college. Then I can make money from my experience."

But, she was asked, is there such a college field for girl drum majors that they would need a preparatory school?

"My goodness," said the surprised Bobbye. "I should say so. The colleges bid on girl drum majors like they bid on football players. I'm going through school here on a scholarship the alumni gave me."

She led the American Legion band at the legion convention in Los Angeles in 1938 and again at the convention in Chicago in 1939.

"Strutting is hard work," she added, "and that Los Angeles parade was terriffic. I had to strut seven miles. I was ready to collapse."

What kind of exercise does she take at home to keep in trim?

"I take bending exercises and touch my toes," said Bobbye and added brightly, "I lie on the floor and pretend I'm riding a bicycle. It's good for the legs."

French Await German Reply To Note

4 Points Stand Out In Situation Created By Laval Dismissal

By G. H. Archambault

Copyright, 1940, by the New York Times

Vichy, France, Jan. 3.—Developments in the situation created by the dismissal of Pierre Laval from all his high offices in Marshal Petain's government are beginning to be discerned. Four points stand out tonight:

A German reply to a French memorandum on December 14 is expected in the near future.

Paul Baudouin has resigned from his post as minister attached to the marshal's office.

There are rumors of various reorganizations in the government.

Admiral William D. Leahy, the newly-appointed American Ambassador will be in Vichy soon.

The four points and particularly the last, may not seem correlated at first glance, yet competent observers here can scarcely separate them. Obviously the dominating factor must ever be the attitude of the German victor.

The German reply now expected follows the trip Admiral Jean Darlan made to Paris Christmas Eve, when he resumed the conversations at the point where they had been left by the fall of Laval. The latter's method in these conversations was to put nothing in writing—which opened up many possibilities. Now, on the other hand, the process is to exchange memoranda.

Germans Framing Reply

Admiral Darlan took one to the occupied zone where, it is understood, he saw a very high German official. Since then the Germans have been considering their reply. The delay has given rise to innumerable rumors ranging from extension of the occupied zone to active French participation in the hostilities against Britain.

Baudouin's resignation set many tongues wagging in Vichy today. He became minister of foreign affairs in Bordeaux in June when Marshal Petain took office as prime minister and he held the post until he made way for Laval soon after the marshal's interview with Hitler at Montoire.

Baudouin was then attached to the chief of state as minister for youth and later, also, as minister in charge of information and propaganda; in order of precedence he became by decree the fourth personality in France. As foreign minister, Baudouin in the earlier phases was, like Laval, a champion of "collaboration" and an anglophobe. In later weeks he seemed to have trimmed his sails and when entertained at luncheon by the corps of American correspondents as recently as last Saturday he proved very much more open minded. Possibly this evolution was not foreign to his resignation.

However that may be, his position would have become delicate if reorganization of the Cabinet should be realized. Since Laval was deposed and there was no longer a successor-designate to Marshal Petain.

Much Expected of Leahy

Heretofore, the trend of rumors was toward an inner-cabinet which would carry on in case of emergency. Its composition included Admiral Darlan, Gen. Charles Huntziger, Minister of War, and Pierre-Etienne Flandin, minister of foreign affairs, who would have authority over other ministers while being all-responsible to Marshal Petain in the final resort.

It is understood that Baudouin was reluctant to accept this modification and preferred to resign, although offered a post in connection with the direction of national economy. The general belief is that he will now go to Paris.

Short of Bombs, Greeks Drop Stone-Filled Cans on Foe

They Even Use Old Boots at Times; Pilot Tells of Playing Deadly Game Of Tag Among Misty, Frozen Peaks

By J. Wes Gallagher

Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Greek Army in Northern Albania, Jan. 3.—Little Greece's outnumbered airmen who dive on Italian infantrymen in these wild mountain passes, "throw sticks and stones and even old boots" at the Italians when they run out of bombs and machine-gun ammunition.

The worse the weather is, the pilots say, the more they fly—because bad weather is their chief protection on flights where they might ordinarily find themselves outnumbered nine to one.

"Ideal conditions" on their charts are ceiling zero, 6-inch-deep snow and 10 below zero temperatures.

They take off from makeshift "postage stamp" fields deep in the wilds of Macedonia and Albania. The sight of these airports would make a United States Government inspector shudder.

"With 'ideal conditions' the Italians do not fly at all or fly so high they cannot see us," one young pilot said.

The pilot grinned and pointed to mist hanging over a nearby peak and snow flurries obscuring visibility from one end of the field to the other.

"We fly low, about 600 feet, until we reach the Italian positions, when we drop down to 200 feet or less. We know all these mountains like you know your hand and we fly up valleys and across passes close to the ground.

"The Italians usually give plenty of clearance to these 6,000-foot peaks. We wind through the valleys and the mist screens us from those above."

These hide-and-seek tactics of the scanty Greek air force is designed to save bombs as well as planes.

"The other day," the pilot said, "we went out to silence an Italian battery, but a big Fascist squadron spotted us. We dodged up a small valley, came around the mountain, and were again sighted. Another run up a pass and we circled and dived on that battery before the Italian airmen saw us the third time. We don't want to waste our bombs.

"Crews of some of the smaller bomber-observation planes load tin cans and old boots with rocks or anything heavy. They throw those at the Italians, too."

Greeks Cut Center of Foe's Line

By the Associated Press

Athens (Saturday), Jan. 4.—Greek troops broke through Italian defenses in Albania in the central sector to pave the way for what was authoritatively described early today as "an important development in the war."

Scene of the breaching was not located specifically, but was understood to be north and east of the Klisura-Tepelini area which a government spokesman earlier had declared was pierced by the Greeks.

Tanks Put to Flight

Gains northeast of Khimara on the coast also were chalked up by the Greeks in the drive north toward the important Fascist bases of Valona on the coast, and inland Berati and Elbasan.

An accelerated advance toward those Fascist points now is indicated in the announced successes.

Earlier the spokesman had declared that "desperate" Italian counterattacks failed to dislodge the Greeks from newly acquired heights in the Klisura region, and that Italian tanks had been put to "headlong flight" from that region to the Adriatic Sea.

The Greeks said the Italians suffered heavy losses.

"The whole region of the Tepelini-Klisura has been brought under control of Greek fire," advices from the front said.

Light Tanks Attacked

This was described as the "outstanding feature of the operations" on fronts from the coast to Lake Ochrida.

It is via the road running from Klisura through Tepelini to the west that Greek forces in central Albania aim to press on the port of Valona simultaneously with the southern wing advancing up the coast from Khimara.

In the latter sector, and in the Pogradetz area south of Lake Ochrida, the Greeks claimed they had repulsed enemy tank assaults and destroyed a number of machines.

"During the Italian attacks by light tanks, heavy antitank fire compelled a headlong flight," the military reports said.

Yugoslavs Fear Bulgars Will Join Axis

Philoff Will Sign Treaty in Berlin, Belgrade Is Told

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Jan. 3.—In an atmosphere already charged with the fear created by new German troop movements into Italy and Rumania, Germany has reopened with increasing force its diplomatic offensive against Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

Fresh German troops are on the frontiers of both nations. The flood of troops and material into Rumania has attained a velocity estimated as high as 40 trains in the 24-hour day.

Now squarely in the middle of the Orthodox Christmas holiday, when Bulgars and Yugoslavs alike are celebrating their festival, Berlin has restarted this diplomatic drive from where it rested in the third week of November.

3-Power Pact Expected

Informed sources close to Bulgarian official circles revealed tonight that Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philoff would leave Vienna for Berlin between Monday and Thursday of next week. Semiofficial German sources in Belgrade declared flatly that the purpose of Philoff's visit to the German capital is to sign the tripartite pact in the presence of Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, or Chancellor Hitler, or both.

The Belgrade semiofficial organ Vreme emphasized in its correspondence from Vienna and Berlin today that all high German sources consider that Bulgaria's adherence to the pact was only postponed in November. Vreme's Berlin correspondent then alludes to the many "contacts" which he insists the Bulgarian premier will have made at Vienna at the close of this week-end, adding:

"It is not excluded that the results of these contacts will be kept in secrecy but their great importance can be emphasized at this moment. It cannot be imagined that Bulgaria could resist lining up with the new European community, whose foundations are already laid down."

Yugoslav Position Serious

That Bulgaria actually is on the verge of signing was the considered opinion today of those diplomatic circles usually believed to be best informed here. Only Soviet diplomatic activity, the restraining hands of certain neighbors, and fears of internal disturbances afterward prevented the Sofia government from signing the pact during the Hungarian, Rumanian and Slovakian stampede to the German council table, according to reliable information here.

Even more serious in the view of most veteran diplomatic circles here is the position of Yugoslavia, once Bulgaria has thrown in her hand with the Axis and its satellites. The Yugoslav state would be isolated, as it is already almost completely dominated economically, by the Axis powers.

Belgrade can look for little support from Athens, for the Greeks look to Yugoslavia for much of their materiel, some of which was being sent directly across the Albanian frontier to the Greek rear before the heavy winter snows set in.

Last War Too Fresh in Mind

Yugoslavia, itself, will never be a signatory to the pact, according to Yugoslav sources, who say that any government which aligned itself with Berlin and Rome would perish by the wrath of the enraged peasantry. Some other Yugoslavs, largely those of army circles, say that the army would never permit an alliance with Germany and that the Serbian graves of the last war are too fresh in the mind for all concerned.

Bulgaria's alliance with Berlin would be a death blow to the desires of those Serbs, Croats and Slovenes who have hoped for a Yugoslav-Bulgar alliance to hold the south Slav front against all comers. These hopes have already been seriously damaged by Bulgarian revisionists, who disturbed Bulgar-Yugoslav relations in the Sofia Parliament with their demands for the return of Yugoslav Macedonia.

Westminster Choir to Sing Here

Members of the Westminster Choir, of the Westminster Choir School, of Princeton, N. J., who will present a concert on January 29 at Constitution Hall under the auspices of the choirs of New York Avenue Presbyterian, Calvary and First Baptist Churches

Leaders to Attend Organizing Of Luther Rice Baptist Church

Religious and lay leaders of the District will join in formal organization ceremonies for the new Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church tomorrow at 3 p. m. in the first unit of the new building at 5315 North Capitol Street.

They will include Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention; Dr. W. O. Lewis, general secretary, the Baptist World Alliance; George Fraser, president of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention; Dr. W. S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church; W. W. Everett, chairman of the Amos Kendall Fund trustees; the Rev. Charles B. Austin, pastor of the West Washington Baptist Church; the Rev. Mike Elliott, pastor of the new church, and others.

Formerly known as the Chillum Baptist Sunday School and Mission, the congregation had its inception in 1938 with a nucleus of 14 worshipers. Services were first held in an old residence near the present site that had been purchased by the Amos Kendall Trustees. The new project, including the lot and parsonage, cost $40,000.

Luther Rice, after whom the chuch was named, was the founder of George Washington University. He also established the Columbian Star, the first national Baptist journal. Members intend to develop the church as a national shrine to the memory of Luther Rice.

Calvary. "The Secret Springs" will be the subject of the sermon which Dr. W. S. Abernethy will preach tomorrow morning. The children's story sermon topic will be, "Kicking for Distance." His subject for the evening will be, "Good News for the Overcomer." He will be assisted at the latter service by Miss Laura Hughes and Leo Berndt.

First. Sounding a spiritual note for the New Year, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden will preach on "The Friend on the Road" tomorrow at 11 a. m. Student night will be observed at the evening service at 8 o'clock, and the Chapel Choir will sing Mozart's "Gloria" from the Twelfth Mass.

North Washington. North Washington Baptist Church will observe the International Week of Prayer, beginning Monday night at the home of Mr. E. L. Hain, 742 Rock Creek Church Road. The Rev. Henry J. Smith will speak tomorrow morning on "Self-Discovery Through Success." The Baptist Student Union, of Washington, will conduct the evening service.

Chevy Chase. "A New World Order" will be the theme of a communion meditation by the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor, at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church tomorrow morning. New members will be received into the fellowship. The chorus choir will sing.

Dr. Glover Johnson, professor of religion in Mount Hermon School for Boys, will be the speaker at a young people's fellowship tea at 6:30 p. m.

A motion-picture service will be held in the evening hour at 8 and the film, "In Search of God," will be shown. Mr. Clark will give a brief message on the same theme.

West Washington. Sunday will mark the eighteenth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Charles B. Austin. He will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Preacher and Preaching," and at 8 p. m. on "New Year Uses of Time."

Metropolitan. "Church Motto for 1941" will be the theme of Dr. John C. Ball's sermon tomorrow morning.

In the evening the Rev. John Ballbach will lead the inspirational song service. His sermon subject will be "Fact, Faith, Feeling."

Presbyterian Church Choir Plans Program

Worshipers of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will hear Dr. Peter Marshall speak at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow on "The Man at the Gate." The church choir and chorus, under direction of Charles Dana Beaschler, will sing "Glory to God in the Highest" by Pergolesi.

At 8 p. m. Dr. Marshall will have for his topic "The Christian Crescendo." Because of numerous requests the choir and chorus will repeat several choruses from Handel's "The Messiah," including an alto solo by Miss Verona Fulton and a unison soprano solo by Miss Eleanor Bradburn, Mrs. Mildred Mugridge, and Miss Ruth Tillman.

Central. Dr. James H. Taylor will preach tomorrow morning on "The Spiritual and Moral Demands of the New Year," and in the evening on "Some Remarkable Resolutions."

The Westminster League will meet at 5 and the Christian Endeavor Society at 7 p. m.

Chevy Chase. "Nine Chances Out of Ten" will be the subject of Dr. J. Hillman Hollister's sermon at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow.

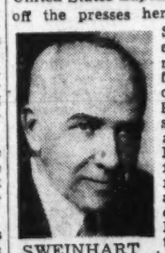
Dr. Hollister will be the guest of the Hearthstones at their meeting at 6:15 p. m. and will lead the discussion in the fireside group meeting at 7:30 p. m. in the church house.

Pilgrims. Dr. Andrew Reid Bird will preach at 11 a. m. on "January Freshness, or God's Gift of the Morning" and at 7:45 p. m. on "Lead Kindly Light," or "How Can We Make Right Decisions in the New Year?"

River Road. The Rev. Virgil M. Cosby will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "1941 Challenges" and at 8 p. m. on "How Old Are You?"

Baptist Magazine Makes Initial Appearance Here

The January—and initial—issue of a national Baptist magazine, The United States Baptist, has just come off the presses here. Henry Lee Sweinhart, foreign news correspondent and former president of the National Press Club, is associate editor, and the Rev. Mike Elliott, former Chicago religious editor, and now pastor of Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church here, is editor.



SWEINHART

The magazine, which contains news both of national and local interest to Baptist readers, announces that with the February issue it will devote a special section to Washington church news.

In an editorial on "Washington as a Religious Center," the magazine asserts that "As the Capital of the greatest, the most powerful Nation in the world, the Nation which is known throughout the world preeminently as a "Christian Nation," Washington also should be an outstanding Christian Capital. It should make its influence as a religious center felt, not only throughout the United States but to the four corners of the world."

Girls' Class to Lead At Cleveland Park Congregational

The high school girls' class led by Miss Heloise Brainerd, will conduct the church school sessions tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Cleveland Park Congregational Church, Thirty-fourth and Lowell Streets Northwest. The Rev. Paul W. Yinger, pastor, will preach at 11 a. m. on "What Men Live By." Church young people will meet at the Yingers' home, 4117 Davis Place Northwest, at 6:30 p. m.

Mount Pleasant. Dr. Fred Scherman Buschmeyer will preach on "The Use of Doors" tomorrow at 11 a. m.

At 6:30 p. m. the 20-40 Club will hold its supper meeting and worship service. Afterward, the discussion of interesting jobs of the members will continue, with William Powell, instructor of English at the University of Pennsylvania, as the speaker.

Ingram Memorial. Led by the Rev. Frederick J. Bishop, a loyalty campaign will open at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow.

Class to Study Gospel of Luke

Miss Mabel Thurston on Monday night will lead a new class in the exposition of the international Sunday School lesson at the Central Y. M. C. A. The studies will be on the Gospel of Luke, with "Christ's Valuation of Personality" as the opening subject. Miss Thurston teaches a Bible class at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

Columbia Heights Young People To Meet Thursday

The weekly game night for young people of Columbia Heights Christian Church will be resumed Thursday evening. The church elders will meet on Tuesday night, and the finance committee on Thursday. Dr. Arthur P. Wilson will preach tomorrow morning on "The Meaning of Life" and at 8 p. m. on "Ebenezer."

Park View. "Prayer and the Church" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. J. Lloyd Black at 11 a. m., and "A Christian Imperative" at 8 p. m.

National City. Dr. R. H. Miller's sermon theme tomorrow morning will be "A New Year; Growth or Progress, Which?"

The young people's groups will meet as usual in the social hall and in Annex No. 1, 1308 Vermont Avenue, for their evening meetings.

Washington Cathedral Recital Tomorrow

Richard Ross, organist-choirmaster of the Church of the Holy Nativity in Baltimore, will give a recital on the great organ of the Washington Cathedral following the evensong rites tomorrow at 4 p. m. The guest soloist's program will cover selections by Bach, Schumann and Cesar Franck.

Dr. W. M. Lewis Will Preach At Cathedral

Former G. W. U. Head To Speak Tomorrow On 'A Sure Defense'

William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., and former head of George Washington University, will be guest speaker tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral, discussing "A Sure Defense."

First of a series of distinguished national leaders scheduled to speak at the Cathedral during 1941, Dr. Lewis is former chief of the education service of the United States Chamber of Commerce. He resigned his university post in 1927 to become Lafayette president.

Dr. Lewis was named by Gov. James to head the Pennsylvania Selective Service Board. He is now dividing his time between the college and board duties. He is a former president of the Association of American Colleges and past moderator of the Pennsylvania Synod of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Theodore Otto Wedel, canon chancellor of the Cathedral, will occupy the pulpit at the 11 a. m. Communion service tomorrow. Communion also is scheduled for 7:30 and 9:30 a. m. Week day Communion is at 7:30 a. m.

St. John's. The Right Rev. James Freeman, D. D., Bishop of Washington, will preach at the 11 a. m. service of Holy Communion tomorrow. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector, will preach at the 9:30 service of morning prayer and at the 8 o'clock service of evening prayer. The full choir of men and boys under the direction of Arthur Howes, organist and choirmaster, will sing "Lo! Star-led Chiefs," by William Crotch, at both morning service. "Praise," by Alex Rowley, will be sung by the choir of mixed voices under the direction of Mr. Howes at the evening service.

The Supper Club will meet at 6 o'clock in the church house with Ingham Mack leading an open forum.

Grace. Tomorrow being the Eve of the Feast of the Epiphany a "Service of Lights" will be held at 8 p. m. It has been arranged by the rector, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde. The church will be lighted by candles, and each member of the choir will carry a lighted one. The preacher will be the Rev. Claude S. Ridenour, rector of St. Luke's Church, Bladensburg, Md.

Epiphany. Services for tomorrow will be Holy Communion at 8 a. m.; church school and junior Bible class at 9:30 a. m., and adult Bible class at 10 a. m. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 a. m., with a sermon by Dr. Z. B. Barney.

Transfiguration. Services for tomorrow are at 7:30 and 11 a. m. Sunday school meets at 9:30. The Rev. John J. Queally will officiate and preach.

Ascension

The services tomorrow will be Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and communion with sermon by Canon R. L. Wolven at 11. The church school meets at 9:30 a. m. and the Young People's Fellowship will have a supper meeting at 6:30 p. m.

St. Paul's, Rock Creek

The Service of Lights will be celebrated in commemoration of Epiphany tomorrow at 8 p. m., in St. Paul's Episcopal Cruch, Rock Creek Parish. In the chancel with the rector, Dr. F. J. Bohanan, will be the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Washington Cathedral; Dr. ZeBarney Thorne Phillips, rector of Epiphany Church; the Rev. Charles Wood and the Rev. Howard Sylvester Arnold, assistant to the rector.

The service begnis with the silent assembling of the congregation, choir and clergy in the darkened church. The dim light from the Old Tetament prophecies in typified by the flickering flame of a small candle, which appears in the cancel while the rector reads the passages from which the prophecies are taken.

Preparatory Services Planned For Forthcoming Mission Here

Arrangements to Be Speeded Next Week For Local Event Starting on Feb. 2; Dr. Kinsolving to Address Ministers

(This is the fifth in a series of articles about the National Christian Mission, which comes to Washington from February, 2-9. Another will be published on January 11.

By Robert Tate Allen

With only 29 days until the opening of the local phase of the National Christian Mission, preparations for that event will get off into high gear during the coming week.

DR. KINSOLVING

Many congregations have announced plans for special preparatory preaching services this month; the Washington Ministerial Union will turn its meeting on Monday into a rally for the mission; the local mission's executive committee will meet on Wednesday to map further plans, and other programs will be held to set the stage for the mission.

The National Christian Mission, which began last September in 22 major cities, will open in Syracuse tomorrow, continuing through January 12; Philadelphia, January 12-19; Louisville, Ky., January 19-26, and St. Louis, January 26 to February 2, when it starts here with mass meetings in Constitution and Continental Halls. The mission is being sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and its constituent bodies, such as the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. A. L. Kinsolving, noted Episcopal cleric of Princeton, N. J., will address the Ministerial meeting at 11 a. m. at Foundry Methodist Church. He is former rector of historic Trinity Episcopal Church, Boston, now being served by Dr. Oliver J. Hart, former rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, here.

Dr. Kinsolving, with five other mission leaders, will speak at the women's phase of the mission, Monday through Thursday, February 3 to 6, from 10 to 11:30 a. m., at various mission centers throughout the city, selected according to geographical desirability. They are Foundry, Emory and McKendree Methodist, Chevy Chase and Metropolitan Presbyterian and Vermont Avenue Baptist Churches.

MRS. LINZEL

Other speakers will be Dr. Adolph Keller, of Geneva, Switzerland, general secretary of the Central Bureau for Relief of Evangelical Churches of Europe; Bishop T. C. Darst, of the East Carolina Diocese of the Episcopal Church, Mrs. Hilda Ives, of Andover-Newton Theological Seminary; Miss Anna V. Rice, former general Y. W. C. A. secretary; Miss Muriel Lester, who is known as the Jane Addams of London, and Miss Nannie Burroughs, president of the National Trade and Professional School here.

A mass meeting at 10 a. m. on Friday, February 7, at Calvary Baptist Church will climax the women's part of the mission, with Dr. E. Stanley Jones, noted missionary to India and Miss Lester, speaking.

Handling arrangements for the women's part in the local mission is Mrs. Frank Linzel, president of the Washington Council of Church Women, and among the city's outstanding religious figures.

An authority on religious conditions in Europe, Dr. Keller arrived in America in October by clipper from Lisbon in time for the Minneapolis phase of the Mission.

Many Face Starvation

Pleading aid to sarving war victims in an article in the November Federal Council bulletin, he wrote in part:

"Thousands will face starvation if America will not step in and send help. Will America do what some European churches did in the seventeenth century when they sent collections to their American fellow Christians to protect them from starvation? We know, of course, the political and technical considerations which seem to be obstacles to meeting such a challenge.

"But before such technical questions may be raised, before a political or military answer can be given, the first and necessary answer must come from the human heart and from the Christian conscience which refuses to let people simply starve in order to solve a military problem; to let women and children die with a cold and observant eye, because such dying belongs to political calculations. It is late, terribly late! Don't let it be too late!"

First Congregational To Hear Dr. Anderson

Dr. Howard Stone Anderson will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Let's Keep Our Splendid Loyalties" at the First Congregational Church. The a cappella choir will sing "Nunc Dimittis" by Gretchaninoff and Dorothy Wilson Halbach, contralto, will sing Harper's "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go."

At the 8 o'clock book and candlelight hour Dr. Anderson will review Ernest Hemingway's book, "For Whom the Bell Tolls." The Friendly Forum will hold its monthly dinner and program on Monday at 6 p. m.

Dr. Niebuhr to Speak

The speaker for the religious service in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University, tomorrow at 11 a. m. will be Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor of social ethics, Union Theological Seminary, New York City. Dr. Niebuhr is the last Gifford lecturer and the second American to be thus honored by an English university.

Interchurch Institute To Open Today

An institute on "Living in the Christian Family," sponsored by the Southeast Interchurch Council, will open today at the Washington City Church of the Brethren, Fourth Street and North Carolina Avenue Southeast, under the leadership of Dr. Garry Cleveland Myers and Mrs. Myers.

Dr. and Mrs. Myers are editor and associate editor, respectively, of Children's Activities. The former served for several years as head of the department of parent education of Cleveland College of Western Reserve University, where Mrs. Myers lectured on parent education.

Dr. Myers will speak today at 10:30 a. m. on "Establishing Controls" and Mrs. Myers on "The Adolescent's Home." They also will speak this afternoon and tonight at 8 will address a mass meeting for parents on the subject of "How We Parents Annoy Our Children."

The program for tomorrow and the topics follows: 9:45 a. m., church school sessions, Dr. Myers on "When Dads Are Dads," and Mrs. Myers on "Personality Needs of Adolescents," at 11 a. m. worship service, Dr. Myers on "Trying to Be a Christian at Home;" 6:30 p. m., parents' mass meeting, Dr. Myers on "Jittery Children;" 6:30 p. m., mass meeting for youth, Mrs. Myers on "Choosing a Life Mate;" 8 p. m., worship period, Mrs. Myers on "Who Is Grown Up?"

The institute will continue through Monday night.

Solemn High Mass To Be Sung Tomorrow

Solemn high mass will be celebrated tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N Streets Northwest, by Dr. John K. Cartwright, rector. The Boy Choristers will sing the music of the mass. Dr. Cartwright will speak over WOL on the Catholic radio hour on Thursday from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

Pius XI Guild to Meet

The Rev. William Mullaney, O. M. I., of the Oblate Scholastic Order, Catholic University, will address the Pius Eleventh Guild meeting tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Grafton Hotel on the theme of "Catholic Action." Supper and entertainment will follow.

"ONWARD, CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS"
...BARING-GOULD...

Onward, Christian soldiers,
Marching as to war,
With the cross of Jesus
Going on before!
Christ, the royal Master,
Leads against the foe;
Forward into battle
See His banners go.

The occasion for the writing of this famous marching hymn was a union of the Sunday Schools of Yorkshire, England, in 1865. With banners waving, and crosses high, the children proceeded from one village to another, singing enthusiastically and forgetting the tiresome journey.

Hour Will Feature Dr. Maier

Concordia Seminary Faculty Member To Speak on WOL

Dr. Walter A. Maier, Ph. D., faculty member of Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., again will be heard on the Lutheran Hour tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. over station WOL. The program was resumed three weeks ago.

During a previous "Hour" series, more than 200,000 communications were received in praise of the program—including 12,500 in a single week. They came from 48 States and 15 foreign lands.

Heard on the same program are the Lutheran Hour Chorus, comprising a group of Concordia Seminarians under the direction of Ronald Ross, and the St. Louis A Cappella Choir, directed by William B. Heyne.

Dr. Maier is professor of Semitic languages at Concordia, editor of the Walther League Messenger, a monthly journal for Lutheran youth, and author of many religious works. While at Harvard, he won the coveted Billings prize for oratory. He also was graduated from Boston University and Concordia.

Reformation. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor, will give an address on "Sun Crowned Men" at the 8 p. m. service tomorrow.

At the 11 a. m. service his theme will be "Disappointments or Appointments."

The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor, will preach at the 8:30 matin service and the Children's Choir will sing.

Robert E. Lee, of the senior class of Gettysburg Theological Seminary, will speak to the round table at 7 o'clock on "The Duty of the Church in the Present World Crisis."

Science Churches Set Day's Lesson-Sermon

"God" is the subpect of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited to attend the church services including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8.

The Golden Text is from Psalms 65: 1, 2. "Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion: and unto Thee shall the vow be performed. O Thou that hearest prayer, unto Thee shall all flesh come."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain Thee; how much less this house that I have builded?" (1 Kings 8:27)

280 Warplanes To Participate In Inaugural

Governors of 11 States Indicate Plans to Attend

Governors of 11 States have indicated they will attend the inauguration, it was announced last night as plans for a mighty armada of 280 Army and Navy planes to participate during the parade were completed.

Former Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina said formal invitations to all Governors are yet to be sent by the committee, but informal letters brought the 11 replies.

They are Governors Frank M. Dixon, of Alabama; Dwight H. Green, of Illinois; Keen Johnson, of Kentucky; Sumner Sewall, of Maine; Herbert R. O'Conor, of Maryland; Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts; Paul B. Johnson, of Mississippi; Robert Blood, of New Hampshire; Burnet R. Maybank, of South Carolina; William H. Wills, of Vermont, and James H. Price, of Virginia.

The War Department notified the Inaugural Committee that 200 Army planes and 80 Navy planes would take part in the demonstration wtih a preparedness and military theme as the motif. Many other military units will participate in the two-hour long parade.

Melvin Hildreth, chairman of the ticket committee, announced headquarters for ticket sales, 727 Fifteenth Street Northwest, would remain open daily until 9:30 p. m., beginning Monday.

Arrangements are being made to assign two military aides to each visiting Governor. These aides will act as official guides while the Governors are in the Capital.

tour of South America.

"It's an outrage that a city of almost a million population should not have a stadium or an auditorium," he said. "We should have a stadium that could be used for all sorts of athletic contests, including the Army-Navy game, and for military displays."

Washington traffic is atrocious, Reynolds said, but the blame cannot be put on the police or traffic departments. Lack of garage space, he declared, is chiefly at fault.

He cited examples of underground garages at Buenos Aires and Montevideo and stated he saw no reason why such storage space could not be provided in the heart of Washington. Builders of apartment houses or theaters in the future, he suggested, should be required to include adequate parking space in their plans before they are allowed a permit.

While declining to comment directly on suffrage proposals, Reynolds said that if he were a resident of the District he would want a say in its administration.

"I'd hate like hell to live here without a vote," he said. "It is taxation without representation."

Asked about the adequacy of unemployment relief, Reynolds said he thought the District should not be held responsible for migrants who flock to Washington because it is the National Capital. He implied that States of origin or the Federal Government should take care of indigent tourists.

Senator Reynolds has sponsored District race-track legislation for several years.

"I don't see why the District government and the local merchants and hotel men should not get the money that Washingtonians are spending at the three Maryland tracks," he said.

Reynolds had no new tax proposal to offset his suggested reduction in real estate taxes, but he expressed the opinion that the Federal payment is too small.

Inauguration Poses Problem For Radiomen

May Have to Cover In Sound-Proof Booths To Dodge ASCAP Tunes

Washington's four leading radio stations may resort to sound-proof booths along Pennsylvania Avenue for their coverage of the inaugural parade, it was reported last night.

Their networks' present controversy with ASCAP—the American Society of Composers Authors and Publishers—would prohibit even accidental microphone "pickups" of banned tunes which the various military and civic bands in the line of march might play, it was explained.

With C. B. S. already threatened with suit because an ASCAP tune was played on Fred Allen's program Wednesday night, the major broadcasting chains "aren't going to take any more chances," a local spokesman declared.

None of the four Washington stations, however, has formulated definite plans. Meetings of station representatives are scheduled for today and early next week.

Ban on Music

Both WJSV and WOL said they would erect sound-proof booths if the fight isn't settled before the inaugural parade January 20. Announcers will be stationed in the booths to bring listeners a word description of the event, but no music will be permitted to go on the airwaves.

Leaders of the various bands to participate in the parade are also scheduled to meet early next week to decide what action, if any, they must take. Capt. W. F. Santelman, leader of the Marine Band, already has admitted the radio-ASCAP battle might dampen the inaugural festivities, but thought things "might be worked out" before the time arrives.

Harry Butcher, CBS vice president, said last night his company couldn't afford to face another threatened suit for a chance pickup of pronibited tunes during the parade.

"At $250 per strain for every station on the air—well, we just can't afford to take a chance," he said.

WOL to Take No Chances

That figure is the minimum fine each station is liable for each strain of banned music which hits the airwaves.

Madeline Ensign, speaking for WOL, also said "no chances" would be taken and advanced the sound-proof booth suggestion.

Ted Shawn at N. B. C. said his company had not decided what to do. He said it would be several days before pending conferences are over and a decision is reached.

The problem of "covering" the President's birthday dances is not so acute, the station spokesmen agreed. It is not necessary at these functions to carry music on the air because of the ample number of celebrities to interview and goings-on to describe.

Defense-Minded, 100 D. C. Firemen Form Drill Club

One hundred defense-conscious District firemen are out to prove they can do something besides scale flaming buildings, that you don't have to be a soldier, sailor or marine to be able to march.

The 100 smoke-eaters, representing each of the Capital's seven Fire Department battalions, have formed two platoons to drill Wednesdays and Fridays in the armory at Sixth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest. There they practice marching and home defense tactics.

Commander of the group is Lieut. L. B. Wilson, of No. 7 Truck Company. The drill club was formed by Wilson, Battalion Chief Clement Murphy and 12 other firemen, most of them former service men.

Blonde Meets Press Shyly For Britain

Miss McGeachy Here As Embassy Attache For Public Relations

Miss Craig McGeachy, newly appointed British press attache, seemingly would rather go through a London bombing than be interviewed by the American press.

Miss McGeachy, a Canadian who lived up to advance notices describing her as "blonde and charming," said she felt exhilarated when the bombs of the Luftwaffe just missed her in the British capital.

But in an interview yesterday, Miss McGeachy indicated that for a press attache, and one handling the interests of the ministry of economic warfare to be interviewed "well, I am not sure it's quite the thing."

She added: "And press relations people are so unimportant, after all. Why should anyone be interested? . . . Just because I happen to be a woman."

Miss McGeachy, who left her native Sarnia, Ontario, to do press work for the League of Nations at Geneva, and later went to London, where she held a position in the ministry of economic warfare, showed less hesitation in discussing British morale.

"The spirit of the people is wonderful. All the young are looking toward the future as they never did before," she declared.

The new official said she had found the English so "kind and cooperative" and their defiance of the Nazi air onslaughts so courageous she had been loath to leave the island.

Asked how Britishers feel about American aid, she replied, smilingly, "No comment, eh . . ."

The interview closed with renewed remonstrances of the blonde press agent "that she didn't want to make a splash . . . appear on the front page or anything like that."

"Maybe I ought to come down to your office and read your copy," Miss McGeachy laughed.

Glass for Sending Navy Into War

day was the finest that he ever delivered," the Senator said.

In some pain, having returned from a dentist's office, the Senator spent his birthday anniversary eve quietly in his residence last night, with Mrs. Glass.

He said he "felt no younger and no older" and that today will be regarded by him just as any other day. With Mrs. Glass he returned here Wednesday from a visit to the Glass home in Lynchburg, Va.

The Senator avoids any talk about his age and says that anything reported about it will be wrong.

But, 83 today, the famous Senator bandied some of his dry humor with colleagues yesterday.

"I'm not in favor of it," he said, turning his eyes to the spiderwork of steel girders recently put in the Senate chamber. He was asked if he thought it would affect the acoustics.

Tosses Off a Quip

"I'd be in favor of it if it would affect some acoustics," he replied.

Generally, Senator Glass has to declare himself overcome by the felicitations received on his birthdays, but today he will miss the handclasps of many colleagues and friends at the Capitol because the Senate will be in recess. It was not indicated by himself or Mrs. Glass yesterday that they will make anything special of the anniversary.

The defense situation appeared to be profoundly in the Senator's mind, a disturbing turn of events for him since he last celebrated the anniversary. On last January 4, with the war farther from American thinking, the Senator had said he was full of the "peace on earth, good will to men" spirit, but yesterday he spoke his views on the ways of war and did not grow mellow on life and heaven hereafter as he did last year.

Not So Mellow Now

Then he had reflected, in an aside from his life-long field of politics, that "if the next world is a better place than this, I would be agreeably surprised and appreciative; if it is worse it will be what I deserved."

He wasn't so mellow about things yesterday. He had been to the dentist's and that coupled with the war still permitted him to smile only out of consideration for the friends who would see his photograph in the paper on the anniversary.

Showing The Way

The executive order suspending the eight-hour workday for Government employes constructing Army and Navy bases on sites leased from Great Britain is said to be due to the existence of an "extraordinary emergency." The emphasis placed upon that phrase by the President is undoubtedly significant. It provides an excuse for retaining the 8-hour day and the 40-hour week for employes within the United States working on defense contracts. But it is doubtful whether the distinction will long hold when—or if—it becomes apparent that the short working day is retarding production for defense. The Presidential order certainly is a tacit admission that longer hours are a guarantee of speedier completion of our outposts of defense. But that is just as true of our internal preparations. An extraordinary emergency confronts the entire country today, and The Post has frequently pointed out that it is an emergency which makes the 8-hour day a luxury we ought gladly to surrender until the present crisis is past, and the world again made safe for democratic peoples.

Short-Sighted Planning

City planning becomes a fiasco when land definitely marked for governmental development is used for the erection of costly private buildings that may have to be razed not long after their completion. Yet that is precisely the policy Congress has followed in the Nation's Capital since 1933. The result will be either an inexcusable waste of public funds or an unfortunate modification of plans for orderly development of the city.

Some months ago The Post directed attention to the fact that two costly apartment houses were under construction in an area which Congress has designated for governmental use. Now another eight-story apartment building is beginning to rise in the same neighborhood. Authorization for Federal purchase of this area was given a number of years ago, but no funds have been appropriated for that purpose. Property owners cannot indefinitely pay taxes on vacant land while waiting for the Government to take it off their hands.

All of the section bounded by Eighteenth and E Streets and the Potomac River has been designated for governmental use, as well as some squares north of E Street. With large apartment buildings rising in this area, however, the expense of purchasing it for Federal buildings may now be prohibitive. If so, carefully devised plans for this important section of the city will have to be modified.

The same shortsighted policy is being followed in other areas. In the Southwest the Government has recently built quarters for the Census Bureau, the Social Security Agency and the Railroad Retirement Board. Existing plans call for public use of the adjoining property now occupied largely by slum housing. But this property, still in private hands, is beginning to take a new lease on life because the location of many Government employes in the area has created new business opportunities. Unless Congress acts quickly the cost of the property may be greatly enhanced.

Similar situations exist in other parts of the city. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has repeatedly urged that a fund be created for the purchase of property designated for Federal buildings whenever such a purchase appears advantageous. Expensive private developments could then be averted by purchase or condemnation of the property. Indeed, this practice was followed until 1933. The shortsighted departure from that policy cannot be continued without thwarting the efforts of the city planners and adding unnecessary expenses to the cost of Government.

Box-Office Revolt

Mr. Gable, who has lately been in our midst, is a symbol of masculine ascendancy at the box office. For, according to the new poll of exhibitors, eight out of the first ten moneygetters of filmdom are males. The result of the poll certainly seems to indicate some change in public taste. In 1937 six feminine stars were in the select group. Yet this year only Bette Davis and Judy Garland, neither strictly a glamour girl, could make the list. One explanation may be the increasing popularity of the great outdoors with those who go to view it indoors. Then, again, it has been suggested that the censors and the fear of them have hampered exploitation of feminine talents. But these are stirring times, and it is entirely possible that masculine prowess has again captured the imagination of women and children who constitute a majority of moving picture audiences.

A Threat To Eire

Napoleon was once asked why French artillery were firing on Frenchmen, and he responded, laconically, "Just to encourage the others." Much the same explanation may be hazarded for the dropping of Nazi bombs on the impeccably neutral Irish. In all likelihood the Nazis are encouraging the Irish in a neutrality which, in view of Britain's heavy losses of shipping off the Irish coast and of the prospect of a Nazi invasion of Britain through Eire, has become Britain's premier problem. At any rate, there seems no other reasonable explanation.

Whatever the effect upon Eire, the bombs will quicken rather than slacken British overtures to Dublin for bases on the Irish coast, since the bombing may demonstrate preinvasion preparations. But the primary argument for British bases in Eire lies in the need for coping with the menace to British shipping off the Irish coast. This is a dual menace, consisting of nests of Nazi submarines waiting to pick off the British convoys in perfect liaison with German airplane spotters based on Brittany and Norway. The planes spot the convoys, move on to report to the lurking submarines, and then complete their flight homeward to their bases either in Brittany or Norway. Thus they describe an arc too far away to be effectively cut by British fighters. If the British planes could be based on the Irish coast, the story might be different, and, moreover, the bases would constitute that much further protection against the invasion of Britain.

So far, however, Premier de Valera has shown not the slightest disposition to depart from neutrality. As he says, a lease of bases would, of course, be a departure from neutrality, and, consequently would constitute a casus belli in Nazi eyes. But this seems an argument from another world when one recalls what happened to other impeccable neutrals in Europe. With the utmost impartiality the Netherlanders shot down any stray airmen over their territory and in general called a plague on the houses of both belligerents. Did the Nazis respect them any the more? Not in the slightest. When the hour came for the Nazi machine to move, it moved over the Dutch without any regard for the uprightness of Dutch neutrality, and the captive Netherlanders today are mute witnesses to a concept of neutrality which, in the circumstances of this war, is both impracticable and inglorious.

In Dublin, as elsewhere, the truth of this observation must be perfectly obvious. If there were any doubt about it, the President on Sunday may have persuaded some of the waverers with his reminder: "Would Irish freedom be permitted as an amazing exception in an unfree world?" But the problem of Eire is complicated by 600 years of Anglo-Irish bitterness. To take their ancient enemy to their bosom as a safeguard against a prospective enemy wouldn't even be an Irish way out of the dilemma. Moreover, the announcement of leaseholds would be the signal right away for bombings against which Eire is completely unequipped. Accordingly, there are no signs, except an inquiry in America for equipment, that Eire intends to take any action.

It has been suggested that the situation is made to order for an intervention on our part which would have as its warrant the moral and material alliance we have declared with the British cause. There is no doubt that our word would carry great weight with Premier de Valera and the Dublin government. And it almost seemed as if there was a harbinger of such a word in the President's address on Sunday. But there are difficulties in the way which make any direct approach inadvisable. If we were to advise the Irish to accede to the British request, in effect we should be accepting a responsibility to Eire for its defense against Nazi reprisals. As yet, however, we are not even in a position to equip the Irish properly, especially in the material they would need most—namely, antiaircraft guns.

The fact is that a meeting of minds between Eire and the British still demands concessions from the British and the people of Northern Ireland. Unity might conceivably bring Eire into the war. And now that Lord Craigavon, Premier of Northern Ireland, is dead, perhaps there may be another approach to the problem of a plebiscite. Eire's heart is not so set against the British that it would be proof against this evidence of good faith. Indeed, the Nazi bombs may do as good a propaganda job for the British in Eire as the President's speech did; for the Irish are no whit behind the English in their imperviousness to softening by bombs.

Magnesium

Till recent years the problem of magnesium supplies chiefly concerned agronomists because of the value of magnesium as a fertilizer. Then magnesium alloys came to be increasingly useful in the manufacture of castings, sheets, and other metal products. Today this ultralight metal is vitally important in the manufacture of airplane parts and engines. A serious bottleneck in the output of military planes would develop consequently if companies engaged in producing and fabricating magnesium were unable to fill orders.

Already unfavorable attention has been attracted to the industry because a single corporation controls various basic patents for processing magnesium which are of German origin. A Federal grand jury has been investigating rumors that German interests are represented in this patent pool. And this is what is alleged to be hampering the fabrication of magnesium. Though the company asserts that all its patents are American-owned, and that licenses for their use have been granted without restrictions, obviously a thoroughgoing inquiry into the licensing system is essential in order to make sure that the system does not prevent maximum production and processing of this essential metal.

But, aside from this aspect of the problem, the industrial side of magnesium affords worry enough. The industry was entirely unprepared for the tremendous expansion of demand for its products resulting from defense contracts. Till recently, indeed, the Army and Navy did not permit magnesium to be used in fighting aircraft. So it is not surprising that great additions to capacity are essential in order to meet the needs of the defense industries. Fortunately productive capacity is already more than double what it was in 1939, and new plants for production and fabrication are under construction which will further increase the output of magnesium.

The Kingfish Returns

A curious set of circumstances has brought a Huey Long statue to a prominent place in the United States' hall of statesmen. Theoretically Statuary Hall in the Capitol is reserved for marble or bronze effigies of illustrious persons chosen by the States "for their historic renown or for distinguished civic or military service." Actually this memorial to the late "kingfish" appears to have attained a place among the great of America in much the same way that Long became dictator of Louisiana.

The story is the familiar one of funds for the statue having been voted while the legislature of Louisiana was still under the spell which former Senator Long cast upon it. But a new regime is at the helm in Baton Rouge, and the Creole State is attempting to clean up the corruption to which Huey's dictatorship gave rise. It is doubtful whether Louisiana in its present state of disillusionment would have authorized the placement of a statue to Huey Long in the Capitol as a symbol of Louisiana statesmanship. Indeed, one is rather surprised that the reform administration now in control has not requested Washington authorities to transfer the statue to the Navy's new wind tunnel, where the "kingfish" could be expected to feel more at home.

Certainly many members of Congress, if not Louisianans, will resent the appearance of the "kingfish's" likeness between the statues of William Jennings Bryan and the elder Robert M. La Follette. But they can't do anything about it. Nor can the architect of the Capitol. Neither he nor they have any control over the qualifications of men whose marble images are sent to reside in Statuary Hall. Back in 1872 Congress invited all the States to submit two statues of distinguished citizens to adorn the Capitol. It is true that some of these contributions have been moved from Statuary Hall to relieve the congestion and the strain upon the floor of that chamber. But each State is allowed to retain one distinguished son in the hall; and since Louisiana had not previously contributed a statue, Huey's image was assigned to the only vacant space.

The forthcoming ceremonies to honor the "kingfish" can thus be readily explained. It would be impossible, however, to think of a more inappropriate time to commemorate the rash career of a man who made himself a dictator and the State of Louisiana his own satrapy.

Envoy To London

Harry L. Hopkins' early training as a social investigator will come in useful for his short mission to London. But this isn't all the service he will do for the President. No man reputedly enjoys Mr. Roosevelt's confidence as much as he does, and it is essential, in view of all the implications of the President's Sunday speech, that the British should be kept in close and immediate touch with the President's thinking. Still Mr. Hopkins is not an Ambassador, but only a contact man pending the appointment of an Ambassador. That this is soon to be made is even better news than Mr. Hopkins' trip. There has been much delay in filling the embassy, though the delay is probably due to the new importance with which the appointment has become vested. The President this time needs a man who is as like-minded with him as Mr. Hopkins.

Axis Intentions

As one of the common people, I appeal for more proof that the Axis wishes to destroy us. We hear Dorothy Thompson say so. We even hear the President say so. But we, the reading public, find comparatively few first-hand quotations in the papers to that effect from the Axis powers themselves. We do get quotations from them to the contrary.

Even though we do not trust their word, why invite attack? "As a man thinketh, so is he." We have not been neutral at heart and now our feelings are objectifying themselves and the fat is practically in the fire. All that remains is for some ship to get sunk in the midst of the ill feelings—we will say we have been attacked, and good-by to the peace of 130,000,000 people!

Why did England declare war on Germany before she was properly armed? Sorry as we feel for her, why not "hold our peace" and at the same time build a defense that is invulnerable? Why swell the ill will unnecessarily? If my questions are not fair, will the press please keep us better informed, with first-hand proof, of the Axis' intentions toward us? It would at least keep us in better "fighting spirit."

New Monroe Doctrine

I think history will record the President's speech last Sunday as marking the extension of our Monroe Doctrine to England, Scotland, Ireland and the British islands in the Atlantic and foreshadowing its extension to all of the other foreign possessions in the Atlantic and also the Pacific, insofar as necessary for the safety and security of America.

The minor reservations against sending expeditionary forces to distant points will and should be eliminated if necessary to defeat the forces which threaten America.

The doctrine should, of course, also be extended to include the possessions of the other foreign powers in the Atlantic, together with the French possessions on the West Coast of Africa.

The President will, no doubt, establish a similar policy in respect to the Pacific, but is entirely correct in proceeding step by step in taking all action necessary for the security and safety of America.

Lamb's Temple

The Inner Temple is gone, demolished. I suggest a rereading of Lamb's essay on "The Old Benchers of the Inner Temple." Coming at this time, it may draw to Lamb many who are not familiar with him; it may impress upon their minds—if that is needed—how the vulgar brutality of one man can ruthlessly destroy historic landmarks that have been cherished through many generations, cherished today by English-speaking people everywhere.

You will recall that Lamb begins his essay with "I was born, and passed the first seven years of my life, in the Temple," and farther on he says, "it is the most elegant spot in the metropolis." Surely, Lamb ought to know. London-bred he knew every nook and cranny of the city and loved it all; drank London with his tea, with his "gin and water," sucked it in with his tobacco, and was never at ease until he could feel London pavements under his feet. Farther on he asks those wise and deeply moving questions: "Why must everything smack of man, and be mannish? Is the world all grown up? Is childhood dead?"

Just now those questions are more than pertinent. If he were in this adult world today, he who helped his friend, Jem White, serve "banquets" to the London chimney sweeps, those sweeps who "from their little pulpits (the tops of chimneys), in the nipping air of a December morning, preach a lesson of patience to mankind," what would he say of us who can so indiscriminately murder the innocents?

Lamb has been read and loved for more than 100 years; not even Montaigne has held such sway. Lamb was loved not because of his tragic life and that he bore it bravely but largely because he could stutter and stammer his way through life with a jest here and a jest there, and then write essays of such deep understanding of humanity and its frailties.

Production Problem

A recent front-page editorial in The Post says: "If Detroit were in Germany, airplanes would be coming off those assembly lines (of the giant motor car industries whose equipment is now lying unused) in dazzling numbers. Why can't it be done here?" The answer to this rhetorical question should be fairly obvious. The difference between the production of armaments in Germany and in the United States is that production in Germany is carried on directly by the government, working in terms solely of conscripted labor and of raw materials, with no regard for invested capital or for profits.

Production in the United States is carried on primarily on a basis of profitable contracts for privately owned corporations and with the assurance that these will continue even after the present prolonged artificial emergency is over. In other words, the first concern of the present German regime is production of armaments. The first concern of our privately owned industrial plants is profits for invested capital. There is no doubt that our productive capacity could readily rival that of Germany if we were willing to use Germany's methods. This would mean the end of private capitalism here, as well as of civil liberties, freedom of the press and of many other of our much vaunted institutions.

Reactions To The Fireside Chat

The recent speech of the President to the Nation was the best of his fireside talks. There was no mincing of words, but the plain truths and facts on our relation to the present crisis in Europe.

I fully agree with him on sending England all the aid that we can, and feel that England's battle is likewise our fight, but do not believe that naziism is the worst threat to our form of Government, but that communism is.

I fear that there is not enough stress placed on the subversive forces that are working within our own country. We could hardly expect an attack by the totalitarian states from without but rather by their sympathizers from within. I fear that if we are drawn into the present conflict it may mean the end of democracy in the United States. All Americans should support the Administration in this emergency as best they can, according to their knowledge, training and experience. It is their duty to do so.

GEORGE P. RATTE.

Washington, Jan. 1.

The President's speech last Sunday night was a magnificent piece of work which will take its place in history as one of the strongest denunciations ever made of war and tyranny. If the public that heard him, and I was one of them, could have forgotten everything that had happened prior to January 1, 1940, and had simply judged the situation by the ruined cities of Belgium, France and England and the millions of people who have been affected by the war only during this year, the whole United States would not just vote for "aid to Britain short of war." They would vote for war with Germany, now and to the limit, even with our limited resources, even though we shall not be actually prepared for a great war for at least a year, even though we might all be inconvenienced and taxed in many ways, even in the face of death and privation.

But people of today do not judge what they are going to do by looking at the morning papers and acting solely on what they read there, or by looking at the pictures which portray horrible destruction by airplanes and tanks. People of today, at least in the United States, do not allow their leaders to do all of their thinking for them. People of today have a background of education and are beginning to know their history. They judge what is going on today in the light of what also happened 25 years ago and even 100 years ago.

For many months those Americans who have been on the side of Britain have had pretty much their own way. The great majority of the newspapers here have sponsored the point of view that we must not only aid Britain and her allies, but that we must get actively into the war and fight Hitler. The great part of such sentiment has prevailed in the East where many leaders have such close contacts with Britain that they allow their sentiment, or their material interests to sway them.

However, the sentiment of people in the West—in Chicago and in Cedar Rapids, Iowa and thereabouts—is entirely different.

People in the West are descendants of those pioneers who helped to free the United States from England, or emigrants who came here from Germany, the Scandinavian states, Ireland, Poland and other countries where living conditions as well as political conditions were not to their liking. They came here to enjoy "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" for which the early Americans had fought England in the Revolution. The whole idea of America appealed to them.

Those people and their descendants are not fooled by the statement that England is fighting solely for the liberties of the people of Europe. They know that England is fighting for British supremacy in Europe and on the seven seas. To them it is simply a question as to whether Britain or Germany should rule Europe.

The President's speech was a great speech but it was the speech of an idealist like Woodrow Wilson whose League of Nations failed. The world of today is not ruled by idealists but by ruthless men. We have to meet ruthlessness with common sense backed up by a realization of what happened in the past, not by what we see today in the movies and on the editorial pages.

I believe in a negotiated peace and I believe it can be accomplished by the right people. The first step is to bring Italy to our side. The King has already opened the door for us.

Respectability—

AS A GIRL, Ellen had longed for respectability as some girls long for "self-expression." By respectability she did not mean virtue—she had that—but virtue rewarded, in its proper setting. From earliest childhood she had slaved in her ranch home, spending weary hours hauling buckets of water out of a deep well and heating it on the kitchen range for laundry and baths. She wanted shining taps running hot and cold water. She wanted an electric range in place of the insatiable old stove that devoured tons of wood and kindling and made the kitchen an inferno while Ellen helped her mother cook for gluttonous, unwashed hired hands. She wanted to sit cooly behind her own coffee urn and chat with nice, clean people, instead of walking to and from the kitchen on aching feet while the men ate, passing them hot biscuits and refilling their thick, stained coffee cups.

At 19 her dreams came true. She married one of the partners in the store in Gainsboro. Their flat was small, but perfect. Hot and cold water in kitchen and bath, a breakfast room with horticultural wall paper, a cozy bedroom with green twin beds and orchid curtains and spreads, a big living room with a gas fireplace, a mulberry and blue rug, a three-piece overstuffed velour suite in mulberry and blue, a large center table placed against the back of the davenport, which faced the fireplace and "made a bed" in case of company, a low coffee table for the electric urn the store had given Alfred, an end table, a radio. Oh, the thrill of turning dials and listening to the music and ads the best people all over the country were listening to, instead of sitting at the wheezy old organ at the ranch, practicing hymns she had heard at country revivals. What fun it had been to furnish the apartment from the store, and how kind Alfred was, satisfied with everything she bought or did.

She joined the church in order to meet the right people, and studied magazines and shop windows constantly to avoid mistakes in dress and the management of her house. Every trace of the ranch life vanished from her looks, her speech, almost from her memory. She kept herself and her house carefully groomed, and learned to serve company dinners in courses, with hors d'oeuvres and the correct candles and table talk. Not one false move did she make. If uncertain about the propriety of a word or deed, the word was unspoken, the action undone. Things were Nice, or Not Nice, and she took no chances.

There was a Mrs. Patton who seemed to be equally at home in the respectable element and out of it. Many of her friends were of the young, untrammeled set the conservatives looked askance at, but she could afford to be odd, for Mr. Patton owned the bank.

When Ellen came to Gainsboro as a bride, Mrs. Patton called on her and afterwards made the remark to someone that "you could lick your way from the front door to the back and not get a mouthful of dust." The remark was repeated to Ellen, who was highly pleased, although she thought the compliment a little crudely expressed.

Ellen returned Mrs. Patton's call, and then the visits ceased. Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Patton's house shocked her. She found nothing in either she wished to emulate. With all her money, Mrs. Patton's home did not compare with Ellen's, whose belongings were all new, and nationally advertised. They could be recognized for what they were, while Mrs. Patton's furniture was scuffed, old-looking, and didn't match. Books and magazines were spilled all over everything. Mrs. Patton herself was down on the floor, playing some ridiculous game with a mob of rowdy children when she looked up and saw Ellen's incredulous eyes through the glass of the front door. She scrambled hastily to her feet and banished the children to the playroom in the basement, then greeted Ellen with belated composure and without apology for the untidy appearance of the room.

Ellen sat primly on the edge of her chair and refused a cigarette with a deprecatory gesture and a little laugh. "Oh, no, really, I don't indulge." She had been coached as to Mrs. Patton's standing and must not appear too shocked.

They discussed the best way to make jelly and the proper bulbs for a border, and the new preacher. At the end of exactly 15 minutes Ellen rose to go. The ordeal need not be repeated.

The day before Christmas, Ellen received a bottle of perfume. It had no card, so she didn't know whom to thank, but the bottle was highly decorative in rose and silver and bore the trade name of one of the most expensive perfumers advertised in Vogue and Harpers Bazaar, so it must be Right.

(Either someone as ignorant as herself of odors, or someone who knew a great deal, had sent it to her. It was "Cadena de Amor,"—Chain of Love—and had been blended originally for the mistress of a fickle-hearted King, much given to the black magic of love philters and exotic perfumes.)

Christmas morning Puritan Ellen, faultlessly dressed, walked primly down the street, visibly conscious of her unassailable virtue, trailing after her the most exotic aphrodisiac scent ever created. She entered church smelling like a royal courtesan and merely raised her eyebrow in a well-bred way when Mrs. Patton went into a fit of coughing.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Risk And Hesitation

ALTHOUGH there is risk, as the President has said, in any course we may take, the greatest risk is to follow whatever course we do take slowly, half-heartedly, and timidly.

Thus it is an arguable proposition that we should accept the triumph of the totalitarian states as predestined and acceptable. But if this is our view, we must stop talking about a two-ocean Navy to oppose them and hemisphere defense against them and the preservation of free enterprise in the United States. If our true course is to accept an Axis victory, then the safest and quickest way to follow that course is to clamp down an embargo on all shipments to Great Britain and China and send Senator Wheeler on a diplomatic mission to Berlin in order to negotiate an American version of the Hitler-Stalin pact.

IF THAT is not the course we wish to follow and mean to follow, if we mean to defend this hemisphere and the two oceans, and to support the resistance of the British and the Chinese, then the more we hesitate, haggle, and palter over the necessary measures, the greater are the risks we run. It is suicidal folly to start building a two-ocean Navy, which will not be ready until 1946, and not to make sure that there is no two-ocean alliance established in the two oceans long before the Navy is ready. It is not common sense to stand up and say we shall help the British and the Chinese, and then to argue about whether it is safer to help them inadequately than it is to help them adequately.

Those who, while not opposing aid to Britain or proposing a deal with Hitler, think it safer to help Britain only a little are for all the world like the good lady who said to her son when he enlisted in the aviation that he should be careful and at all times should fly low and fly slow. There seem to be many among us who think they can arm this country and aid Britain most safely if only they can persuade us to do it only a little and then slowly. They think they are reducing the risks if they can delay or weaken measures which in the end they cannot defeat, if they can debate for five weeks what could be settled in ten days.

But there is no safety in flying low and flying slow. There is no safety in delay, no safety in half-doing, no safety in trying to step on the gas and at the same time to jam on the brakes. That is the way to produce a disastrous crash. For that is the way to arouse your enemies and to let down your friends.

THE RISK involved in the policy which the President has formulated will be in proportion to the output of American factories, shipyards, and of the training places for mechanics and military specialists and technicians. The mass Army which is going into the training camps is merely a final reserve for a last-ditch defense in the United States, Canada, and the Caribbean if all else fails—if our measures to keep the war on the other side of the ocean fail because our support of Britain and China has proved to be too late and too little. For it is obvious, except to those who have been misled or are trying to mislead others, that an American Army cannot go to Europe when the whole problem is how to produce and transport supplies for the British fighting forces,—that if the day ever comes when the seas are open and there are ports in Europe where an army could land, the war will already be won. When Hitler is in retreat out of France, there will be a French army on his heels long before any American Army could conceivably get there.

The chances of our sending another expeditionary Army to Europe are, therefore, not in the reckoning. The outcome of the crisis of this war will be determined, so far as we are concerned, by the production and delivery of munitions of war.

IN THIS TASK the only field in which there is any risk of armed encounters with the Axis is, of course, in insuring delivery. There is a risk here which we shall have to face and to weigh. It is not the risk of total war, for there is no battlefield on which such a war could be fought. But there is a risk of armed encounters at sea, and the overall measure of that risk will be found in how quickly we can produce merchant ships, warships, planes, and weapons inside the United States. If this country does this year what it is quite capable of doing—that is, makes itself the greatest arsenal on earth—it need fear no reprisals. It will be able to supply its friends with the weapons which will exhaust its adversaries and, in the act of insuring their exhaustion, it will accumulate an invincible power of its own. There are risks here. But the risks are smaller by far than the risks of facing alone and unprepared a two-ocean alliance of unexhausted, highly armed, seasoned, and triumphant militarist states. For what this country needs is time. Give us six months more to complete the preparations to produce on a grand scale, and we shall have the power to discuss with our friends, and then with anyone else, how this war can be brought to a safe and tolerable conclusion. But those six months we must have, and no risk we run in gaining those six months can be as great as the risk of losing them.

AMERICAN security cannot be increased and the undeniable risks reduced by delaying debate in Congress, or by popular agitation, or even in the last analysis by particular measures which the President deems it necessary and wise to take: our safety lies in the full mobilization of the productive capacity of the Nation. If we could know that the whole driving power of American industry were concentrated to the task of defense during the day and every day, we could again sleep well at night. If this mighty continent goes to work as it can go to work when it goes all out, the year 1941 will see the end of doubt, division, and fear, and the gathering together of an America which is true to its past and equal to anything that the future may bring. Then we shall not only sleep well at night; in the day, having the consciousness of working hard and to a single purpose, we shall have done with anxiety.

FOR THIS we depend upon the government for the plans, the specifications, the leadership. But for the results we depend upon the directors, the managers, the technicians, and the employees of American industry. The defense of America is in their hands. They are not the conscripted employees of a totalitarian state and it is for them to show that a free industry can in fact keep our world free.

If they succeed, as I believe they will, their success will insure the future of free industry by the only means through which its future can now be insured—by an overwhelming proof of its superiority in the struggle for existence. But if American industry fails in this test, that will be the end of free industry in our time. For everywhere else free industry when put to the test has failed. If now the free peoples are defeated, there will be no future anywhere for free industry. For the economic order will not survive the catastrophic defeat of all the nations which represented that economic order. The order of free industry must be washed away if it fails in this, its final and crucial test, by the waves of the future.

BUT AMERICAN industry will not fail in the test. For in spite of some symptoms of the same decay which in the Old World caused so many businessmen and financiers to dig the pit of defeatism into which they fell, the rot has not reached the center of American industry. The world will see this year the proof that this young continent possesses the energy which, throttled down in these ten years of depression and confusion, will pour forth to astound the world.

Fair Enough

The ASCAP Brawl

THE PRESENT writing finds us, not unhappily, in the grip of a general strike or general lockout in which the big broadcasters and the great central copyright pool and collection bureau known as ASCAP are at odds over the royalty rate and other issues. ASCAP'S music is off the air as to most of the stations, and this organization seems to think that the public will come to its rescue with a great clamor for the particular combinations of squawks, squeals and moans to which it holds title.

I doubt, however, that the old hands in ASCAP privately entertain any such belief, because they are all practical men who know how easy it is to steal a new song from an old one and must realize, therefore, that in a very short time the composers, so called, in the employ of the broadcasters, can tinkle out acceptable imitations of their private stock.

ALREADY, no doubt, free-lance ghouls of the music trade have put together half a dozen variations of "Three Blind Mice," a simple but apparently inexhaustible theme which has been mined at great profit by other vandals in the last few years who have had the effrontery, incidentally, to copyright their thievings and demand royalties on the same.

Possibly, if the public is given a brief rest from those dreadful sounds which have been called music and hammered on the nerves and temperament of the American people with ever-increasing emphasis as radio grew, some benefit will come of this brawl. Old airs from the 4-cent song book are being revived, which have a tendency to soothe rather than to excite, and a spell of rest from the din might cause a revival of taste.

Certainly no other cheap and trashy fake in any of the arts has had the benefit of such pretentious indorsement as the jazz and, since jazz, the swing music of the last 30 years. The louder and more revolting the noise, the more artistic or characteristic it was said to be, when it was obvious that these horrors were the work of boors and ignoramuses and often of common thieves.

YET FAKERS with an appetite for publicity have indorsed jungle and barnyard sounds as expressions of the American artistic taste and soul and the ripening of a national music—which same opinions, if true, were either an insult to the American character or a just condemnation of a vulgar breed.

Even the so-called red-hot mammas have been saluted as interpreters of something in the spirit of the people, although it was known for a fact that this type of singing originated in a low and dirty brothel on W. Madison Street in Chicago and was characteristic of that phase of life and no other. The torch song began as and remains a lewd and frowsy expression of the lust of a backroom bum and has been standardized in its artless form out of consideration for singers who cannot sing and composers who can't compose, but only hitch together stock phrases.

These two so-called American art forms, pretty much alike, have been brayed over the air for countless hours, and, not content with that imposition, the music industry, including radio itself, has exploited a later offense called swing, in which the executioners seize on any decent work that comes to mind and disembowel it like savages torturing a missonary.

PLAGIARISM, or grave-robbing, has become respectable artistic and commercial practice in that department of the trade which is called creative. Every song writer or hack tinker is familiar with the trick of stealing a few bars of some lovely thing and surrounding it with trash, but so common is the practice that members of the craft stoutly defend it and insist that stolen material should enjoy the status of an original creation in the name of the thief.

No nation on earth ever bought as much music as the United States has in the last 30 years, but certainly no nation ever bought music quite as bad, for not even the Chinese have produced worse. Probably it has done something to the nerves of the people, for they are beaten over the ears with it from dawn to dawn, and millions have become so numb that they can sit for hours with the most horrible sounds bouncing about them and not even notice them. Some people can even read the funnies with this going on.

It must be said that ASCAP owns title to some very good American music, along with the horrors in its popular library, and that it would be a pity to lose this portion of its store. But there is no way of discriminating, and if it should come to a choice between all or nothing, complete and endless silence would be the obvious choice.

ERNEST BEVIN

In discussing labor's influence in the Churchill government, Prof. Laski says of Minister of Economic Warfare Dalton, "He is out to beat Hitler;" of Home Secretary Morrison, "He did a herculean job of reorganization," and of Labor Minister Bevin, "He has done some admirable work"

LONDON.

A NUMBER of American correspondents have written to me recently asking me for an assessment of labor's influence in the Churchill government. That is not an easy matter to undertake. For, in the first place, much of that influence is necessarily screened from public view, and, in the second, not a little of the essential work the labor ministers have accomplished—and this is particularly true of Lord Privy Seal Clement Attlee—reveals itself in the decisions of departments not directly under labor control.

Certain general things may be said at once. Labor ministers have a full share in all central decisions of the war cabinet. They have responsibility, therefore, for achievements no less than for blunders. If Dakar was not a labor plan, Mr. Attlee and his colleagues accepted that woeful experiment; if Mr. Amery's (Col. Leopold S. Amery, secretary of state for India) plans for India have left the issue where it stood before, the labor ministers deal their part in what I think is Mr. Churchill's main error of judgment. But it is not beyond the mark to attribute a certain special emphasis to their urgency. To them, above all, are due the great improvements in agricultural wages, old-age pensions, treatment of unemployed, compensation for war injuries and increases in pay for the armed forces and their dependents.

Without Labor Minister Ernest Bevin's powerful aid it is, I think, certain that industrial relations would have been far less smooth than they have been; and it is, above all, because the workers have such confidence in their representatives that administration of the very difficult problems connected with interned aliens has greatly improved since Herbert Morrison became home secretary, and he and his assistant secretary, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, have begun at least to tackle the shelter problem (they have not yet solved it) with energy and imagination.

THESE NEXT WEEKS will bring forth an official statement by the British government, regarding its war aims, of the first importance; and this again is an open secret, that the labor ministers and especially Mr. Attlee had a vital share in securing its publication and determining its character.

Of the separate ministers, Mr. Attlee appears least in public view and is quite definitely the most influential. Shy, undramatic and without a trace of egotism, he prefers to work behind the scenes. He is slow to make up his mind, but once made up it has a persistence that carries great weight. His fault is undue diffidence, which makes him silent where speech is called for. But anyone who has seen him as constantly and continuously in action as I have will yield no primacy to any minister but Mr. Churchill himself for the value of the counsel he has brought to the war effort. It is characteristic of him that neither bad news can perturb him nor good give undue confidence. He has the respect of all and the more respect the more intimately he is known.

Mr. Bevin was an outstanding figure in the trade-union world when he became minister of labor. He has done some admirable work there. Above all he has given the trade unions the status that is their due in the councils of the government and he has seen to it, with knowledge born of long experience, that the standards of labor do not relax at any point where danger to the workers' health is involved. He has initiated half a dozen experiments of importance. His public utterances have given him perhaps the widest audience of any minister except Mr. Churchill; and it is already clear that when the lines of reconstruction begin to be laid, Mr. Bevin will count as vitally as anyone in the labor side.

Arthur Greenwood, the third labor minister in the cabinet, has the difficult task of coordinating the economic efforts of the war. So far it is difficult to speak with any enthusiasm about the result. There is no satisfactory wage policy; and at least in his parliamentary utterances, Mr. Greenwood has been lost among a cloud of committees which he has not yet subdued to the central principle. His is, of course, a difficult task, for he treads his way among the most powerful vested interests in Great Britain. I do not know whether anyone could do Mr. Greenwood's job really adequately. My own impression remains one of doubt whether the prime minister has found for him the task suited to his undoubted gifts.

MR. MORRISON, after a brief period at the ministry of supply, where he did an herculean job of reorganization, has now found, I think, the task for which he is ideally suited both by temperament and experience. Mr. Morrison touches nothing that he does not make clearly his own handiwork. He is clear-headed and incisive and works with an energy that is remarkable. If he has a fault it is that of excessive tenderness for his own officials, a generous fault but one that the magnitude of the present issues makes dangerous. Perhaps, too, his own special zest for London makes him too tender with vested interests in local government which need to be handled far more roughly. But my own feeling is clear that he is on top of his work and that, as a minister, he is one of the half dozen supreme administrators this country has produced since Lord Haldane.

Hugh Dalton, as minister of economic warfare, has a post the implications of which are now far more narrow than when he undertook it before the German conquest of France and the Low Countries. It is not easy to judge his work, since almost all of it is of a necessarily confidential character. It is significant, I think, that Mr. Dalton, who before formation of the Churchill government was the best-hated labor member in the House of Commons, has a very different reputation among the Tories today. They know that, not less than Mr. Churchill himself, he is out to beat Hitler; and they know he has the special kind of energy the character of his post demands. No labor minister has had so difficult a past to live down among his critics. My own judgment is that they recognized in him a formidable master of the art he requires for his function.

THE outstanding fact regarding the labor ministers is the fullness of their unity and collaboration with the prime minister. Partly, this is the depth of the common danger that they have confronted; partly, it is the wisdom of Mr. Churchill in paying great attention to their views in those fields of which they have a special knowledge. Critics ask in bewilderment how socialists can agree so well with a prime minister who all his life has been their ardent opponent. There is a very simple answer to this view. Mr. Churchill's one aim is victory, and for it he is prepared to sacrifice all the preconceptions of his past career. The one thing he asks of any proposal is what it contributes to victory. If its contribution is a signal one, I can testify that his position as leader of the Conservative Party is not a bar to its acceptance. Labor ministers, of course, must make out a real case; and they must not, any more than their conservative colleagues, use the war situation for party advantage. Within that limit they have found Mr. Churchill open to the proposals they have to make.

I have left for the last the position of Albert Victor Alexander, first lord of the admiralty. Since Mr. Churchill himself is minister of defense and the greatest first lord of modern times, it is inevitable that Mr. Alexander should to some extent be overshadowed by his greater colleague. But the navy has great confidence both in Mr. Alexander's judgment of persons and his grasp of the large aspects of strategy. He has filled a vital role with delicacy and vigor.

All in all the position is not unsatisfactory. Great tests, of course, have still to come when the problems of peace reconstruction begin to loom. In the face of immense peril, Mr. Churchill has taught his colleagues to work with a single mind for victory. That in itself is a vital service to the future of civilization.

Two Philosophies

By Mark Sullivan

Will U. S. Get Into War?

IN THE CONGRESS that began Friday, there is one clearly dominant question, dominant in the talk of Congressmen, dominant in the talk of all Washington. As conversationally discussed, the question is phrased starkly—will America get into the war, and how soon? For more careful discussion, the question would be expressed in different ways. One way would be, how far America will go in the direction of participation in the war, and whether finally we actually enter the war.

That broad question, and the minor questions within the broad one, will be decided by this Congress. For this Congress lasts two years, and within that period we shall have answered the question. It will be answered by the 531 men who compose Congress, acting in their representative capacity and responsibility, for there will be no general election, in which the question can be an issue before the people, until November, 1942.

NO FINAL ANSWER can be given now, for the final answer depends on events as they develop. We cannot solve any future international problem by a resolution taken in advance. That is what we attempted before the war began. We thought that by a firm step taken in advance, by a rigid declaration of neutrality, we could achieve immunity from involvement. To that hoped-for end, we went the length of tying our own hands, abandoning our rights as neutrals under international law, forbidding our citizens to send ships to any belligerent, forbidding them to loan money or extend credit to any belligerent. We thought that by that we could remain neutral, escape involvement, throughout all future contingencies. Today we see that we were wrong—worse than wrong, fatuous. We have been involved since the day the war began.

While we cannot be wholly masters of our fate, we can have certain objectives, and we can preserve these objectives throughout any contingency we can now foresee. To lack clarity about objectives, to switch moment by moment from one objective to the other, is one of the most frequent causes of confusion of thinking, fatal ineffectiveness of action.

THE OBJECTIVE upon which we have proceeded so far is easily seen, almost universally approved. We are arming ourselves. We were late in starting. We want time. For gaining time, the best course is to help Britain. To that end, and the means so far taken to that end, there is practically universal assent by the American people. What we have done so far is within the limits of technical neutrality. We can do more and still remain within technical neutrality.

But the time may come when, through stress upon Britain or other circumstance, we may leave behind us this present objective of merely helping Britain. We may look in the face the problem of abandoning neutrality, of becoming a combatant in the war. We may look that problem in the face with leisure for deliberateness, or we may be forced to act upon it hastily.

If at any time we consider taking on the status of being at war with Germany and Italy and Japan, what then will be our objective? We shall need to know clearly. It will be no ordinary military objective, no ordinary territorial war.

IF JAPAN were fighting merely for the purpose of acquiring territory in Asia, we would no more go to war than we have done during several years past when she has been fighting in China for precisely that purpose.

If Italy were fighting merely to take over pieces of Africa, we would no more take account of her action than we did when she seized Ethiopia a few years ago. We might feel emotion, might sympathize with the victim and revile the aggressor, but we would not feel moved to go to war about it. Neither would Italy's attempt to expand territorially along the shores of the Mediterranean in Europe and Asia be any direct concern of ours. We would not arm to resist her nor to resist the consequences of her act, if the consequences were limited to change of ownership of territory in those distant continents.

If Germany were fighting merely to expand her territorial boundaries in Europe, or to get colonies in Africa and Asia, that would be no direct concern of ours. Only if Germany were trying to acquire land on the American hemisphere would we feel called upon to act. And if Germany's purpose were merely territorial, she would hardly reach out as far as America.

WHAT THEN would be our objective in going to war? It is to be found in a phrase used by President Roosevelt in his recent address. He said that the Axis powers, under leadership of Germany, have set up a new "philosophy of government." He said that it is impossible for that new philosophy of government to exist in the same world with the philosophy of government that is shared by Britain and ourselves. One or the other must go down. Our objective, should we go to war, would be to preserve our philosophy of government from extinction by the new philosophy.

Unless we have that objective, we have no valid objective. If that objective is ever impaired we shall cease to have a valid objective. By keeping that objective clear in the peoples' minds, many decisions will be made simpler for us.

Parents, Teachers To Broadcast

The second of a series of adult education programs will be presented by the University of Maryland over Station WJSV today at 3:30 p. m.

Dr. Weston R. Clark, of the psychology department of the university, will talk on "The Psychology of Parent-Child Relationships," and a group of parents and teachers from Bethesda-Chevy Chase will participate in a discussion.

Optimists Will Give Party for Boys Club

Members of the Boys Club of Washington will be guests of the Washington Optimist Club January 28 when the Optimists celebrate their fifteenth anniversary of settlement work among boys in the District.

Commissioners To Study Property Of Training School

The Commissioners yesterday said they would "look over" the property of the National Training School for Boys on Bladensburg Road, which was termed "unfit for Federal needs" by James V. Bennett, superintendent of the Bureau of Prisons.

Bennett suggested it be utilized by the District as a receiving or training school for juveniles. At present the institution, which occupies 316 acres, cares for Federal juvenile prisoners, both from the District and elsewhere.

It was believed in some quarters the reservation might be suitable for the District's proposed welfare development for four welfare institutions.

New Year Cards

TO WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN
Lots of luck we wish you, Bill;
Boy, you'll need it, yes, you will!
While war lords bellow "Here's to crime!"
May you get your stuff through on time!

May you be spared too many huddles
Wherein procrastination cuddles;
You know when our production's hot—
May you escape those who do NOT!

TO WINSTON CHURCHILL.
May next year all bad luck reverse;
Than this year it cannot be worse;
May you retain your health in full—
Lord knows, it's needed by John Bull!

TO WENDELL WILLKIE.
No matter what this year may cast,
It should be better than your last;
May fortune bring on speedy legs
You everything excepting eggs!

TO MARSHAL PETAIN.
Lots of luck, and how you'll need it!
Hear that inner voice and heed it!
Keep your eye on Nazi henchmen . . .
And be above all else a Frenchman!

TO MARTIN DIES.
We trust that through the coming year
You'll keep on probing, sans all fear;
Ignore the brickbats and cold water—
And do your duty as you oughter!

TO HAROLD ICKES.
Happy New Year, Harold, dear;
This you'll get if you can jeer
And pillory and smack, I guess,
Your favorite whipping boy, the press.

Ex-Rep. Swope May Be Governor Of Puerto Rico

By the United Press

Former Representative Guy Swope, of Pennsylvania, has been selected as Governor of Puerto Rico to succeed Admiral William D. Leahy, now Ambassador to France, the United Press was informed reliably last night.

President Roosevelt told his press conference yesterday he would send the name of a nominee to the Senate Monday for confirmation.

Selection of a civilian to succeed Leahy was construed to mean Mr. Roosevelt will name a military expert to take over Leahy's duties as supervisor of defense projects in the Caribbean area.

Swope, who was a Democratic member of the Seventy-fifth Congress, has been in Puerto Rico for a year as auditor general.

Dental Hygiene Group Opens Quarters Here

The National Dental Hygiene Association, Inc., established by the Martha M. Hall Foundation of New York, to promote improved dental health in the United States, has opened headquarters here in the Shoreham Building, Fifteenth and H Streets Northwest.

Randolph G. Bishop, for the past four years assistant director and campaign manager of the Washington Community Chest, has been appointed executive secretary of the association.

Rep. D'Alesandro Would Probe 2d-Hand Dealers

The House District Committee will be asked by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, to investigate assertions that second-hand dealers buy stolen goods and then sell them to former owners.

D'Alesandro said yesterday he had been informed by M. F. Massino, a plumber, of 2819 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, that some of his tools had been stolen and that he located them in a second-hand store.

The dealer refused to surrender the tools, however, until the owner paid for them. Police told him the dealer was within his rights, Massino said.

Vernon West, principal assistant corporation counsel, recommended corrective legislation recently after an investigation prompted by criticism of the system by United States Attorney Edward M. Curran.

January Promises Much In De Luxe Diversion

Special Events Beginning to Crowd Calendar; Another Premiere for National, January 14; This, That and the Other About the Theater

AS IS CUSTOMARY in any inaugural year, this new-born month of January, 1941, offers high promise of rich entertainment over and above the usual theater bills.

Mrs. Edwin M. Watson, chairman of the Inaugural Committee's subcommittee on music, makes known today that Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, two of the theater's first personages, and the distinguished dramatist, Robert E. Sherwood, are the latest artists to be added to the growing roster of those who will pool their talents to make notable the third official Inaugural Concert in honor of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, on Sunday evening, January 19, in Constitution hall.

BELL

It already has been announced that the illustrious Charles Spencer Chaplin and the National Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Hans Kindler, will participate in this brilliant program. Chaplin will give the concluding speech—that item of intense controversy—from his current picture, "The Great Dictator." Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne will do excerpts from Mr. Sherwood's superb drama, "There Shall Be No Night," and Mr. Sherwood, not to be a passive figure, will act as master of ceremonies for the entire concert—if that is what so diversified a bill may be called.

Diversified is precisely the word. It is being bruited about, as the saying is, that every branch of entertainment known to the eyes and ears of man will be represented on this gala bill—stage, screen, radio, grand opera, night clubs, the dance, etc., etc., not to mention etc.

Reservation now may be made at the symphony box office in Kitt's, 1330 G Street, if that is what has been keeping you awake o' nights.

But that is only the beginning. It is Al Costello who calls up to say that, come January 28, the new Uline Ice Arena, at Third and M Streets Northeast, will be dedicated with elan, eclat and all that sort of thing, plus the "Ice-Capades of 1941," a frozen frolic said to be snapping close at the heels of the "Ice Follies" of glittering renown. This new Ice Arena, it seems, will have a seating capacity of approximately 5,100 for its inaugural event, with an elastic arrangement that will run the customer total up to a comfortable 6,000 or 7,000 for hockey games and the like. The "Ice-Capades" has a skating cast that would knock anybody's eye practically out. More of these gay blades later.

The Pierce Hall Players wish it known that open tryouts for roles in their forthcoming production of "Accent on Youth," to be directed by L. Zaff Rogers, will be held in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets, Monday night at 8. Then, on Wednesday, January 8, Paul Alexander will audition candidates for roles in his original radio script, which is to be Pierce Hall's entry in WJSV's dramatic series now in progress. Pierce Hall won the competition last year with Mr. Alexander's "Cyclorama"—or had you frogotten?

Devi Dja, prima ballerina of the Bali Java Dancers, now cavorting on the stage at Wardman Park, rises in her place to say that when it comes to wearing a sarong, Dorothy Lamour is sarong it's positively painful. It appears, according to Miss Dja, that Dot wears her sarong in pictures as Balinese ladies wear them only in their baths. Well, who ever has been able to determine where Dorothy was going in a picture, anyway?

Our telegram of the day: "'The Cream in the Well,' a new American play by Lynn Riggs, will come to the National Theater, Washington, for a 5-day engagement, beginning Tuesday evening, January 14. Players include Martha Sleeper, Mary Morris, Leif Erikson, Myron McCormick, Ralph Theodore, Virginia Campbell, Perry Wilson and Narry Bartlsburg. Play is produced by Carly Wharton and Martin Gabel. Riggs, who is author of 'Green Grow the Lilacs,' which played Washington, and 'Russett Mantle,' has written of a turbulent Oklahoma family in 'The Cream in the Well.' It goes into New York from the Washington engagement. Best regards. WILLARD KEEFE."

So there you have the successor to "Battle of Angels," originally scheduled for January 13, but canceled by the Theater Guild as a gesture of good faith in not bringing an imperfect play to the Capital on its Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription schedule.

Carl Pitti, Yosemite National Park guide and gun expert, was signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to instruct Robert Taylor in the fine art of "leather slapping" for his forthcoming role in "Billy the Kid."

Pitti arrived from June Lake, where he has been supervising winter sports preparations to teach Taylor the rapid draw, the fan, the spin and other six-gun tricks necessary for his first Western role.

The son of Benny Pitti, former Montana cattleman who was aide to the late Will Rogers for several years, Carl Pitti has traveled throughout the United States and Hawaii with Western shows and rodeos, as trick roper, rider and expert shot. He owns a complete collection of frontier model guns and holsters which will be used in the picture.

New York, Jan. 3.

THE DANISH CONSUL in Buenos Aires is noted for his fearlessness, and for the way in which he continues, every day, to issue anti-Nazi communiques. From the time the Germans occupied his country, he has been writing articles denouncing the Nazi aggressors, and enlisting Pan-American sympathies in the cause of Denmark . . . One of the Nazi officials in Buenos Aires finally called upon the Danish consul, confronted him with these articles, and suggested that if he should continue, the consequences would be inevitable. "You have relatives in Denmark," said the Nazi, "and they will be held as hostages for your cooperation." . . . "On the contrary," said the Dane, turning to complete his anti-Nazi article of the day. "YOU'RE the one who is the hostage. Because, frankly, if anything happens to them—I will kill you. Good day."

The statue of the great, bearded poet, Whitman, is one of the best works of the great, bearded sculptor, Davidson—and it bears some resemblance to Jo . . . "Now it's a little confusing," Sherwood confided. "Sometimes I dont' know whether it's a statue of Whitman by Davidson—or a statue of Davidson by Whitman."

DORIS NOLAN, the screen star, returned from Hollywood to appear in "Cue for Passion," the play which closed last Saturday, after a short run . . . Saturday night, Miss Nolan packed her belongings at the theater, and then went to Sardi's. She seated herself at a corner table, sipped some coffee—and then tried to see what time it was. But a large vase, filled with flowers, obstructed her view of the clock in the rear of the restaurant . . . "Why don't you remove that vase, so that we can see what time it is?" Miss Nolan suggested to Vincent Sardi, jr. . . . "Oh, why bother about the time," the young restaurateur told her. "You're not at work."

ALEXANDER KING, the magazine editor, is not a joiner—especially since he was blackballed by the Farragut Club. The late Oliver Herford had insisted, despite King's protests, that his joining would be most significant and that Herford personally would sponsor him.

FOR TWO WEEKS, Herford reported: "No news yet, on your application"—until he finally related the sad tidings: "You've been blackballed." Herford, however, consoled King: "It's no reflection upon you. Last week an important bishop was blackballed. Last month a Senator was blackballed. And you almost made it. There was only one blackball" . . . King returned to his office at Vanity Fair, and reported to Frank Crowninshield . . . "I can tell you this," Crowninshield revealed. "Herford blackballed you." King was shocked, and Frank explained: "There's only one member of the Farragut Club—Herford. He holds club-sessions all alone, every afternoon, in the bench at the Farragut statue in Madison Square. He sits there smoking his cigar, thinking of all the persons he has invited to join his one-man club—and then he blackballs all of them."

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Jan. 3 (INS).—The new year looms bright and promising for Charles Laughton, who has had more offers than almost any actor. Along about March 1 he will check in at Universal to do a comedy — "Almost An Angel," for Joe Pasternak.

PARSONS

Everyone was so gay and happy at the Jack Benny party there wasn't much chance to discuss news, but I did have a chance to talk with Joe and ask if Charles Laughton has signed a contract with Universal. Joe admitted the deal, but had no time to tell me the details. Today I learned that Charles, who is in such demand, will be starred in the Norman Krasna comedy, "Almost An Angel."

Laughton will be directed by the very able Henry Koster and, come March 1, both Laughton and Franchot Tone will check in at the studio. Laughton's role gives him the same chance he had in the never-to-be-forgotten "Ruggles of Red Gap." Franchot, of course, supplies the romantic interest—and if all the girls he's been escorting hither and yon are any indication, well, he will be well versed in the art of love making.

Bette Davis drove over 500 miles to get to her wedding and as it was she almost didn't get there. A big boulder blocked the road so that she had to detour through Flagstaff. It was only on the way there that she told members of her party that she was to be married. They had all thought they were going to a New Year's party at the Dart Ranch. Jane Bryan, of course, was in on the secret and she arranged a honeymoon house for the bride and groom.

Rita Hayworth has something really to celebrate this new year. When she wanted a raise from Columbia 12 months ago, Harry Cohn compromised by saying he would give her voice lessons and groom her for stardom but no added do, re, mi. Well, Rita was a good girl and bided her time and, sure enough, today her boss tore up her old contract and handed her a new 7-year deal with double salary.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Olivia de Havilland checks in at the hospital for her appendectomy on Monday; the friends of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz hope those squabbles in Palm Springs are not serious; Freddie Brisson spent all New Year's eve trying to get Rosalind Russell on the long distance telephone; Frank Borzage, surprising as this may sound, gave his estranged wife, Rena, an automobile for Christmas; x-rays reveal the Stanley Barbees (of Coca-Cola fame) will welcome twins.

Jenny Dolly, one of the famous Dolly twins, now married to Bernard Vinissky, Chicago attorney, is visiting here with her children; Freddy Martin, who had the flu New Year's eve, was lucky to have Rudy Vallee for a friend for Rudy sacrificed his own New Year's plans and stepped in and subbed for Freddy at the Cocoanut Grove; I couldn't help but notice at the Jack Benny party how slim Mary Martin has become. She is one woman in Hollywood who must put on ten pounds; the Mocambo, Hollywood's new night spot, opens tomorrow night and many of the film folk will be on hand to give Dora and Charlie Morrison a hand.

Mickey Rooney and Linda Darnell in deep conversation at the Tropics; Edgar Bergen brought one girl to the Jack Benny party and kept a date with another to take her, he said, to the Tournament of Roses parade.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Jan. 3.

While lunching at the Derby, I ran into Harry Sherman, who said, "Now, Hedda, you've been threatening for three years to see a 'Hopalong Cassidy.' Why don't you come with me right now and see the latest, which hasn't even been previewed?" Well, it was the best offer I had during luncheon and I said, "You're on, Harry—I'm in the mood."

HOPPER

We dashed over and I saw "Doomed Caravan." Well's I'm right here to tell you it's something to shout about. Imagine—this is their fortieth "Hopalong," they're in their seventh year, and this is the first one I've seen, because we're so short-sighted in Hollywood we don't show 'em here. You've got to drive out to the small towns to get 'em. Westerns are the pictures that built up the motion picture industry—that wide sweep of California scenery, the desert, the brooks, the trees, beautiful horses, ranches, hard riding—and yet we're so surfeited with sophistication that we can't see them here.

If I were a producer, I'd grab off Bill Boyd to star in a big picture so fast it would make Harry Sherman's hair curl. Bill's the absolute idol of the kids throughout the country. He's handsome, is a better actor, with more restraint, than when he was starring for Cecil De Mille. This was Minna Gombell's first Western. She was swell. I lost my mind over the horses—and you'll never see any cruelty to animals in one of these pictures. It's the men who take the falls—there's never a horse thrown for the thrill of a sophisticate.

There wasn't a saloon in sight, no drinking, no off-color dialogue. These pictures are first on the Legion of Decency, Federation of Women's Clubs, and Parent-Teacher Association lists. It would pay our major producers to take a night off and go to an outlying theater and see a "Hopalong." They might find out what brings people into the theater. When I was in Tucson, Ariz., for the opening of "Arizona," the manager of the biggest theater there said, "It's just too bad for the million-dollar productions when we play a 'Hopalong.' They draw four to one." So I'm thanking Harry Sherman for giving me a great treat.

For years I've shouted about the fairness of Louis B. Mayer, head of Metro-Golywyn-Mayer Studios. Since I've heard of the heart-break suffered by the small-salaried people at his studio over being told in one of the trade papers last week that every person receiving less than $40 a week would get a bonus, not to exceed $25, for a Christmas present, and then not getting it, I realize a mistake has been made somewhere. I've respected Louis too long not to give him the benefit of the doubt by saying that someone, somewhere, slipped up. If they hadn't intended to pay the bonus, (which, after all, is their right) then the item in the paper should have been denied so the people who have been loyal to him for so many years wouldn't have counted on giving that money in Christmas presents to their children.

To help advertise Charlie Chaplin's new picture "The Dictator," many of his old two-reelers are being circulated around town in the revival theaters. In one called "The Paper Hanger," made 20 years ago, a printed sub-title shows Charlie saying, "I'm not always going to be a paper hanger. I'm studying to be a dictator."

Earl Carroll had a grand turnout for the opening of his new show, and the food, since Marcel Lamaze took over, is delicious. Jimmy Durante's ad-libbing was better than his planned stuff. The Six Debonairs, who did some modernistic dancing, were by way of being sensational. I'll bet they'll be snapped up for a picture. The ribbing head waiter was funny, but Harry Crocken was funnier when he ribbed him. When Bert Wheeler, as a guest, got up to dance, he stopped the show. Earl Carroll, like Harry Sherman, has found the answer by giving the customers what they want.

For Party-Goers of the Young—and Younger—Sets

With more winter parties ahead, and with St. Valentine's and Washington's Birthday gayety in the offing, both big and little sisters are giving thought these days to party dresses. Here are two styles that retain the simple girlish touch and yet are festive enough for any gala event. Below, the younger party-goer wears a perky taffeta with dainty guimpe effect of lace, and with little lace ruffles and ribbon bows. Available in pink, blue and yellow. At right, the older sister chooses for her first long party dress a combination of marquisette and silk with fitted bodice. This comes in pink or blue with silver bows at the neck.

Evening Lure Is Aided by Tricks

Hollywood, Calif.—Here are the hints of Hollywood actresses for adding lure for evening.

Joan Leslie covers up her fetching freckles of an evening by wearing a lighter shade of powder under her evening shade. This also gives a lovely opalescent glow to her skin.

After a generous fluffing with powder over her moist rouge, Geraldine Fitzgerald dips a small baby's brush in dry rouge and whisks a delicate film of it over her cheeks to highlight her entire makeup.

The narrow and imperceptible line of silver eye shadow that Rita Hayworth draws at the base of her lashes puts a real gleam in her eyes under artificial lights.

Over the Coffee Cup

with Mrs. Wilkins

Three Washington ladies were among those chosen as the world's best dressed women. Washington is also famous as the fastest growing city in the country and some say you can leave out the word "growing" . . . But we don't believe that!

Dozens of other things we are famous for could be mentioned, but if you think I'm going to skip over the fact that Washington is famous for good coffee you are very much mistaken. Wilkins is better coffee and Wilkins is the coffee in Washington. And are we proud!

How to Make Home Cheerful For Daughter

By Elizabeth McRea Boykin

"WE'RE A young couple with one daughter of 2," writes Mrs. R. A. C. "So we want to create a pleasant informal atmosphere in our house. Will you help with suggestions?

"The living room faces south but is darkened by the front porch and has light varnished woodwork, light buff paper of monotone design, tailored champagne colored curtains with pinch pleats hung on traverse rods, a 9x12 rug of dark green background with an all over pattern in tans with some pink and rose, a maple secretary, two modern end tables finished in maple, one French provincial maple side chair and a wing chair slip covered in crash in an old-fashioned rose pattern on a grey green ground.

"I will make another slip cover if the green will clash with the blue dining room which adjoins the living room. What color and material should I have for the love seat which I plan to get? A small upholstered chair needs a new slip cover—what color and material here?

Must Be Inexpensive

"Before I go further I would like to say that the note of individuality must be acquired through my sewing and with inexpensive materials. Our one good picture in the living room is a 15x19-inch black and white print of Rockwell Kent's 'And Now Where?' in a narrow natural wood frame. Would this picture be imposing enough to hang over the mantelpiece? Would you prefer a white plaster as relief or a carved wood plaque in light brown? What would you hang up above the fireplace regardless of my suggestions? What occasional tables and lamps for this living room?"

So much for the living room.

"There is a very large archway between the living room and the dining room which has a blue wall paper. The dining room also has light varnished woodwork, a dark blue and rose rug, the same champagne curtains as in the living room, a maple gateleg table with six hitchcock chairs with rush seats, a small maple buffet. What would you recommend on the wall above the buffet? We plan to get a corner cupboard."

Paint Woodwork

Both rooms would be improved if you could paint the woodwork in cream. Then to pull them together, I'd consider using the same wall paper border in both rooms, selecting a design that would blend with both. Carry this across window cornices also and side draperies of an interesting textural fabric in beige for both rooms. Have the new living room slip covers in this same beige material, then introduce more of this color in the dining room by getting your corner cupboard in blond wood and having a blond wood frame for a picture over your buffet (or the light-toned carved wood plaque might be nice here). The Rockwell Kent picture sounds all right for the space above the mantel; if you like, you might hang an interesting length of fabric on the wall behind the picture to set it off further and give it more importance.

Vitality, Basis of Good Figure, Muscles Must Be Strengthened

By Ida Jean Kain

A SMATTERING of exercise to improve your figure is of little avail unless backed up with perfect posture. Your posture is your figure, practically!

If your posture is bad, your figure is worse. When you stand in a slumped position with tummy protruding and an exaggerated incurve at the small of the back, the weight of the organs is thrown against the muscles. Even with a fairly strong muscular girdle you couldn't have a lovely figure because you are off balance and your bones are not in a position to help support you.

First, get the "feel" of good posture. That will help you to establish good posture habits. One way to line up is to stand with your back against the wall, head, shoulders and hips touching the wall, and the abdominal muscles pulled up. The heels should be two or three inches away from the wall. All right, push away with the back of your head and as you walk off point the toes straight forward. Always keep your head up, chin level, and the line at the back of the neck straight.

Not Always So Easy

Of course, it isn't always as easy as that. Your slumping may not mean that you are merely careless! It may be caused by a lowered vitality. If you actually feel too tired to stand correctly, you'd better have a thorough physical check-over by a doctor and find out why. Chances are you have been cutting your sleeping hours short, or have been neglecting your outdoor exercise, or perhaps have failed to balance your diet. When you build up your vitality, you will find it more natural to stand erect.

But if your posture faults are due to carelessness, corrective exercises will go a long way toward straightening you out. Exercises which pull the abdominal muscles up and in and push the small of the back out will counteract a tendency to protruding abdomen and sway back. Here are three good ones:

1. Lie on the back on the floor with the arms straight down at the sides, knees flexed over the chest. With vigorous jerks, pull alternate knees down against the chest.

Strengthens Muscles

2. From the same position on the floor, separate the knees widely to form a Y. Bring knees together again, and separate. This exercise strengthens the group of abdominal muscles which run on the bias.

3. Sit on the floor with the small of the back pressed against the wall, lower abdominal muscles pulled up and in, legs straight out in front. Assume and hold this position for five minutes a day and it will be infinitely easier for you to keep the abdominal wall retracted at all times.

By lying on the floor and pulling alternate knees to the chest, as shown above, you have an exercise that's not only good for your posture but will strengthen your muscular girdle and take down your hips

Make-up Should Fit Coiffure, Clothes

Hollywood, Calif.—A problem almost as puzzling as the one about "which comes first, the egg or the chicken," is the one concerning makeup and fashions. But the answer, according to Perc Westmore, Warner Bros. makeup director, is that neither comes first. They should both be in complete harmony.

"First rule," says Westmore, "is that makeup suits one's own coloring, then complement, or be complemented by, the right clothes.

"The short bob, which is gradually coming back into fashion, requires a soft, natural makeup more pink than red. Just a trace of rouge will suffice, followed by a thin dusting of powder. Select casual clothes. The little-girl fashions are perfect, especially jumpers, low-heeled shoes, pleated skirts and sweaters. Never wear a classic, upswept hair-do with a pair of walking shoes or your favorite bobbie socks.

Obviously artificial makeups are those containing a lot of purple. They look well with your classic coiffures, your exotic turbans, your fur-trimmed coats, your slim silhouettes. Shun them for sports wear or when you laze about the house in a morning frock.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Young Woman Asks, 'Code for Self-Respecting Girl, In Her Sentimental Relations With Opposite Sex'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Mine is a problem of conduct and I am coming to you for advice. My question is this: What code does a self-respecting girl have in her sentimental relations with the opposite sex? I realize this is a large order and that a volume probably could be written about it. But I would like at least a few of your straightforward remarks on the subject.

I was brought up to believe that "petting" and "petting parties" are wrong. However, it seems to be an accepted practice with many of the men and girls I know. For myself, I don't know how to "think" my way out of such situations, or how to manage them gracefully, with credit to myself.

My uncertain attitude resulted in humiliation for me the other night. I had a date with a young man who had taken me out twice before, without being objectionable. He had suggested going to a show, but instead, we drove out on a side street and parked. Against my better judgment, and after a long argument, I permitted some "petting," which made me disgusted with myself and with him. I told him how I felt and he said: "Well, you're a woman. And you should know how to handle this kind of a problem."

I would like to know this: Is a woman supposed to be able to control the emotions and actions of the man, as well as her own? I am an easy-going person with not enough force of character, I suspect. And I suppose men sense that. However, I don't want to become known as a "push-over," and I am sure I gave that impression the other night. I don't care to have a repeat performance, so please give me your best advice. Sincerely. MISS X.

Listen to Mary Haworth over Station WJSV every Saturday morning at 9:15, discussing problems from her daily mail. Letters from correspondents signing themselves, respectively, "Groping Mother," "Jean" and "Constance R." will be answered in this morning's broadcast.

Self-Respecting Person Obeys His Conscience

DEAR MISS X: Article 1 in every self-respecting girl's "dating code" is: Never tolerate a man's lovemaking in order to be obliging. The girl who operates from the premise of pleasing herself in her affectional relations with men; who has the courage to call the "stop" and "go" signals as her conscience supplies them, may show real warmth and tenderness in her attitude toward a valued beau, on occasion, without forfeiting self respect or the man's good opinion of her.

Your attitude was simply craven, in the instance of the depressing episode in the parked car on the side street. Inasmuch as the man's proffered embrace was unwelcome on that occasion, either for lack of (shall we say?) emotional affinity or because of the setting, you should have been true to yourself to the extent of putting him right at once—by telling him with pleasant finality that "petting" was "out," and such being the case, how about getting along to the show, or taking you home, as he preferred.

Your manner of speaking, in the challenging circumstances, should have reflected your essential temperament. It might have been (a) confused and apologetic, but nonetheless definite; (b) casual and amused, but purposeful; or (c) serious and straightforward and inclined to talk things out—but on the way home or to the show—so as to arrive at a permanent meeting of the minds on the subject of "petting" and all kindred topics.

In soliciting a woman's kisses or related favors, a man is being true to his feeling of the moment and he can understand and respect comparable sincerity on the woman's part, even though it takes the form of a downright rebuff. Instinctively, if not consciously, he knows the difference between expedient endurance of his caresses and genuine responsiveness—and it is the former reaction on a girl's part which makes him ashamed of both himself and her.

He is mortified for himself because of his implied lack of attractiveness, and disappointed in her for permitting both to undignify themselves, enacting an exchange that is immediately and mutually hateful because it had no emotional validity. He would far rather she cuffed him into conformity with her current emotional disinterest' than that she limply and reproachfully yield to the transient insistence of his momentary desire.

Despite his sometime conduct giving a contrary impression, the average man's interest in the average girl does not begin and end with "sex." Yet he has a certain adventurous curiosity, always, concerning the "feeling potentialities" of "behaviour philosophy" of the latest woman to catch his fancy. Given opportunity, he puts her behavior, philosophy or feelings to a researcher's kind of test—and it is the quality of the girl's personality, thus revealed, rather than the resistance or responsiveness of her reaction which heightens or lessons his interest in, and respect for her, thereafter.

You ask: "Is a woman supposed to be able to control the emotions and actions of the men, as well as her own?" From the man's viewpoint I should say no. The man expects her to be fully answerable to her own conscience for her actions, and he expects her to act in such a way as not to mislead him, and even in such a way as to oblige him to get out and stay out, if his expectations are not in conformity with her deepest feelings. M. H.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Canned Fish Aids Hostess

There comes a time in most households when a can of food taken from the emergency shelf will save the day. Canned fish is a food that meets such occasions. And tuna fish with caper sauce is a dish that guests will think you have planned leisurely instead of tossing it together for the emergency. Make it according to the following directions:

Tunafish iWth Caper Sauce

Turn the contents of a can of tuna (about 2 cups) onto a plate and steam it until it is thoroughly heated. In the meantime, melt 2 tablespoons butter, stir in 2 tablespoons flour and half teaspoon salt and gradually add 1½ cups milk. Add 3 tablespoons capers. Transfer the tuna to a platter, pour the sauce over it and dust lightly with paprika and garnish with parsley.

A can of salmon also meets the demand in an excellent way. Make it into salmon puffs by the following recipe:

Salmon Puffs

Remove the skin and bones from 2 cups salmon. Chop fine and add salt and pepper and half cup soft bread crumbs. Next add 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar and 3 egg yolks. Mix thoroughly, add the 3 well-beaten egg whites and place in 6 or 8 oiled cups, filling the cups even full. Set the cups at once in a pan containing hot water that comes to about 1 inch below tops. Bake for half hour in moderate oven, 375 degrees. Turn on hot platter, thrust sprig of parsley into center of each puff and serve with any desired fish sauce.

It's About Time

Esquire Features

IT'S ABOUT TIME to collect old lockets, either silver or gold, for a belt. Use a 2-inch wide piece of felt for belt. Fasten this with hooks at side. With narrow velvet ribbon tie a bow at top of each locket and sew to felt

Shake Quilts While Drying

Launder quilts in warm, sudsy water and rinse thoroughly in clear, warm water. Hang up to dry in a shady place. Shake the quilts several times while drying and they will not need pressing. If you want to press the quilts do so lightly on the wrong side with a warm iron.

Breakfast Treat Made at Home

Make up your own breakfast scrapple like this: Put a cup of chopped cooked pork into 3 cups of stiff cooked cornmeal mush. Pour into a loaf pan and chill until firm. Cut in half-inch slices, sprinkle with flour and cook until brown in a small amount of fat heated in a frying pan. Use up this scrapple within three days, and be sure to keep it stored in the refrigerator.

Fruit Juices Have Appeal

Fruit juices are appetizing to most youngsters. Their use should be encouraged because the juices contain valuable minerals and vitamins. Combine different juices for extra appeal. Prune and pineapple go well together, as do apple and lemon, orange and apricot and grapefruit and grapejuice. Do not add sugar unless the juices are unusually sour.

Teach Yourself The Rumba

GAYLY DANCING the rumba, easily following her partner from one variation to another!

Is this the girl who used to be such a wallflower—never asked twice to dance because she was always uncertain about her steps, forever in a pother over what her partner would do next?

The very same girl! Only, practicing at home with diagrams and directions has transformed her dancing.

Easy—with diagrams—to enlarge your repertory of dances, glide smoothly from one step to another. Try our combination of rumba steps, remembering that for the rumba you dance with heels flat on the floor, sway hips gracefully at each step.

Beginning the running step, on counts 1 and 2 take three short, quick steps forward, first on left foot, then on right, then on left. Pause. Then on counts 3 and 4 take three more running steps forward, right-left-right. Pause.

And no trick to learning combinations in other gay dances—in old favorites like the waltz and in newer hits like the conga. Knowing the steps, a few pointers on leading and following you whirl about with never a stumble.

Polish your dancing with the aid of our 40-page booklet, "Teach Yourself the Latest Dance Steps." A well-known dancing teacher gives basic steps and variations of the tango, rumba, conga, Lindy hop and Peabody; also the waltz, foxtrot, Westchester and shag.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Teach Yourself the Latest Dance Steps," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Rublees Entertain Mrs. Dwight Morrow

Friends to Meet Guest at Tea Tomorrow; Mrs. Brown, Ohio G. O. P. Committeewoman, Gives Dinner for Sen. and Mrs. Burton

A very distinguished visitor to Washington this week-end is Mrs. Dwight Morrow. She arrived yesterday afternoon to stay with Mr. and Mrs. George Rublee at their home on Broad Branch Road.

The Rublees have asked a few friends in for tea tomorrow afternoon to meet their guest. Last night they were hosts at a small dinner in honor of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, and this evening will entertain again, when the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Frank Knox will be present.

Once a Capital hostess, when the late Mr. Morrow was United States Senator from New Jersey, Mrs. Morrow has been an infrequent visitor since then. Last winter she paid a brief visit to the Rublees, but hasn't been back since that time for a stay.

After William Allan Neilson retired as president of Smith College several years ago, Mrs. Morrow was asked to serve as acting president. She installed herself in the official residence in Northampton, Mass., and proceeded to endear herself to all of the 2,000 Smith College students. Both she and her daughters—one of whom, of course, is Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg—are Smith graduates.

When a new president was chosen, Mrs. Morrow left Smith and has been living at her place in Englewood, N. J. She has continued to keep up her many interests, and her latest work is a book for children.

Mrs. Brown Fetes Senator

Another interesting visitor to the Capital is Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Brown, Republican National Committeewoman from Ohio. She was hostess at a large dinner last night at the Mayflower in honor of the newly elected Senator from that State, Harold H. Burton, and Mrs. Burton.

Among the others present were the new Senator from Maine, Ralph Brewster, and Mrs. Brewster. And thereby hangs a tale which would do credit to "Believe It or Not" Ripley. A good number of years ago, Senators Brewster and Burton were roommates at Bowdoin College. Their wives were at Wellesley College together. To make it even more incredible, the sons of Mr. Brewster and Mr. Burton roomed together years later at Bowdoin and afterwards at Harvard.

Senator Burton's colleague from Ohio, Senator Robert Taft, and Mrs. Taft were in the group last night. Another equally stanch Republican, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, was also present. Miss Deborah Burton and Robert S. Burton, who came on to see their father sworn in, were guests, as were Mr. and Mrs. William S. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. William Hitz and Mrs. William Hitz, sr. Miss Grace Burton (no relation) was also present.

Ohio Republicans Attend

On hand were most of the Republican Representatives from Ohio with their wives. They included Representative and Mrs. Charles Elston, Representative and Mrs. William E. Hess, Representative and Mrs. Robert F. Jones, Representative and Mrs. Cliff Clevenger, Representative and Mrs. Clarence J. Brown, Representative and Mrs. Frederick Smith, Representative and Mrs. John Vorys, Representative and Mrs. Harry McGregor and Representative and Mrs. George Bender.

Other guests included Frank Kent, the columnist; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gableman, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer P. Fries, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Buel, Col. and Mrs. Thad Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hart, Miss Margaret Baker and Arthur Leedle.

The hostess wore a gown of blue faille with a jacket and a corsage of gardenias. Dinner was served in the Chinese Room of the hotel, at a long table centered with tulips, jonquils, narcissus, and other spring flowers in pastel shades.

Mrs. Brown attended the opening of Congress yesterday. She plans to be here until Tuesday.

Patricia Prochnik To Sing Here At Night Club

Patricia Prochnik, who, though only 18, is making a career for herself as a torch singer, will make her first appearance in public when she begins an engagement at the Troika on Tuesday.

Last season's Number One debutante signed with Myer Davis, orchestra leader for many of the smartest private parties, earlier this winter. She has sung with him at important social affairs in Warrenton, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Boston, New York and Washington.

Miss Prochnik is the daughter of the former Austrian Minister here and Mme. Prochnik.

Mrs. Burrell, the Former Ada Green, a Mother

Mr. and Mrs. William Burrell, of Manila, Philippine Islands, announce the birth of a son, William John Burrell, on New Year's Day.

Mrs. Burrell is the former Miss Ada Green, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John W. Green, of Glendale, Calif. She is well known in Washington. She attended George Washington University and was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

English-Speaking Union Will Fete Greek Envoy

The Washington branch of the English Speaking Union will entertain at luncheon on Thursday, January 16, in honor of the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamantopoulos. The function will take place at the Willard Hotel at 1 o'clock.

The Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will preside, and the speaker will be Dr. Barclay Acheson, associate editor of the Reader's Digest and for many years a resident in the Near East.

Mary Stanley Entertains At The Lawns

Luncheon at Laurel Home Given in Honor Of Three Debutantes

With Laurel situated half-way between Washington and Baltimore, Miss Mary Jane Stanley decided to divide her guests accordingly at the luncheon she gave yesterday afternoon at the Lawn, the Laurel home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley.

The party was in honor of three debutantes, Miss Florence Magruder, Miss Lucy Clagett and Miss Mary Gwynn Carmen. It was a buffet luncheon and guests were seated at five small tables. Several bridge games followed the luncheon which featured Maryland fried chicken.

Among those from Baltimore attending were Mrs. Ernest Cory, Miss Silvine Clagett, Miss Kiki Addison, Miss Josephine Bowie Addison, Miss Sarah Welsh and Miss Betty Mills.

Representing Washington were Miss Lucy Marbury, Miss Patricia Grady, Miss Mary Imogene Neuhauser, Miss Laura Belle Wyatt, Miss Jane Wyatt, Miss Clara Sasscer, Miss Florence Fisher, Miss Beverly Marshal and Miss Elene Essary.

Miss Heileman Plights Troth

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Frank A. Heileman, of 37 Fort Hunt Road, Belle Haven, Alexandria, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Frances Heileman, to Lieut. George Mayo, jr., son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. George Mayo, of Washington.

Miss Heileman is a graduate of Knox School in Cooperstown, N. Y., and attended King-Smith Studio School in Washington. Lieut. Mayo was graduated from West Point last June and is now stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., with the Twenty-ninth Field Artillery.

The wedding will take place during the summer. The couple's engagement was announced by Col. and Mrs. Heilemen at a party at their home.

George Morrises To Give Party For Archduke Otto

Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris have issued invitations for a dinner party on January 18 and a reception on January 20 in honor of Archduke Otto of Austria, who will be accompanied by an aide, Etienne de Hedry.

They will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris during the third week in January at their home, the Lindens, in Kalorama Road.

Daughter Born To Commander And Mrs. Wright

Commander and Mrs. Jerauld Wright, of Annapolis, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on Thursday night at Columbia Hospital here.

The baby's mother is the former Miss Phyllis Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips B. Thompson, of New York, and for several years a Washington resident. Commander Wright is the son of Gen. and Mrs. William Mason Wright, of this city. Their marriage took place in Southampton, Long Island, in the summer of 1938.

Mrs. Thompson came to Washington after Christmas for a visit.

Andresses to Live In Auburn Gardens

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reasner Andress, jr., who were married on New Year's Day, will make their home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kemper J. Johnson, of Glebe Road, Alexandria, until their apartment in Auburn Gardens is completed. Mrs. Andress is the former Miss Anna Marie Johnson and Mr. Andress is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andress of this city.

The couple were married in Washington at the Church of the Good Shepherd, the Rev. Cornelius S. Abbott officiating. The bride wore a frock of dusty rose shade trimmed with matching braid and a hat of the same color. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Pattie Dungan, of Alexandria, wore moss green with black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Norman Andress, twin brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Ceremony Held in Setting of Easter Lilies At Bethesda Home, With Breakfast for 100 Afterward; Couple Leave on Honeymoon

In a setting of Easter lilies and other white flowers, Miss Cassie Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Parker, of Washington, was married yesterday to Dr. J. Lawn Thompson, jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Thompson, also of this city. The ceremony took place at noon at the Parker home, Cedarcroft, in Bethesda, Md.

The Rev. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's Church, officiated at the ceremony. The bride wore a gown of eggshell slipper satin made on regal lines with a tight-fitting waist. Her veil of heirloom rosepoint lace fell from a cluster of orange blossoms and she carried lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Frank Hight, jr. She was dressed in a turquoise-colored dress and carried ivory daisies. Charles Thompson was best man for his brother.

A breakfast for about 100 relatives and close friends followed the ceremony. Later the couple left on a honeymoon, the bride wearing a green wool dress with hat to match, a mink coat, and alligator accessories. They will make their home at 4801 Connecticut Avenue.

The bride attended the Shipley School, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Cathedral School in Washington. She is a member of the Washington Junior League.

Dr. Thompson was graduated from George Washington University Medical School.

Danish Envoy To Fete Colleagues From Scandinavia

The Minister of Denmark and Mme. de Kauffmann will entertain at a reception this afternoon for Scandinavian diplomats.

Their guests, who will number about 100, will include the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom, and the Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope, along with members of their staff.

A feature of the afternoon will be a program of Scandinavian songs to be sung by Henrietta Bagger Plum. The Minister and Mme. de Kauffman entertained at a similar party this time last year for the same group.

Mrs. Theodore Gill Gives Tea Honoring Two Debutantes

Mrs. Theodore Gill, jr., was hostess at a tea yesterday in honor of two of the season's debutantes, the Misses Patricia McKnew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKnew, and Mary Lee, whose parents are Commander and Mrs. William Justice Lee.

The party took place at the Gill residence, 3022 P Street, in Georgetown. The hostess was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. William B. Kerkam, jr., Mrs. Lee, Mrs. McKnew, Mrs. John G. Ross, Miss Kate Hyde Scully and Mrs. Rifat Tirana.

The house was decorated with spring flowers. The guests included the season's debutantes and other young people.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MRS. Elizabeth Altemus Whitney entertained at a dinner party earlier this week at her home, Llangollen, in honor of Mrs. Silvie Livingston Hazard and William P. Hulbert, who will be married on January 15.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bern Hannum 3d, who were married on December 21 in Westchester, Pa., are honeymooning in the hunt country at the Virginia home of the bride near The Plains. She was formerly Miss Nancy Penn Smith and is the daughter of Mrs. Plunkett Stewart, of Unionville, Pa. Her father was the late R. Penn Smith, onetime M. F. H. of Orange County Hunt.

MR. AND MRS. Hannum sent six horses ahead of them and are enjoying good sport, hunting with the various packs. She was graduated from Foxcroft school two years ago and made her debut in Philadelphia last season.

Their wedding was one of the largest events of the season. Miss Averill Penn Smith, a student at Foxcroft, was maid of honor. There were 12 bridesmaids and 16 ushers. Mr. Hannum is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bern Hannum, jr., of Westchester, Pa. He is attending Dickenson Law School in Carlyle, Pa., where he and his bride will live this winter.

GREEN CARTER, of Warrenton, and Harry Duffey, sr., of Middleburg, motored to Fellsmere, Fla., last week and are staying at Mr. Carter's cottage there. They took along their guns as well as dogs and plan to do some hunting.

Miss Hetty Irwin Carter and her sister, Miss Susan Ashley Carter, of Chester, Pa., are visiting Mrs. Jane Foster Palmer, at Glenville. They will be joined for the week-end by Avery Sanborn, of Swanee, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, of this city, and Archie Robertson, of Charlestown, W. Va.

The Rev. and Mrs. John Armistead Welbourn, of Leesburg, will entertain at a reception this afternoon at their home from 3 until 6 o'clock in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Seccombe, who will return from their wedding trip today. Mrs. Seccombe was, before her marriage last Saturday in Leesburg, Miss Elizabeth Claggett Welbourn.

MR. AND MRS. Edward Shirley Turner, of Goodestone, Middleburg, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cary Randolph, jr., on Long Island.

Harry McComb Bans, of New York, visited Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince for a short time in the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. William Poindexter Montague have closed their home in Middleburg and have gone to Charleston, S. C., for the winter months.

George Abell Plays Host At Gay Party

Diplomats, Senators Among Guests at His Apartment

George Abell was host at an informal cocktail party yesterday afternoon in his apartment on Twentieth Street. Senators, diplomats and members of residential society were among those who gathered in his big living room, where a bright fire helped guests forget the rain and cold outside.

The host, who is advisor to the Royal Netherlands Government, will leave today with Dr. Alexander Loudon on an official trip to the Middle West. They plan to return around January 20.

Several members of the legation staff dropped in yesterday for a highball, the men coming late from the chancery to join their wives. They included the Commercial Counselor and Mme. Molekamp, she very smart in a fur scarf with her black suit and a broadbrimmed beaver hat; the First Secretary and Mme. van Houten and the Second Secretary and Mme. Boon.

Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, in black with her favorite white carnations, chatted with Senora de Echegaray, of the Spanish Embassy. Senators Theodore Francis Green and Arthur Capper came by after the opening of Congress yesterday.

Mme. van Kaathoven was smart in black with a silver fox scarf. Mrs. Crosby Miller motored up from Warrenton for the party. William Lacy dropped in from his office at defense headquarters, joining his attractive English wife, who wore a gray tailored suit.

Mrs. Edmund Pavenstedt topped off her brown wool frock with a hip-length fur jacket. Mrs. Thomas Burke, whose husband is chief of communications for the State Department, was in black with a becoming feather hat.

Others seen: Miss Dorothea Villard, hatless and wearing a red wool frock; Glenn Abbey, of the State Department; George Williams, who has recently acquired an old farmhouse near Leesburg; Mrs. Marion Warburg; Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken, she in black with sequin lapels; Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Dr. Eugene de Savitch, Col. William Shipp, Mrs. Emil Hurja, and dozens more.

Miss Everett Becomes Bride

After spending a busy time at his first day on Capitol Hill, as secretary to newly elected Senator Abe Murdock, of Utah, Joseph Alton Jenkins was married to Miss Bett Josephine Everett last evening at 8 o'clock.

The ceremony took place in the Washington Chapel of the Mormon Church with Bishop Edgar B. Brossard officiating. It was an informal ceremony with only a few close friends present. Ray Murdock was best man.

The couple will live at Wesley Hall. Mr. Jenkins attended the University of Utah and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. The bride also attended the University of Utah.

Wallaces Staying With Mavericks At San Antonio

After an extended visit in Mexico City, where Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace represented this Government at the inauguration of President Avila Camacho, he and Mrs. Wallace have gone to San Antonio, Tex. They are guests of Mayor—formerly Representative—Maury Maverick.

Today the Wallaces will leave by car for Washington. When the couple boarded a plane in Mexico City on Thursday, the Charge d'Affaires of our Embassy, Pierre Boal, and the entire Embassy staff were at the airport to say goodbye.

Ernest Weavers On Bridal Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodrow Weaver are now on a wedding trip following their marriage on Saturday. Upon their return they will live at 1819 G Street.

The bride is the former Miss Dorothy Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Davis. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the Church of the Pilgrims with the Rev. Andrew Bird officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an eggshell satin gown. Her tulle veil was fingertip length. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Henry Myers, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pale blue taffeta gown and carried yellow roses. Mrs. Ralph Morders and Miss Margaret Stillwagon, gowned in pink frocks, were bridesmaids. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Ralph Morders was best man, and ushers were H. G. Davis, jr., and W. S. Clarida, of Greensboro, N. C. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Davis wore a tearose gown trimmed in pearls.

Izaak Walton Auxiliary Hears Talk

Accomplishments Of League Told By Dr. Radcliffe At D. C. Session

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

A conservationist's hair bristles when anyone mistakes him for a mere fisherman, Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, national vice president of the Izaak Walton League, told members of the Washington Women's Auxiliary to the organization last night. Addressing the "feminine fishermen's" group at its meeting in the Willard Hotel, he reviewed some of the accomplishments of the league and outlined plans for the convention to which Washington members will be hosts in March.

"When the first settlers came to America they found virgin forests, rich soil, streams with abundant fish and game and the earth rich in minerals, coal and oil," said Dr. Radcliffe. "Now see what we've done with it. We have cut off the timber, causing soil erosion so that it is estimated 25,000,000 acres are unfit for agriculture. The streams are choked with mud; fish and game have been depleted and the minerals wastefully taken out."

The work of the Izaak Walton League, with a membership of 100,000, justifies its motto, "Defenders of woods, water and wildlife—an organization consecrated to conservation," said Dr. Radcliffe. In 1938 from June 24 to September 30, the Waltonians in this area were responsible for taking advantage of P. W. A. grants in the inauguration of the projects to free the Potomac drainage of pollution. They marshaled civic organizations, he said, and aroused public sentiment for the work which, when completed, will have been done at a cost of $7,000,000.

The Waltonians of the District also initiated the move that resulted in the Government's taking over the C. & O. Canal for recreational use and worked through the Government departments to promote the work of eradicating water chestnuts from the Potomac, Dr. Radcliffe said.

Although many Waltonians feel that fishing and hunting are sports sacred to the male, league members have awakened to the important part a woman's auxiliary can play in conservation work, Dr. Radcliffe told the auxiliary members last night. He also told them the local league was depending on them to help make the organization's convention here next spring one of the best in its history. In the past 18 years, 17 conventions have been held in Chicago and one in Omaha. Delegates to the Washington conclave, March 27 to 29, are being invited to bring their wives and the local auxiliary will be in charge of entertainment for the women visitors.

Mrs. Radcliffe is president of the local group which was formed less than a year ago, and has a membership of 35. Other officers are Mrs. T. E. Hamill, vice president; Mrs. John F. Stowell, recording secretary; Mrs. John S. Hamill, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Harold Vermule, treasurer.

To Give Dinner

The Women's Auxiliary to the Panama Canal Society will give a dinner Wednesday, January 15, at which Maurice Thatcher, who was one of the Panama Canal Commissioners in the construction days, will show motion pictures he has taken in the Canal Zone and Central America.

The dinner will be at 6:30 at the Y. W. C. A. It is open both to members and their friends. Mrs. William D. Wrightson is in charge of reservations.

He is now writing a new book, "The War Efforts of the British Commonwealth." His subject Friday will be "America Looks at the World Today."

Reservations for the dinner are in charge of Mrs. Amelia Hood and Mrs. Madelaine Smith.

7 N. J. Leaders Subpenaed In Vote Probe

Senate Group Sets Hearing Wednesday; Hague Is Not Called

By the Associated Press

The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee made public yesterday a list of seven New Jersey officials and political leaders under subpena to testify here Wednesday, at a post election hearing.

Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, State Democratic leader, was not on the list, and Senator Adams (Democrat of Colorado), said Hague would not be called unless testimony "directly involved him."

Committee clerks said subpenas would be served on the following: Frank J. Farley, Jersey City, treasurer of Hudson County; Raymond Greer, of Jersey City, comptroller of Jersey City; James Barker, Jersey City, treasurer of the State Democratic Committee; Charles D. Quinn, Trenton, secretary of the State Democratic Committee; Clayton C. Freeman ,Trenton, chairman of the Republican State Committee; H. Alexander Smith, treasurer of the Republican State Committee, and George W. Merek, treasurer of the Republican State Finance Committee.

Representative Norton May Testify

Adams said that Representative Mary Norton (Democrat, of New Jersey), State Democratic chairman, would be asked to testify but that no subpena had been issued "because she will be available here."

Meanwhile, the Democratic National Committee reported it spent $2,438,091 in its 1940 political activity, and the Republican National Committee listed its expenditures at $2,812,003.

The disbursements of both, as reported to the clerk of the House, thus were within the $3,000,000 limit fixed by the Hatch Act.

The Democratic committee reported its receipts amounted to $2,452,131, including $105,000 in loans. It listed unpaid obligations, including bills and loans, at $423,061.

$3,931,210 Listed

The Republican committee listed its receipts for the year at $2,931,210, including $569,260 which it collected for State committees and remitted to them. The Republican report, however, did not disclose whether the committee had any outstanding obligations.

The National Republican Congressional Committee reported total receipts of $172,993 and disbursements of $147,597 from January 1 to December 31. The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee reported that it had received $102,527 and spent $101,858 during the year.

The National Committee of Independent Voters, supporting the candidacy of President Roosevelt, reported contributions of $260,887 and disbursements of $250,455 for the year.

FBI Probes 16,885 Defense Cases in Year

Investigations of national defense matters increased 10-fold during the 1940 fiscal year, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, reported to Congress yesterday.

Hoover said the bureau had handled 16,885 cases involving defense investigations, contrasted with a 1939 total of only 1,651 and a 1938 figure of 250. Hoover mentioned one extremely heavy day last May when 2,871 complaints were received.

By June 30, Hoover said, the FBI had completed its defense surveys in 270 plants on a priority list of more than 800 supplied by the Army and Navy, and said that eventually it expected to survey some 12,000 establishments.

Noting that the preventive work was of "paramount importance," Hoover asserted that "there has been a negligible amount of sabotage during the present World War in contrast to a similar period in the first World War."

Attorney General Jackson, in his report to Congress, renewed his recommendation for legislatoin legalizing the use of wiretapping in national defense investigations, and in certain other insatnces.

He also urged enactment of a law requiring all firearms to be registered with the Federal Government.

The Attorney General said that "in the nature of things" there would be violations of the Selective Service Act and other defense laws which would require investigation and prosecution. He predicted that the vast increase in Government contracts foreshadowed a "substantial growth" in civil litigation.

Solictor General Biddle reported that the Government had won 81 cases and lost 15 in the Supreme Court, making the best record in any of the eight terms for which figures were available.

D. C. Boundary Bill Is Reintroduced

Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, yesterday reintroduced the Park and Planning Commission bill to define the boundary between the District and Virginia. Last year hearings on the measure were held by Randolph's committee Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said he would also reintroduce his amendment to the bill providing for inclusion of all the Gravelly Point National Airport in the District. In the original bill, the airport would be placed in Virginia.

Rep. Johnson, of Texas, Reported Improving

Rep. Lyndon B. Johnson (Democrat), of Texas, was "decidedly improved" yesterday from the severe bronchitis which forced him to enter Doctors Hospital on his arrival here Wednesday, according to Dr. Roy D. Adams.

NEW SOUTHWEST BRANCH LIBRARY BUILDING

LIBRARIAN CLARA HERBERT

Library Opened In Southwest

The new Southwestern Branch Library, which opened last night at Seventh and H Streets Southwest, was built at a cost of $111,000—including equipment such as shelves, stacks, tables and chairs.

For its opening the building was stocked with 17,800 volumes and 92 magazines. There is an appropriation of $25,000 for the purchase of additional books. The two reading rooms will seat 30 persons each and the children's room about 70.

The structure is three stories high with soft, indirect lighting for the benefit of readers.

Coast Guard Plane and Blimp Search for River Victims

COAST GUARD PLANE PATROLLING UPPER POTOMAC

As the United States Coast Guard joined the search for two men and three boys drowned New Year's Day when their boat capsized in the upper Potomac River, reports were made yesterday that a sportsman aviator might unwittingly have been responsible for the tragedy.

George McCann, a riverman, said it was shortly before 5 p. m. when he last saw the 15-foot canvas-covered boat with its five passengers—Walter Shelton, 26, a Navy Yard worker, of Forrestville, Md., and his son, Walter, jr., 6; James O. Oliver, 29, a painter of Brookmont, Md., and his son, Dwan, 7, and 7-year-old Charles Mouser, a neighbor of the Olivers.

The boat, McCann said, was midway between Snake Island and the Virginia shore about 500 feet above Little Falls Dam. A light seaplane which had been in the vicinity took off about 500 yards upstream, McCann said.

He was in front of his home on the Maryland shore and described the plane's backwash as "plenty rough." The boat and its occupants were not seen again.

A Coast Guard plane from Baltimore searched the area yesterday for sight of the missing bodies. Today additional equipment—two surf boats and life lines—will be brought to the scene by Coast Guardsmen.

Police Kill Suspect in Robbery

Second Man Seized As Officers Spring 'Trap' in D. C. Liquor Store

Two police officers, planted in a District liquor store last night, frustrated a holdup attempted by three colored men. In a gun battle one man was fatally shot, another captured, while a third escaped in a stolen car.

William Edgar Knight, 23, of 151 S Street Northwest, died early today in Freedmen's Hospital, where he was treated for a bullet wound in the back of his head. Also arrested was Bruce Underwood, 27, 1818 Eighth Street Northwest, caught while attempting to leave the holdup scene.

Police said Knight and Underwood entered the Smith liquor store at 5514 Colorado Avenue Northwest about 9 p. m. and, announcing a "holdup," tried to force Harry D. Adams, of 2149 L Street Northwest, manager of the establishment, and Robert F. Quigley, 1025 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., a clerk, to the back of the store.

Knight, police said, carried a .45-caliber U. S. Army gun, while Underwood carried a knife.

Meanwhile, Priv. George K. Brown and Priv. George F. Kittrington, both of the Sixth Precinct Station, who were detailed to the store as the result of a series of holdups early in December, stepped from behind a partition.

Kittrington, who appeared first, said Knight fired at him once. Kittrington responded with five shots, one which felled Knight as he was running through the door. Underwood, slipping on a broken liquor bottle, stumbled and was captured.

A third man sitting in a car outside sped away. The license number, police said, belonged to a car stolen from the 1300 block of Ninth Street Northwest at 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

Police immediately began an investigation of the captured bandits in connection with a series of holdups in the Sixth Precinct about a month ago. One took place December 5 in the same store as last night's episode. Fifty dollars was stolen that time.

Capt. Joseph W. Pierson, of the Sixth Precinct, reported that officers under him had been working extra time waiting in stores throughout the precinct for bandits to return. Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who heard the police call in his automobile radio, visited the Colorado Avenue store. He later reported efforts to stop hold-ups had resulted in police stationed in stores throughout the District.

In other holdups last night Morris Ghertovese, proprietor of a grocery store at 900 Florida Avenue Northwest, lost $10 to a colored man who confronted him with a blue-steel pistol.

Willis Taylor, a taxicab driver, of 329 Elm Street Northwest, was held up by two men and a woman, all colored, who hailed him as passengers at Eleventh and W Streets Northwest. A few blocks away they ordered him out of his cab, took his wallet containing $3, and drove away in the cab.

Three Pedestrians Hurt in Traffic, Two Seriously

Three pedestrians were the victims of District traffic accidens yesterday, two of them hurt seriously.

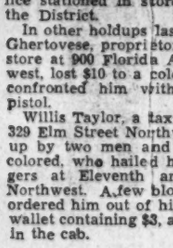
Lena P. Solomon, 54, of 5419 Ninth Street Northwest, was struck as she crossed Virginia Avenue and Eighth Street Southeast. She was treated at Casualty Hospital for severe abrasions of the scalp and her condition was described as serious. Police listed the driver as Troy E. Thorne, 22, of Friendly, Md.

While crossing Fifteenth Street at H Northwest, Madeline Long, 58, of 3033 Fifteenth Street Northwest, was struck by a car driven, according to police, by John R. Payne, of 3106 Cambridge Place Northwest. She was taken to Emergency Hospital in serious condition.

Third victim was Elizabeth Mann, 33, of Richmond, a visitor, who was struck, according to police, at Ninth and K Streets Northwest. At Emergency Hospital her condition was "undetermined." Driver of the car, according to police, was John T. Eberhardt, colored, 46, of 1137 Seventh Street Northeast.

Herrell to Speak Tonight on U. S. Employe Program

Russell H. Herrell, administrative assistant to the Public Printer and personnel director of the Government Printing Office, will be tonight's guest on "Your Government This Week," which is heard over WJSV at 7:35 o'clock. He will be interviewed by Alfred Cohan, president of the GPO Recreation and Welfare Association. Jerry Klutz, editor of The Post's Federal Diary, will comment on news of interest to Washington's 150,000 Government employes.



HERRELL

Herrell, whose hobby is the proper selection and training of employes, will tell what benefit he believes Federal employes can get from a recreational program. Two thousand of GPO's 7,000 employes are participating members of its recreation and welfare association.

The radio program is sponsored by the Federal Employes Council. The council tonight will announce a contest of interest to Government workers.

Southwestern Branch Library Is Dedicated Before Residents and Guests of Honor

Washington's Southwestern Branch Library, at Seventh and H Streets Southwest, was formally dedicated last night as 200 residents of the section and guests of honor proudly inspected the new edifice at a special preview.

The library is designed to satisfy the reading requirements of young and old in the area and is rated one of the most modern branch libraries in this part of the country.

Contrast of the ceremonies to the fate suffered by many well-known libraries destroyed in the European war was brought out by the Rev. A. N. Warner, of Marvin Methodist Church, who gave the invocation.

Dr. Ballou Presides

"While we in this country are building," he said, "in other parts of the world they are destroying."

Presiding over the ceremonies was Dr. Frank W. Ballou, of the board of library trustees.

Greetings were given by Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, also of the board of trustees, who read notes from several important guests who were unable to attend. Sending their regrets and speaking highly of the benefits the new structure will afford the community were Representative Ross A. Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi; Melvin C. Hazen, president of the District Board of Commissioners; Theodore W. Noyes, president of the board of library trustees, and John R. Young, District Commissioner.

Hazen noted in his letter that he had lived in the Southwest area most of his life and was married there.

Wender Gets First Card

Keys to the library were then transferred to the board of trustees by Capt. John L. Person, Assistant Engineer Commissioner.

Distinction of being the new library's first cardholder went to Harry S. Wender, president of the Southwest Citizens Association, who had long backed the library drive.

Wender told how as a youngster he used to get books from the Barney Neighborhood House at 470 N Street Southwest, then maintaining one of the few libraries in the city. Mrs. Clara D. Neligh, founder of the house, and one assistant, Wender said, operated the library, whereas the new Southwestern Branch Library will have 18 employes when it opens to the public on Monday, January 6.

Miss Herbert Speaks

Wender said he was so starved for reading matter that he read every book in the old library, many of them five times.

An outline of the library's facilities was given by Miss Clara W. Herbert, District librarian.

Other members of the board of library trustees at the dedication included Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the editor and publisher of The Washington Post; Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Atwood, rMs. Philip Sidney Smith and Frank J. Coleman.

Benediction was given by the Rev. C. A. Musselman, O. P., of St. Dominic's Church.

Driver to Face Court in Death Of Bicyclist

One motorist was released under bail to await Police Court action last night and a second was free, exonerated by a coroner's jury which investigated two recent traffic fatalities yesterday.

Roland M. Fayard, 19, of 405 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., posted $1,000 bond and was released a short time after the jury held him under the negligent homicide act in connection with the death of Irving R. Bell, jr., 16, also of Takoma Park.

The Bell youth was knocked from a bicycle in the 6100 block New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, December 11, and died the same day at Washington Sanitarium of a fractured skull.

Freed by the jury was Alfred D. McMillian, colored, 40, of Seat Pleasant, Md., who was driving an automobile which struck John Bridgeforth, colored, 54, of 820 Forty-eighth Place Northeast. The victim died at Gallinger Hospital December 12.

Bridgeforth was struck at Deane Avenue and Forty-eighth Street Northwest. The jury found that he walked into the path of McMillian's machine.

The Georgia State Society will hold a Congressional reception and dance from 9:30 p. m. to 1 a. m. tonight in the Shoreham Hotel.

Darr Presses Drive on Wage Assignments

Calls on Civic Groups To Back Legislation For Ban on Practice

Sefton Darr, former president of the District Bar Association, yesterday called on civic groups and individuals to support legislation to outlaw wage assignments and regulate conditional-sale contracts in Washington.

Darr acted as chairman of the bar's committee to investigate sales and collection practices of installment and loan companies. Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the association, announced Darr's appointment to the chairmanship, to succeed George D. Horning, jr., who has been called to active Navy service.

Hill said he asked Darr to serve because the original committee was named by him, as bar president, and he was familiar with the problem arising from racketeer methods of some loan and installment firms.

Hill recalled that the original committee obtained numerous reforms in the rules and procedure of the Municipal Court and sponsored bills to outlaw wage assignments and regulate conditional sales.

"From the investigation I personally made before appointing the committee in 1939," Darr said in accepting the appointment," I concluded that in recent years conditions were growing worse rather than better, and that hundreds of poor and ignorant people were being victimized by certain greedy and unscrupulous merchants who prey upon their necessities."

Added to the committee were William A. Roberts, Lawrence Koenigsberger and Milford G. Schwartz.

Maid Is Seized As Shoplifter; Finery in Room

Told by a woman they held for shoplifting that there were "a few little things" in her room, police investigated there yesterday and found $3,000 to $5,000 worth of merchandise allegedly stolen from downtown stores.

Laura Jansen, 46, a maid in the employ of Dr. Diego B. Olms, an Argentine studying dentistry here, was arrested Thursday in a department store. Policewoman Mary Ward and Detective Sergt. Michael Dowd found that in her room at 3500 Fourteenth Street Northwest there was a closet filled with merchandise, some of which bore price tags from Washington stores. Included were six coats, one a $500 fur garment; 20 dresses and five shopping bags filled with handbags, stockings, gloves and other small articles.

PUC Orders One-Man Car Use Extended

Also Sets Dates for Hearings on Electric Rates and Bus Service

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered the Capital Transit Co. to construct facilities for extended use of one-man street cars and set dates for three hearings on electric rates and enlarged bus service.

The transit company was ordered to construct a conduit track loop at the north end of the Eleventh Street line in the vicinity of Eleventh and Monroe Streets Northwest, to permit operation of one-man streamlined cars. Cost of the work was estimated at $60,000.

Dates set for hearings in Room 104, District Building were:

January 24 at 10 a. m.—Hearing on rates, tolls, charges and condition of service of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

February 4 at 2 p. m.—Hearing to consider petition of the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association relative to service, change of route and condition of equipment used by the Capital Transit Co. in serving that area.

February 11 at 2 p. m.—Hearing to consider feasibility, routes and territories to be served by the operation of a crosstown bus line by the transit company between the Northwest and Northeast sections of the District (between Westmoreland Circle and Bladensburg Road Northeast).

District Worker Overcome by Gas

Anthony A. Orange, 22, of 3922 B Street Southeast, was recovering at his home last night from the effects of illuminating gas which rendered him unconscious at the Calvin Coolidge High School yesterday.

An employe of the District Repair Shop, Orange was repairing a defective gas line when he was overcome by fumes. He was revived by the rescue squad and taken home.

Overton Plan, Dirksen Bill To Be Revived

Fiscal Formula, D. C. Tax Measure Will Be Brought Before Congress

Revival of the Overton fiscal formula in the Senate and of amendments to the District income tax, broadening the base, in the House was forecast yesterday with the return to the Capitol of sponsors of the two revenue plans.

Chairman Overton of the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations, said that he will reintroduce a resolution providing for a flexible Federal payment based on the ratio of land held by the United States to the whole area.

When first proposed this formula would have produced approximately $8,000,000 on the basis of 20 per cent of the general revenue appropriation. It probably would be larger now.

"I believe this is the opportune time for Congress to reconsider the Federal-District fiscal problem," he said. "The present lump-sum payment of $6,000,000 is inadequate."

Senator Overton recalled that the Senate was almost unanimously in favor of the plan two years ago, and he expressed a hope that the House would consider the proposal.

Reviewing the 1942 budget as recommended by the District Commissioners, Senator Overton said he was glad to note that appropriations were asked for permanent improvements. He indorsed the request for 25 additional policemen and expressed the hope the food stamp plan will be adopted.

The Senator said that he would again urge replacement of the obsolete school buildings by consolidated structures in the new supply bill.

Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, said he will ask the House District Committee to consider promptly his amendments to the District income tax. The amendments, chief of which would substitute "place of abode" for "domicile," have been approved by the Commissioners.

The amendments also would provide for the taxation of the income of nonresidents earned in the District but would allow credits for income levies paid to the States.

Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, suggested that the committee should study last year's collections to ascertain why the corporate income tax fell far short of estimates and to consider whether the rates should be increased.

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, chairman of the fiscal affairs subcommittee, said he still favors a sales tax for the District.

Girl Pardoned By Roosevelt Is Held Again

By the Associated Press

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 3.—The arm of Massachusetts law reached out today to claim a 26-year-old girl who was pardoned by President Roosevelt last month for a Washington offense in a three-year career in which she was sought by police of several cities.

Waiving extradition, Miss Helen Marie Sullivan was brought here tonight from Washington on an indictment charging her with the theft of jewelry and a fur coat in 1937 from a Lynn home where she had been employed as a maid.

Police Inspector John Muckian said she would be held overnight at Lynn and taken to Salem Jail tomorrow to await trial.

Miss Sullivan, who was orphaned when a little girl, served 32 months in prison for a grand larceny conviction in Denver, Colo., and when she was freed, was taken to Washington, charged with a previous theft of jewelry there.

STAND BY FOR INSPECTION—Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard and Selective Service executive, went to Doctors Hospital yesterday for a look at his new grandson, Murray Lyman Borden, 7-pound son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Borden, jr., born Wednesday night. Mrs. Borden is the general's oldest daughter. He has two sons already on active duty and his grandson, named "the little colonel" by officers serving under Gen. Cox, will be the official mascot of the District Guard. Nurse, Mrs. C. A. Rinker, presented Murray for inspection

Best Citizens Termed Best Army Material

Psychiatrist Asserts Civilian Record Is Clew to Potentialities

The best citizens make the best soldiers, a Louisville doctor told Selective Service psychiatrists here yesterday.

Dr. Spafford Ackerly, of the University of Louisville School of Medicine, made the statement as he addressed the psychiatrists at a regional conference in the Army Medical Center Auditorium. He based it, he said, on the words of Marshal Foch, World War commander of the French army—that the best soldiers were the ones with the best civilian records.

Dr. Ackerly advised the psychiatrists, who are members of Selective Service medical advisory boards and Army induction boards, that Selective Service trainees should be chosen because of positive qualifications for military training. He stressed the importance of precluding the induction of mentally unfit men and cautioned them that the Army "is no place to restore mental health."

Dr. Dexter M. Bullard, of Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium, discussed "Schizophrenic and Related Personalities."

Dr. Wilfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, suggested that future regional conferences be held to acquaint Selective Service psychiatrists throughout the Nation with the necessity of selecting mentally qualified men.

In an earlier session, Dr. Roscoe W. Hall, clinical director at St. Elizabeths Hospital, urged that thorough investigation of the background of registrants should be made.

Experts to Talk At Parley Here Of Secret Service

Secret Service men will compare notes and listen to leading experts on crime detection and prevention at a five-day conference in the Willard Hotel beginning tomorrow.

One of the important points of discussion will be the nationwide Secret Service "Know Your Money" educational campaign. In 1939 the campaign was credited with causing an unprecedented decrease in counterfeit money in circulation.

Speakers will include Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who will discuss "The Responsibility of Law Enforcement Agents." Among others will be James A. Bennett, director, Federal Bureau of Prisons, and Chief Inspector A. B. Moore, of New York State police.

$100,000 Goal Is Set in Drive For Boys Club

Campaign Will Open February 15, Extend Through March 13

Metropolitan Police Boys Club directors last night set the goal of their fund campaign at $100,000, highest in the six-year history of the organizations. The drive opens February 15 and extends through March 13.

Charles B. Dulcan, sr., campaign chairman, announcing the goal, said volunteer workers should have little difficulty in reaching that amount. Last year's $86,000 goal was oversubscribed.

Pledging his full cooperation with the club, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, declared the work of the organization "is a real religion in itself."

"Never before in history," he said, "has America been confronted with such grave problems. Now our country needs to cut down juvenile delinquency more than ever."

Dulcan announced the appointment of Fred A. Smith as chairman of the advance gifts committee, which will seek to raise $40,000 of the fund. Edward Carl will serve this group as vice chairman.

Morris Cafritz, club president, said this year's goal was higher than before because of the increase in club membership. He said 16,500 boys now belonged to Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs. Last year there were 14,000 members.

Adm. Oman Named To Adm. Smith Post At Medical Center

The Navy yesterday assigned Rear Admiral Charles M. Oman, veteran naval medical officer, to command the medical center here.

OMAN

Now inspector of medical activities for the Atlantic Coast, Admiral Oman will exchange posts with Rear Admiral Harold W. Smith, the present commander of the center.

Admiral Oman received the Navy Cross for World War service in command of Naval Base Hospital No. 1 at Brest, France.

At the same time, the Navy ordered Capt. Jonas H. Ingram from command of the battleship Tennessee to command destroyer flotilla 8. Ingram, one-time Naval Academy football star and coach, was recently selected for advancement to rear admiral. Capt. Charles E. Reordan will relieve him on the U. S. S. Tennessee.

U.S. Workers Ruled Eligible as Jurors

Justice F. Dickinson Letts of the District Court yesterday upheld the propriety of service of Government workers on grand juries here.

Justice Letts overruled the attack of James E. Eklund, 25, upon the validity of two indictments which accused him of three "lone sniper" murders here last autumn. Eklund's attorney, James R. Kirkland, contended that the indictments were void because a Government employe was a member of the grand jury.

Ball Tickets Go on Sale

"... THAT OTHERS MAY WALK"—Thirty thousand tickets for the President's Birthday Ball dances were placed on sale yesterday by Ticket Chairman Edward A. Dent (left), shown distributing some of them to Mrs. Irene Caldwell, chairman of the ladies ticket committee. Tickets, to sell for $2.50 each, will admit bearers to the five hotels where dances will be held January 30—the Mayflower, Wardman Park, Shoreham, Hamilton and Washington. Downton headquarters for tickets will be a booth near the entrance to the Earle Building, Thirteenth and E Streets Northwest

Zoo Director Exhibits Films Of Liberians' Secret Rites

Heading the Smithsonian-Firestone Expedition to Africa to obtain rare animals for the National Zoo, of which Dr. Mann is director, the speakers spent several months in Liberia, returning last August. They showed natural-color film of parts of the country never before pictured, including views of secret rites of the bush peoples.

With the native villages as a backdrop, the various folk dances of the African natives were shown, including also acrobatic dances and the stilt dance. Dancing, as well as folk lore, are taught to the rising generations in native bush schools offering courses that cover three years.

Despite the remoteness of jungle villages from ordinary avenues of trade, touches of white civilization have penetrated over the long trails. Traders bring shirts and shorts for the men, while the women are partial to gay cotton patterns, especially to adorn their high headdresses.

The men smoke pipes, but prefer cigarettes. Dr. Mann explained that the job of carrying his hammock, supported from a canopy which in turn rested on the heads of the four carrying boys, was a position of honor and profit, since he would pass back impartially to either boy his half-burned cigarette. For this reason, the two leaders alternated with the boys at the rear.

It was explained that the native children were the best at capturing and bringing in baby birds and animals, for which they were remunerated with their daintiest confection, a soda cracker. More substantial payment was made to the parents.

Mrs. Mann, shown feeding a number of nestlings, explained that the birds were but 1 per cent bird, and 99 per cent appetite. The collection brought to the United States for the National Zoo, included about 1,200 fish, which were caught in nets after drugging the water; also several hundred rare birds, beasts and reptiles.

Cunningham Comet Wags Wee Tail at Chagrined Harvardites

Cunningham's Comet, billed as something terrific in the celestial show, played to a dead-pan house, took on a cast of unexpected jitters and, as though disgusted itself, turned south switching a tail of only 10,000,000 miles when one of 50,000,000 miles had been on the program.

The Naval Observatory astronomers said yesterday they weren't surprised; they had thought all along it would be disappointing.

Disappointment and mystification was in the Harvard University Observatory yesterday, the Associated Press reported from Cambridge. The lack of personality in the comet was the cause.

"It is not behaving the way we had anticipated" and is rapidly disappearing from naked-eye view without giving any good show, said Dr. Fletcher G. Watson, of Harvard.

Other comets since 1910, when Halley's packed the streets and hillsides with patrons, have been of comparable brightness, the astonomer said. This one still has a chance to shine because maximum brightness will come January 16—but it won't be visible in this part of the world.

"We don't know the reason for these idiosyncracies that the comet has developed, but it has been said all along that comets are unpredictable in many of their reactions," Dr. Watson said. "The performance has been somewhat disappointing, but it may be important if we can determine any clews as to the change that has occurred."

Ferris Says Shrine Players Didn't Apply; Los Angeles Benefit Runs Into Snag

By International News Service

New York, Jan. 3.—All players, except one, who participated in the New Year's Day East-West football game, the Shriners' charity contest, have lost their amateur standing through failure to get special permission from the Amateur Athletic Union to compete.

This was revealed today by Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., who stated that those wishing to regain their amateur standing have the right to petition for reinstatement.

Fred Hartman, of Rice, who also is a hurler of merit, applied for the essential special permission and consequently retains his amateur status.

"There was a ruling on the books for years that an athlete who competes with a professional automatically loses his amateur standing," said Ferris. "The A. A. U. has adjudged (Tommy) Harmon is a pro. But since the game was for charity, it was agreed to permit the gridders to play, providing they applied for special permission."

Harmon, Michigan all-American, lost his amateur standing by accepting money to appear on a radio program immediately after the Wolverines concluded their football campaign.

Pros Not Affected By A. A. U. Ruling

San Francisco, Jan. 3 (AP).—None of the players in the Shrine East-West football game Wednesday is affected by any ruling of the Amateur Athletic Union, William Coffman, managing director of the charity contest, said tonight.

Coffman issued a statement in commenting on the ruling of Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., that all East-West players but one had lost their amateur standing by playing with or against Tommy Harmon, of Michigan, who received money for a radio appearance.

"The A. A. U. has nothing whatsoever to do with collegiate football," Coffman said, "and as far as we know, none of the players are affected by any ruling that Mr. Ferris or any of his A. A. U. group makes."

British Benefit Football Abandoned

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP).—A British war benefit football game between Eastern and Western college football stars, scheduled for Sunday, was canceled today in the face of what Movie Actor Alan Mowbray called "almost insurmountable interference."

Mowbray heads the British War Relief Association of Southern California, which sought to bring the stars of a Shrine charity game played in San Francisco last Wednesday here to perform in Memorial Coliseum.

Tom Harmon, all-America Michigan back, headed the Eastern squad.

The contest was barred from the coliseum today after tickets had been sold. Coliseum Manager Ralph O. Chick said directors were not convinced the game was "on a strictly amateur basis."

This followed an assertion in San Francisco by William Coffman, managing director of the Shrine game, that "several players stated to their coaches that they have been offered certain cash sums to play in the Los Angeles game."

To which Mowbray retorted:

"I have made no financial promise to anyone. We agreed to pay the boys' expenses at the accepted amateur scale of $4 a day and to furnish transportation back to their colleges. I also intended to give each player a watch or some other memento, but no cash.

"It seems to me that those who are doing all the shooting at this game are losing sight of the one important thing—the people who are dying and homeless in England. That has been our sole interest in staging it."

Al Brown Gets Jail Sentence In Dope Case

By the United Press

New York, Jan. 3.—Al Brown, a thin Negro who once was bantamweight champion of the world, stood before Federal Judge William Bondy today and pleaded guilty to possession of narcotics.

Then he told a story of a fabulous career in France where he acquired $280,000 worth of property in territory now occupied by the Germans. Brown said he came back to the United States with little money and tried to resume his ring career.

He took some bad beatings and one day a friend told him: "If you will take some heroin, the punches won't hurt you so much."

That was the beginning of hard times for Brown—a descent that brought him where he was today.

"Your honor," Brown said, "it's something to have been a Negro and a world champion prizefighter. You can't go back among your friends except as a champion."

Judge Bondy offered Brown the choice between an eight-month prison sentence or a term in a Government sanitarium where an attempt would be made to cure him. Brown chose the sanitarium, but said he would rather go to one of his own choosing in Harlem.

The court deferred sentence long enough for a parole officer to look into Brown's background and investigate the Harlem sanitarium.

Meanwhile the boxer was remanded to the Federal House of Detention.

Brown won the bantamweight title by defeating Vidal Gregario in an elimination tournament here in 1929. In 1935 Sixto Escobar and Lou Salica claimed the American title and in June of that year Brown lost his world title to Baltazar Sangchili in Spain.

River Vale Icemen Lose Rough Match

Near Free-for-All Averted at Close Of Furious Game At Stadium Here

By Tony Neri

The Washington Eagles, leading team in the Eastern Amateur Hockey League, triumphed over the River Vale Skeeters, 5 to 1, last night at Riverside Stadium in one of the most furious games of the season here.

A free-for-all threatened to ensue as the final whistle blew. Both referee and linesman attempted to stop hostilities but Paul Courteau of the Eagles and Hughie Bell broke away and engaged in a brisk but brief fight. The officials plan to make a report of the outburst to League President Tom Lockhart.

The 3,143 paid customers were treated to numerous thrills and the two clubs, bitter rivals, increased the tempo of play until the end.

River Vale became desperate for a scoring punch in the waning minutes of the game and removed their goalie to add a wingman for an offensive thrust. The change netted the New Jersey boys naught as Russ Rossignol, Eagle center, immediately took a long pass from Mike Germann and tallied without opposition.

Courteau Stars

Paul Courteau staged a brilliant skating exhibition and also manufactured an Eagle goal in the opening stanza.

The River Vale coach became embroiled in an argument with Referee Bill Cleary after the latter called good a goal by Len Burrage, of the Eagles, and was in the throes of calling his team off the rink when the official reversed his decision.

Rossignol led the Eagle attack with two markers, both of which came in the last period. Courteau, McBride and Frank Mailley rounded out local scoring for the night.

Swede Mattson, hard-skating Skeeter, tallied the lone goal for the visitors in the last period at 9:45. He took the puck at center and eluded two Washington defensemen to score on a sizzling shot in front of the net.

Both goalies made spectacular saves, especially Lessard of the Skeeters. Time and again the green-clad Jerseyite stopped whirlwind shots by Burns, Dewey, and Courteau. Les Colvin, Eagle goalie, made his presence felt in the last period. He halted shots by Mattson and his mates when they made a futile late-period rally.

Three Decision Changes

It was in the hectic second period that Coach McKinnon threatened to take his River Vale boys off the ice. The referee first ruled that Burrage had scored. He then reversed it and changed his ruling three times before finally nullifying Burrage's shot. The game was held up fully ten minutes before play was resumed.

Burrage had taken a nice pass from Courteau, the latter was ably assisted by Dewey on the play. On the first ruling McKinnin engaged in a heated argument with the referee and it looked as if McKinnon would again become involved in another squabble with the authorities. In the clubs' previous clash here, McKinnon had had a fight with Courteau in the penalty box and received a suspension by the league president. The suspension was lifted and McKinnon was warned about further uprisings.

After Referee Cleary made his third ruling he had the whole of the Eagles on his neck as the goal judge had flashed the light designating a goal on Burrage's shot. The referee overruled the goal judge and the game proceeded.

The Eagles came back later in the rough period to tally their second marker of the contest when McBride slithered a low one past Goalie Losard at 8:18. He was assisted by Rossignol and McCurry. Portland and Burns came near blows when Portland manufactured a penalty, checking against the boards, and upset the big Western Canadian.

The game was little more than 18 minutes old before any score was chalked up. After repeated saves by the Skeeters' goalie, Paul Lessard, Paul Courteau shot a low one in the cage after taking the disc on the rebound from off the board back of the net. It was the only tally of the period.

Norm Burns received his first penalty of the year in the initial stanza for slashing. Play throughout was mostly in the River Vale end of the rink.

Soose, Vigh Win Fights In New York

Two Middleweights Gain Prestige With Showings in Garden

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 3.—Billy Soose, a lanky lad out of Pennsylvania State College, and Ernie Vigh, an iron-chinned husky from Newburgh, N. Y., punched their way into the forefront of middleweight boxing ranks tonight in Madison Square Garden by margins as close as the width of a whisker.

Although Soose, who did a lot of boxing and dancing for ten rounds, took the feature attraction by handing Young Tami Mauriello, of the Bronx, the first defeat of his career, Vigh was the more impressive in coming back from a shaky start to outpoint Coley Welch, of Portland, Me., in a bruising battle. Soose weighed 161½, Mauriello 160, Vigh 159½ and Welch 159.

On aggressiveness Mauriello had the better of his go with Soose, and one judge, George Kelley, saw it that way. The other judge, Marty Monroe, and the referee, Frankie Fulla, cast their ballots for the Farrell, Pa., collegian largely because of the effectiveness of his punches.

Mauriello was continually charging in and forcing Soose to backpedal, but when Billy started to bounce right hands off Tami's chin, he was the better of the two. In the third heat, after Tami took an early lead, Billy staggered the Bronx lad, who up to tonight had won 24 professional fights in a row, with three solid rights to the jaw.

Again in the ninth, Mauriello's head snapped back as Soose whipped right-handers at his nose and jaw and had his face scraped and bleeding.

Vigh had to survive jarring punishment from a snapping left hand Welch delivered in order to come back to take an eight round decision. Welch punched Ernie's ears off in the early going, but the upstater simply circled around, finally got going, and had Welch tired and hurt from short left uppercuts and hard rights at the finish.

As a result of tonight's doings, Promoter Mike Jacobs wasn't quite sure just what the next step would be. Soose holds 1940 decisions over both Ken Overlin, the New York State-recognized titleholder and Tony Zale, the National Boxing Association boss, and Jacobs had planned to feed Billy to Overlin if he won tonight. However, Vigh was so impressive, Jacobs may decide ot pair him with Soose instead, with the victor getting the title tussle.

Maxie Baer's Pilot Rejects Godoy Fight

Sacramento, Jan. 3.—Ancil Hoffman said today he has rejected the offer of Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, for a fight between Max Baer and Arturo Godoy, Chilean heavyweight, in Madison Square Garden in March.

Hoffman said he wired Jacobs that he would accept the fight "gladly" for Buddy Baer but not for the former champion.

Further, Hoffman said, we informed Jacobs that Max won't fight Joe Louis for the title until the titleholder "gets back his reputation."

The Sacramento manager explained that "the champ is going around fighting a lot of stumble bums and not looking good. He is not the card he used to be. Max will take him on when he gets hot again.

"We would accept a match with Billy Conn.

"Max will not fight Godoy but Buddy will. We are going to challenge the winner of the Nova-McCarthy match for Buddy, who will take on anybody in the world."

Young Terps Winners, 26-19, Over Central

Maryland's freshman basketballers defeated Central High at College Park yesterday, 26-19. The Terps, with a team that averaged 6 feet 2 in height and 185 pounds, held a 13-11 lead at half-time and pulled away during the final periods.

Horn, of Maryland, and Central's Sam Di Blasi shared scoring honors with seven points apiece. Lagos, Central guard, and Tommy Mont, of the home team, stood out for all-round performance.

Coolidge High Wins First Game of Career

Woodward Prep Bows by 42-19 Count To Colangelo-Coached Newcomer; Losers' Stellar Center Suffers Sprained Ankle

Julian Colangelo, one of the youngest and most popular basketball coaches of the District, tossed the second high school cage team of his career on the local scent yesterday when representatives of newly-built Calvin Coolidg High earned a smashing 42-19 triumph over Woodward Prep at the Y. M. C. A.

First coach of the Anacostia quintet which made its D. C. debut in 1937, Colangelo switched to the Brightwood school at its opening this year. His novice club's performance yesterday indicated he may have something special by the time Coolidge joins public competition in 1941-42.

Though Coolidge's victory was well earned, Woodward was forced to operate without its finest player from the first quarter on. Allen Procise, lanky center and scoring ace, was taken out with a bruised ankle.

Seven of the ten players used by Coach Colangelo aided in the scoring, but the stellar performance of the day belonged to young Ralph Meiklejohn, transferee from Roosevelt High. The clever youngster rang up eight field goals to lead the point-making of both teams. Ed Dennison ranked second with 12 points.

Using a fine passing attack despite its inexperience, the Coolidge five started off in earnest to run up a 22-8 margin at the half. Procise's loss, as well as Coolidge's offense by that time had demoralized a Woodward club that had depended on Procise's shot-making for the past two years and there was little contest thereafter.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Maybe we are a sucker for sentiment, but there was a touch of the old-fashioned mellerdrammer in the eleventh-hour rescue of the New Orleans Fair Grounds race track the other day. Just when a heartless auctioneer was ready to hack up the old place into realty subdivision lots, the plot was foiled.

POVICH

Up stepped a rich oil man with a heart for horse racing and, waving a check for $525,000, he commanded the villain to unhand that hammer. "Racing will be continued at New Orleans," he said.

And so the ancient Fair Grounds, which was the scene of horse racing 25 years before the Civil War, was saved from the subdivision salesmen. A landmark of American racing didn't pass. The grave of Black Gold remains inviolate. Louisianans will still have their winter racing, and the gyps will have a place to run their horses.

We don't speak disrespectfully of the horsemen when we call them gyps. That is the trade name of the owners of the one and two-horse stables who sleep in the stalls, groom and train their own steeds, feed off their own Mulligan stew and try to find a spot for their cheap nags in the cheap fields.

Winter racing in America has come to be too fancy for the gyp horsemen since the luxurious California and Florida tracks opened to lure the tourist trade. They aren't even given stall room, and it is just as well because their patched-up steeds would be outclassed in the fancy fields at Tropical Park, Hialeah and Santa Anita. But at New Orleans they could race among themselves and there was always a chance of winning a purse that would pay off the feed bill.

Anyway, the Fair Grounds track is not to be confused with the defunct Jefferson Park track which also operated in New Orleans. Fair Grounds meetings, until they were eclipsed by the upper-case Florida winter tracks, provided the best winter horse racing in the country. It was the meeca for the folks who followed the horses from November until Spring.

A guarantee that Fair Grounds racing would be respectable was the fact that the park was operated for many years by Col. E. R. Bradley, the highly-respected gambler who once startled a Congressional Committee by frankly admitting that, "Gentlemen, my profession is gambling." Col. Bradley stood for no monkey business at his horse tracks.

Just beyond the backstretch, within the track enclosure, Col. Bradley erected an expensive church so that trainers, jockeys and stable help could worship on Sundays. He erected at the Fair Grounds the only steam-heated, glass-enclosed grandstand at any track in America. He caused the $25,000 New Orleans Derby to become the outstanding winter stake race of its time.

The same kind things couldn't be said of the other New Orleans track, Jefferson Park. At that course, the betting coups were famous before Jefferson Park was forced to throw up the sponge due to competition from Florida tracks. It was at Jefferson that the Al Capone gang operated with such success.

There was little public confidence in Jefferson Park racing and even New Orleans natives preferred to place their bets with the bookies in town. The total betting on certain races did not exceed $3,000 at the track, and the Capone gang took advantage of that fact to mop up. Here's how they would do it:

They'd select as the medium of their bets a horse that figured to win, easily. His odds in the mutuel betting would probably figure at no better than 3 to 5, but the Capone people were in no mood to accept that kind of odds. The remedy was simple. By dumping as little as one or two thousand into the mutuels as bets on other horses in the field, they'd raise the price on their horse to 6 or 8 to 1. Meanwhile they posted bets on their steed with various bookmakers throughout the country, and stood to collect as much as 8 to 1 on a true 3 to 5 shot, which they often did.

No such stigma attached itself to the Fair Grounds, however. That track folded after Col. Bradley sold out to interest himself in Hialeah Park, simply because it could not stand the competition from Florida tracks. Fair Grounds was the citadel for winter racing when winter racing was not considered very fashionable and the big stables refused to keep their horses in training during the cold months. When Florida tracks started offering their fancy purses, big shot owners changed their minds about the hazards of winter racing, but Fair Grounds with its nominal purses was still very much out in the cold.

Until last year, however, the Fair Grounds carried on a brave fight with its $600 purses still attracting the gyp-horsemen. It was their last stronghold and without Fair Grounds they could only put their horses in their barns and wonder about the feed bill. Black Gold, buried in the Fair Grounds infield, was threatened with exhumation by the realty company's steam shovels until our hero came along with that $525,000 check and the heroic statement that "racing will be continued in New Orleans." Applause.

Thomson Paces Los Angeles Golf Tourney

Turns in a Brilliant 68 on First Day of $10,000 Competition

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Jan. 3.—Jimmy Thomson's long-range seige guns stood the field on its head today as he blasted out a sub-par 68 over one of America's toughest golf courses to move into a two-stroke lead at the end of the first round of the $10,000 Los Angeles Open.

Blond-haired Jimmy, who won this rich California winter special two years ago with a 72-hole score of 273 that still stands as the tournament record, put together a pair of 34's for the par 71 Riviera Country Club course.

Only Three Stars Under Par

The Chicopee, Mass., professional was one of only three players able to shoot under par in the opening round and but six others were able to match the figure.

Sammy Snead, of Hot Springs, Va., and Emerick Kocsis, of Orion, Ill., had 70's, and it looked like tough going for the field when it is trimmed to 90 contestants.

National Open Champion Lawson Little, who won the Los Angeles event last year, took a 72 in company with two other former National Open kingpins, Olin Dutra and Ralph Guldahl. The dark horse sensation of the day was the foreign ace, Eduardo Blasi, from Buenos Aires, whose 71 could have been better with a little luck.

Other Contenders

Other leading contenders in the 71 division included Craig Wood and Johnny Bulla. Byron Nelson, four-time winner; MacDonald Smith and the amateur star, Johnny Dawson, shared the 72 spotlight with other tournament name players.

Benny Hogan dropped back with a 75 after a bad day on the greens while Jimmy Demaret, of Texas; Johnny Revolta and Dutch Harrison were one shot ahead.

Indians Sign Susce, Former Brown Catcher

Acquisition Gives Tribe Four Backstops; Rollie Hemsley Number 1

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Jan. 3.—To outward appearance, the 1941 Cleveland Indians will have only two catchers, but they made a move today which actually raised that number to four.

George Susce, husky receiver last year for the St. Louis Browns, was picked up as a free agent and signed as a coach. Although Susce was hired for duty chiefly as bullpen captain, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh made it plain Susce would be restored to the active-player list in an emergency.

Luke Sewell, another Tribe coach who is a catcher, also has done emergency backstop chores.

"Susce's only 31 and can fill in any time we run into injuries in our catching department," declared Peckinpaugh. "However, we plan to use him in the bullpen and work him with the pitchers."

Rollie Hemsley is the No. 1 Cleveland catcher for 1941 and Gene Desautels, acquired from Boston in a deal which sent Catcher Frankie Pytlak to the Red Sox, probably will be the only other catcher on the official roster.

Appointment of Susce brought the Tribe's coaching staff to three—the same number as under Oscar Vitt last season. Of Vitt's trio, only Sewell was retained. Johnny Bassler and Oscar Melillo were replaced by Earl Whitehill, former Cleveland pitcher, and Susce.

Cardinals Obtain 'Hy' Vandenberg

St. Louis, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Cardinals announced tonight the purchase of Pitcher Harold (Hy) Vandenberg from the New York Giants. Terms were not disclosed.

Vandenberg, 30-year-old righthander, has done most of his hurling the last four years for Baltimore and Jersey City of the International League, with a small part of each season with the Giants. He was sold to Rochester recently, but the deal was canceled. He is a native of Abilene, Kans.

'On the Line' . . .

Bob Considine, whose column appears in this space, is on a 10-day vacation in Hawaii. We are jealous, but he will be back.

B.-C. C. Smashes Anacostia High Five, 37-29, in Overtime

First Extra-Period Game Is 4th Win

Barons Rally to Tie Score; Poerstel Tallies Crucial Point, Takes Game Honors

For the first time a Washington high school quintet yesterday had a chance to try the new overtime rule created for scholastic basketball this season, and the result was much more satisfactory for Bethesda-Chevy Chase High than Anacostia.

The bold Barons of B.-C. C., forced to stage a counter rally to earn a draw in regulation time, scored eight points in the three-minute extra period and held Anacostia to none as they won their fourth game of the season, 37-29.

The defeat on the home court was the Indians' second in as many starts, but no shame was attached to it. They trailed from early in the second quarter until only two and one-half minutes of the game were left, tied the count at 26-26 on a foul shot by Knute Peterson, and then took a 29-26 edge on three more points by Peterson.

Keene Makes Free Toss

One minute remained to play, and Bethesda made the most of it. Bobby Keene sliced the deficit to 2 points with a foul shot, and with scant seconds left Dick Poerstel brought the count up even with a lefthanded circus toss that almost hit the ceiling and went through without touching the rim.

Its one big effort appeared to have ended Anacostia's resistance, and it was a woefully beaten club in the three-minute period which is in effect instead of last year's "sudden death" method of deciding tie games. Elton McClure gave the Barons their first lead as he followed up his own missed shot. Dick Gaist added two charity points, and baskets by Poerstel and Rice wound up scoring.

Poerstel High Scorer

Forward Poerstel once more earned scoring honors for his team, and also the game, when he hung up 12 points in Bethesda's behalf. McClure and Bob Lebling ran second with 6 each. The losers' scoring was mainly in the hands of Peterson, who was close behind Poerstel with 10 points. The only personal foul casualty of the game was Bethesda's hard-playing Luke Hashagen, whose dismissal in the third period partly accounted for the Barons' near-disastrous sag.

At the first period Anacostia boasted a 6-3 lead, but that had evaporated by half time and the Barons led, 16-10.

Western Quint Skids to 28-18 EdgeOverBlair

Late Rush Decides Clash on Slippery Court of S. S. Five

A basketball court used occasionally as a dance floor again jeopardized players' well-being and slowed up the game last night as Western's public high cage contenders slipped and skidded to a 28-18 victory over Montgomery Blair at Silver Spring.

Spectators took almost as much beating as participants on account of the glass-like surface, for nobody could come to a stop without ramming into the packed stands.

The victory was Western's second in three games and the loss Blair's second in the same number of outings. Despite the ten-point difference at the end, it was a close battle featured as much by fouls and every error in the book on the part of both teams as by the players' tendency to skate on their knees.

After three periods the score was stalemated at 16-16, but Western's triumph eventually resulted from "clutch" shooting by Hal Mitchell, Jimmy Karas and Danny Cross. Blair's only two points in the final session were on foul shots by Ford Kelley and Bob Enlow. Five other charity point attempts bounced futilely off the rim.

The hosts scored the first three point of the game but that was their total for the first eight minutes. Cross, Karas and Irving Schenker, the latter forced to leave the game on fouls at the start of the third period, rang up 7 straight points to lead at the whistle. Scoring in the second quarter was fairly even, but hardly abundant, the score at half-time being 13-7. Blair's big period was the third, in which it tallied 9 points to Western's three to knot the count.

Besides Schenker, Western also lost Mitchell via the foul route and Blair lost "Wimpy" Reynolds. Before he left the game, however, Mitchell turned in the high scoring effort of the winners, 8 points, thus tying the losers' Nick Carter for high.

In a preliminary, Western's junior varsity shut out the hosts' J. V. in the second half to take a 24-7 victory.

Noland Defeats Peak in Gloves Fight Tourney

3,000 Fans Thrilled As Amateurs Hold Sway at Turner's

Golden Gloves amateur leather-pushers made the semifinal round of their annual tournament at Turner's Arena last night a banner occasion, thrilling an estimated crowd of 3,000 from start to finish with some of the best action to date.

Though hostilities were launched in a sizzling manner by Henry Ragsdale's 112-pound decision over Donald Carter, of Pete's Athletic Club, the highlight of the evening was the heavyweight scrap between Bob Noland, National Training School, and St. Mary's John Peak. The referee stepped between the fighters after one minute and ten seconds of the third round and gave Noland the verdict, his foe obviously being unable to finish.

As quick a decision as any of the noisy fans could ask was registered by Charley Pullman, Huron A. C., a nephew of professional boxing's Phil Furr. With his relative in his corner, young Pullman smashed out a technical knockout over Curtis Locke, of National Training School, in 1:22 of the third session.

Pullman's 135-pound final opponent in the novice class will be Bill Scott, P. B. C., who last night took a forfeit victory over Olympic Club's John Ellis.

Two of the most polished youngsters ever to appear in a Gloves ring here together battled it out in a 126-pound senior bout, hard-punching Al Pavone, St. Mary's, eventually earning a finals slot with a decision over Jackie Wadsworth, unattached. The latter had won three previous Gloves titles before going down to Pavone's dazzling attacks in the final round.

Nick Latsios, St. Mary's 147-pound senior, earned a title shot at Police Boys Club's Roy Crombie when he won a rough-and-rugged decision over Pete Legge, of the National Guard. Crombie's end of the evening's entertainment was a 3-round victory over Alan Shreve, of Pete's A. C.

The final and fittingly most exciting bout of the night went to 175-pound Wilbur Mason, Merrick Boys Club, over Jack Cranford, a highly-touted amateur fighting out of the Huron A. C.

Senior Summaries

126-POUND CLASS—Bernie Cady (unattached) outpointed Charley Schneider (Colmar Manor), three rounds.

Recreation Collegiates Defeat All-Star Quint

The colored Recreation Collegiates defeated an all-star team of white college players last night, 52-41, at Banneker Junior High, with Willie Watts, S. Fox and Willie Wenn leading the attack. The stellar trio chalked up 15, 14 and 11 points, respectively. Slightly over 400 fans were on hand.

Rule Changes Aid Football Offense

3 Important Changes Made, Removing 'Gag,' Allowing Passing Anywhere Behind Line and Ending Pass Touchbacks

By the Associated Press

Clementon, N. J., Jan. 3.—The National Collegiate football rules committee gave the game's offense a break today with three major rule changes affecting substitutions, behind-the-line ball-passing and forward passes.

After a three day committee session at the nearby Pine Valley Country Club, Chairman Walter R. Okeson, of Bethlehem, Pa., announced these major changes:

1. Players may be substituted as many times as desired during a game; elimination of the rule prohibiting an incoming substitute from communicating with his team until after the ball has been put into play; when substitutions are made in the last 2 minutes of play in the first or second half, the watch will be stopped as usual when the substitute comes on the field, but will be started again as soon as the substitution is completed.

2. The ball may be handed forward at any point behind the line of scrimmage to any player and will be treated as though it were a backward pass.

3. Fourth-down forward passes which become incomplete in the opponent's end zone will be treated as though they became incomplete on the field of play instead of being ruled touchbacks. On such plays, the ball will go to the defending team at the point where the ball was put into play instead of the 20-yard line as in the past.

The committee also recommended standard numbering of players in the various positions as an aid to spectators, but said it recognized that "several years will be necessary to effect this change."

Okeson said groups of colleges throughout the country would test out the standard numbering during the 1941 season and "on the basis of this research, the committee expects next year to be in a position to define what such numbering must be."

"The general aim of the committee," Okeson said, "was to give the offense greater power without injuring the defense too much.

"We feel the free substitution rule will not only be a great help to the smaller colleges but will still further reduce injuries. The rule covering substitutions in the last two minutes of play will prevent the present practice of coaches sending in players in an attempt to delay the game."

Okeson said the second change, coveting handing the ball forward would eliminate a difficult foul which officials have had to call. Any lineman, provided he comes out of the line, will be eligible to handle the ball, Okeson explained.

The chairman added that in such plays, the ball must be handed, rather than passed, and that both players must have a hand on the ball during the transfer.

The new fourth down forward pass rule, Okeson pointed out, goes even further than the professional football rule in that under the pro rules, the ball is given to the defensive team on the 20 yard line unless the incomplete pass was thrown outside that line.

Return of the goal posts to the goal line and widening of the posts to encourage field goal kicking, both recommended by the national football coaches association, were rejected by the committee, Okeson said. He said return of the goal posts would be dangerous to the players as well as a handicap to the offensive team.

Webb's Fight Here to Lead To Title Shot

When Jimmy Webb, St. Louis light - heavyweight, squares off against Al Stephany, Brooklyn colored scrapper, Tuesday night in their eight-round match on the all-star show at Turner's Arena, Washington boxing fans may be looking at the fighter to succeed Billy Conn as champion.

For Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced yesterday that he had received word from New York that Webb would meet Tommy Tucker for the title on February 28 in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden. Articles for the bout, Menendez said, already had been signed.

Another bit of news seeping out yesterday was that Chris Dundee, Webb's manager, will fly here from Miami Beach with his new bride, to be in Jimmy's corner when he faces Stephany, who is said to be a hard hitter.

If Webb becomes champion, he will be the second titleholder in the Dundee stable. Ken Overlin, middleweight ruler, is the other.

With a shot at Steve Belloise, New York star, as the prize, the four welterweight participants on Tuesday's card will "shoot the works" in their eight-round matches. One of these pairs Phil Furr, Washington boxer, against Gene Molnar, of Detroit, and another finds Wild Bill McDowell, of Texas, tangling with Joey Spangler, of Richmond, a lad who has won his last nine straight starts, including victories over Irish Eddie Dunne and Norment Quarles, both Dundee fighters.

In the other eight-rounder, Billy Banks, Washington colored boy, will go against a newcomer. Pedro (Petey) Hernandez, Puerto Rican, who has to his credit a draw with Al Reid.

The all-star show was completed yesterday with the booking of Ray Landis, former Golden Gloves champion, for a six-rounder against Elwood Harris, of Richmond, stable-made of Spangler.

Hoyas Slated to Reach D. C. Sunday Morning

Orange Bowl Losers, Without Regrets Because of Defeat, End Fine Stay; Five to Play Pro Ball

By Jack Munhall
Post Staff Writer

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 3.—Rankling memories of its Orange Bowl defeat by Mississippi State all but erased the acclaim it has received here and throughout the country, the Georgetown University football team tonight prepared for its long trek to Washington.

Ending a pleasant nine-day stay in the "Land of Eternal Sunshine," the 34 Hoya players will entrain from Miami at 10:15 tomorrow morning and are scheduled to reach Washington at 10:30 Sunday morning.

Football attention again was directed to Georgetown today when Augie Lio was awarded a first-team guard berth on the United Press All-Bowl team, and Al Blozis was picked to a tackle position on the second team. Lio's latest honor seems to establish him definitely as one of 1940's outstanding college gridders, together with Erwin Elrod, of Mississippi State; John Kimbrough, of Texas A. and M., and Charlie O'Rourke, of Boston College. All four capped their many All-America team selections with places on the All-Bowl team, while such more highly publicized players as Tom Harmon, Rudy Mucha and Ed Molinsky, were overlooked on the basis of their performances in post-season games.

Mississippi State landed two players on the All-Bowl team, a new quirk in mythical football ratings. Capt. and Guard Hunter Corhern, who blocked the kick that was recovered for State's first touchdown, was accorded recognition.

From the fact that three of the eleven first team spots were given to Orange Bowl participants, it would seem that Miami's ninth annual classic ranked high among the New Year's Day football feasts. Here they say that the Georgetown-Mississippi State battle was not only the best played of all the Orange Bowl games, but probably brought together the two greatest teams in its history.

Last Wednesday's game was the last for most of the 18 Georgetown seniors. Six of them have offers to play professional football and probably all but one will accept. Jim Castiglia, 200-pound fullback and Georgetown's most improved player of the year, expects to pass up the chance to concentrate on professional baseball. A hard-hitting catcher, Castiglia says he has had major league offers from seven clubs, including the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox.

The five other Hoyas who plan to have at least a year's fling in the professional football ranks are Lio, Allen Matuza, Earl Fullilove, Julie Koshlap and Joe McFadden. Fullilove probably will sign his contract with the Redskins soon after returning to Washington. The 210-pound tackle is a senior, but will have to go back to Georgetown Foreign Service next year to obtain his diploma. He expects to be able to conform his studies to his football since he will be able to attend classes either in the daytime or at night.

Several of the Georgetown gridmen may, after a short rest, join Elmer Ripley's basketball team. Among these are such successful sophomore courtmen as Chris Pavich and David Wiley.

Left-Hooks Replace Field Goal Shots As Duquesne Wins

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Jan. 3.—Substituting left hooks for field goal shots, Moe Becker, of Duquesne University, and Karl Kate, of Wooster College, came close to turning tonight's bitter basketball contest between the two teams into a free-for-all fight.

The Dukes eventually won their fifth straight of the season, 40 to 33, with Kasperik piling up 14 points. Sproull led the visitors with 10 markers.

The fisticuffs came near the end with Duquesne protecting a 39-27 margin. Kate, also a gridiron player, drove for the basket near where the crowd was packed five and six deep. Becker leaped to stop the shot and the two fell into the throng, coming up swinging mitts. Kate's glasses went flying to the hardwood floor. Both players were cut slightly about the face and banished from the game.

Paralysis Fund Game Planned By Pro Five

Plans for a proposed Infantile Paralysis Fund benefit game between the Washington Brewers, local pro team, and an all-star college quintet were discussed yesterday at a luncheon given by Chris Heurich, jr., owner of the pro club, at the Mayflower Hotel.

The original idea was to have the Brewers meet a team composed of two players each from American, Catholic, Georgetown, George Washington and Maryland Universities, Sunday, January 26 in Riverside Stadium. College rules, college referees and the collegiate style of two 20-minute halves would apply.

This met with objection from coaches, particularly Bill Reinhart, of George Washington, who felt that each team playing a quarter or a portion of the game as a unit would be more effective and give a better line on college ball against pro ball.

The A. A. U. sanctioned the college players competing in the game, providing all receipts over the actual expenses be turned over to charity.

The college athletic representatives present did not have permission of university authorities, however, and particular objection was found to the Sunday date. University of Maryland officials would have to get permission of the Southern Conference and this would also apply to George Washington.

Maryland authorities also felt any work the school did toward the fund would have to be in the State.

A committee headed by Joe Holman, local publicity agent, and consisting of one member of each sports staff, will work out details and attempt to complete arrangements for the game.

Catholic U. Ready To Play Fund Game

Coach "Dutch" Bergman of Catholic University announced last night that in the event present plans for a Paralysis Fund basketball game between the professional Washington Brewers and District college teams fell through Catholic U. would be willing and ready to accept the game and cooperate wholeheartedly in the benefit.

Buckeyes Consider Gopher Line Coach

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 3 (AP).—Dr. George Hauser, Minnesota line coach, will come here next week to discuss his prospects for obtaining the job as football coach at Ohio State University, L. W. St. John, Buckeye athletic director, reported today.

St. John said Hauser, reached by telephone in Los Angeles, agreed to confer with Ohio State athletic board members Tuesday or Wednesday. Hauser has been among those mentioned as interested in succeeding Francis A. Schmidt, who resigned as Buckeye coach December 16.

Tony Novak Victor In Elimination

Kansas City, Jan. 3 (AP).—First of an elimination series to pick an opponent for Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis for a proposed bout here in March brough victories tonight to Tony Novak, Kansas City, Kans.; Lou Thomas, Indianapolis, and Otis Thomas, Chicago.

Novak, 217, knocked out Eddie Mader, New York, 192, in the second round.

Lou Thomas, 206, won a decision over Irish Dan Dowling, St. Louis, 206, and Otis Thomas, Chicago, 209½, knocked out Charley Neaves, Kansas City, 217, in the fourth round.

In a middleweight fight Deacon Logan, St. Louis, 164, knocked out Chuck Vickers, Terre Haute, Ind., 154½, in the first round.

All bouts were scheduled for ten rounds.

Jockey Meade Rides Dorimar to Victory at Tropical Park

Mucho Gusto Is Fifth in Group of 8

Man o' War Filly Wins by 2 Lengths; Mon Time Second With Maydig Third

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., Jan. 3.—Don Meade, who finally broke loose from a slump the previous afternoon and scored his first victory of the meeting, continued the winning habit here today when he booted Dorimar to a two-length triumph in the featured Daytona purse of a mile and 70 yards.

The Man o' War filly, a stablemate of Our Boots from the Woodvale Farm of Royce G. Martin, came from last place with a whirlwind rally that saw her two lengths on top at $10.20 for two. Her time was 1:43 flat.

James Emery's lightly backed Mon Time headed G. C. Greer's Maydig for the place while Mucho Gusto, the 9-year-old favorite, could do no better than fifth in the field of eight.

Assortment of Leaders

Espino Gold and Cooling Spring battled for the early lead. Mon Time stuck his head in front midway of the backstretch, then Maydig gained a narrow advantage around the stretch turn. Dorimar, last until the far turn, circled the field and closed with a burst of speed through the front lane to score going away. Mon Time outfinished Maydig for the place. Espino Gold, though a tired colt, easily beat Much Gusto.

A "good thing" clicked in the six-furlong initial contest. Trimmed, backed down to $6.90 for two favoritism, ran as expected, driving to a length and a half success under the Maryland veteran of the saddle. Hilton Dabson. John Allen could not hold a wide early advantage. He had no trouble beating off Top Staff by three lengths for the place.

Eads Adds Winner

Apprentice Wendell Eads added another victory to his list when he guided the 5-to-1 shot Silver Tower to a very handy length-and-a-half decision over the confidently played Blue Castle in the second event. Eddie Arcaro, recovered from an infected arm, accepted his first mount of the meeting on Adehala and drove the filly to third money, another length and a half back. Silver Tower outran her opposition all the way. Blue Castle, closing at 4 to 5, gained through the last quarter, but not enough to menace the winner.

It was a double for Apprentice Eads when he registered astride Ladies First in the third race. Miss Beans just missed overtaking the speedy winner, the pair finishing heads apart, while Notforme, the choice, was only another head behind in the exciting blanket finish. Ladies First showed the same early foot that marked her previous effort. This time she held on better to return $11.20.

Sweeney to Rest In Potter's Field

Cambridge, Ohio, January 3 (AP).—Thousands cheered William Sweeney as he piloted horses on Grand Circuit tracks—but tomorrow the 61-year-old former driver and trainer will be buried in Potter's Field.

Sweeney claimed that he developed several outstanding racers, including Lee Hanover. He died here December 24 of auto accident injuries and no one has claimed his body.

Tropical Park Race Charts

(Copyright, 1941, by Cecelia Publishing Co.)
WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:03. Off 2:04. Winner, A. E. Webber's br. g. (4), by Petee Wrack—Jug of Wine. Trained by W. Donnelly. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRIMMED, $6.90, $4.20, $3.10; JOHN ALLEN, $6.40, $4.70; TOP STAFF, $5.40.

TRIMMED, going in close pursuit of the leader in the early running, took command entering the stretch when briskly urged. JOHN ALLEN broke fast and showed good speed, but was unable to keep pace with the winner through the stretch. TOP STAFF worked his way up on the outside and outlasted SHEKNOWS.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good from Puett gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:33. Off 2:35½. Winner, B. F. Lisle's ch. c. (3), by Clock Tower—Momo. Trained by F. W. Hannon. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:12⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight

MISSY GREENOCK	(Peres)	111	1	8	8	8	8	8	74.15

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVER TOWER, $12.20, $3.80, $2.70; BLUE CASTLE, $2.50, $2.20; ADEHALA, $3.10.

SILVER TOWER, showing improvement, opened up a clear lead the first furlong, and continued with determination through the stretch to hold BLUE CASTLE safe. The latter, away well, dropped back in the run down the backstretch and moved up gamely on the stretch turn, but could not reach the winner. ADEHALA slipped through on the inside the last quarter mile and easily disposed of the others.

Daily Double, TRIMMED and SILVER TOWER, Paid $44.60

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:04⅘. Winner, Cleaveland Putnam's b. f. (3), by Ladysman—Sweet Beam. Trained by W. C. Winfrey. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:11⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
LADIES FIRST	(Eads)	104	6	2	1ʰ½	1ʰ½	1ʰ	1½	$4.60
MISS BEANS	(Flinchum)	106	4	5	5ʰ	4ʰ	4ʰ	2ʰᵉ	12.25
NOTFORME	(Lindberg)	108	2	6	4ʰ	2ʰ½	2ʰ½	3ʰ	3.00
REACT	(May)	115	8	1	3ʰ	3ʰ	3½	4ʰ½	5.85
HOMEWARD BOUND	(Rosen)	115	9	8	9	6ʰ	6ʰ	5ʰᵏ	26.65
DARBY DESMOND	(Bodiou)	116	5	3	2ʰ	5ʰ	5ʰ	6½	3.20
MENTAL GIANT	(LeBlanc)	108	7	7	7ʰ	8ʰ	8ʰ	7ʰᵏ	33.00
MONK'S MEMO	(Emery)	105	1	4	6ʰ	7ʰ	7½	8ʰ	14.00
ART OF WAR	(Cruickshank)	111	3	9	8ʰ	9	9	9	10.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADIES FIRST, $11.20, $5.90, $4.00; MISS BEANS, $11.20, $6.10; NOTFORME, $4.30.

LADIES FIRST, beginning fast, held her opposition safe for speed, was cleverly rated in front and had something in reserve when it came to a drive to just last. MISS BEANS, outrun early, gained steadily on the outside in the last quarter mile and wore NOTFORME down at the end. The latter, well up all the way, had no excuses.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:32. Off 3:32. Winner, W. W. Adams' b. f. (4), by Black Toney—Clonaslee. Trained by E. E. Russell. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:42⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
BOW LOW	(F. Smith)	107	5	3	3ʰ	1ʰ	1ʰ	1ʰ	1ʰ	$0.85
FLYING SILVER	(Eads)	104	2	2	2ʰ	3ʰ	2ʰ	2ʰ	2ʰ	3.20
TALENT	(Flinchum)	118	3	5	5	5	3ʰ	3ʰ	3ʰ	4.65
WANNA HYORO	(Barber)	107	4	4	4ʰᵏ	4ʰ	4ʰ	4ʰ	4ʰᵍ	7.40
VALDINA JACK	(Rousseau)	107½	1	1	1ʰ	2ʰ	4ʰ	5	5	21.45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOW LOW, $3.70, $2.50, $2.20; FLYING SILVER, $3.00, $2.50; TALENT, $2.50.

BOW LOW, under restraint until approaching the half-mile pole, took an easy lead and held sway the remainder of the trip. FLYING SILVER, a forward factor the entire trip, never seriously threatened the winner. TALENT, slow to begin, saved ground after leaving the backstretch and easily disposed of the others.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. The Daytona. Start good from Puett gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:59. Off 4:00. Winner, Woodvale Farm's b. f. (4), by Man o War—Neshaminy. Trained by S. Judge. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:43.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
DORIMAR	(Meade)	110	4	8	8	7ʰ	4ʰ	1ʰ	1ʰ	$4.10
MON TIME	(Emery)	108	5	4	3½	1ʰ	2½	2ʰ	2ʰ	16.90
MAYDIG	(Clagett)	108	2	6	5ʰ	2ʰ	1ʰ	3ʰ	3ʰ	14.85
ESPINO GOLD	(Eads)	108	8	3	1ʰ	2½	3ʰ½	4ʰ½	4ʰ	3.15
MUCHO GUSTO	(Robertson)	116	3	1	4ʰ½	5ʰ½	6ʰ	6½	5ʰ½	1.75
NIGHTLAND	(Durando)	113	7	7	7ʰ	6ʰ	5ʰ	7ʰ	8ʰᵏ	14.90
COOLING SPRING	(Snyder)	116	6	2	1ʰ	4ʰ	4ʰ	5ʰ	7ʰ	9.80
LACKAWANNA	(Anderson)	116	1	6	6ʰ	7ʰ	8	8	8	19.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORIMAR, $10.20, $5.60, $4.60; MON TIME, $14.40, $8.10; MAYDIG, $8.40.

DORIMAR, a trailer until midway around the lower turn, moved up steadily on the extreme outside, wore the leaders down through the stretch and won going away. MON TIME, a keen contender all the way, held on gamely to outlast MAYDIG. The latter, prominent on the outside the final half mile, tired slightly when the final test came.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:27½. Off 4:28. Winner, Lexbrook Stable's b. g. (6), by Boatswain—Nurse Maid. Trained by L. J. Wilson. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:11⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
JAYFCEE	(Bodiou)	116	7	1	1ʰ½	1ʰ½	1ʰ	1ʰ	$1.75

DANCING LIGHT	(Eads)	106	4	11	11	11	10ʰ	9ʰ	49.30
PAUL LEE	(Anderson)	116	9	10	10ʰ	9ʰ½	9ʰ	10ʰ	43.10
DUSKY GIRL	(Brigss)	102	2	4	5ʰ	10ʰ	11	11	20.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JAYFCEE, $5.50, $3.60, $3.10; HANDIBOY, $9.60, 7.00; SYL'S BETTY, 6.00.

JAYFCEE, quickest to get going, held his field safe for speed and won in hand. HANDIBOY, on the outside the final 3 furlongs, closed stoutly, but could not overhaul the winner. SYL'S BETTY worked her way up between the leaders after leaving the backstretch and disposed of the others in the final eighth.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:56. Off 4:56. Winner, J. E. Church's b. h. (6), by Chatover—Sicilette. Trained by L. J. Keating. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:48⅘.

ARDOUR	(Elam)	113	6	8	8ʰ	11	11	11	11	31.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SYMPHON, $15.80, $10.20, $6.30; MIGHT STEP, $16.80, 8.10; PRINCE DEREK, $4.20.

SYMPHON, in the thick of contention throughout, held on gamely when the final issue came to outlast his opposition. MIGHT STEP, prominent from the start, finished gamely to punishment and would have won in a few more strides. PRINCE DEREK, eased off the early pace, closed fastest of all through the stretch.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:25. Off 5:25. Winner, C. E. Boatswain's ch. c. (4), by Boatswain—Honey Drop. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:46⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HONEY BOAT, $70.90, $25.30, $14.50; ROLLS EASY, $19.60, 10.10; NAVARIN, $4.40.

HONEY BOAT assumed command, was under constant pressure throughout and lasted to win under hard urging. ROLLS EASY forced the pace of the leader the entire trip and made a game effort, but failed to get up in time. NAVARIN was steadied along early, moved up to contention and came with good courage in the final drive, just missing.

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear Al:

Hialeah opens next Wednesday, but I believe the meeting is close enough for me to give you a sneak preview. Hialeah is maintained as a public park during the off-season, and thousands of visitors annually enjoy its beauties. A refreshment stand and other public conveniences are provided by the Miami Jockey Club for the comfort of the visitors. A huge register is maintained and names from every place in the Nation and many foreign countries are listed therein. The beautiful flamingo flock which inhabits the infield lake regions, is one of the chief attractions. Hundreds of postal cards are mailed daily by the visitors to practically all corners of the country. The guest book shows the past year to be the biggest in the point of sightseers who make Hialeah Park one of their "must" points to see while visiting in Florida. At times during the off-season, Hialeah averages more than 1,000 visitors a day. The attendance during the 1940 racing season was 573,033. Hialeah Park is comprised of 200 acres of exquisite landscaping. The royal palm entrances to the grandstand and clubhouse are unsurpassed in tropical grandeur. Many rare plants, shrubs and trees are to be found on the grounds. The purple bougainvillea and Australian pine hedges provide colorful backdrops. Hialeah's famed flamingo flock now numbers approximately 500. These birds were originally imported from Chile, Cuba and the Argentine, and in 1939 for the first time, flamingoes were raised to maturity in this country. That first season, 62 birds were hatched on their turret-like nests of mud in the Hialeah Park infield. The young birds are white and take on their rich pink coloring with maturity. Other birds to be seen on the isalands and lakes are scarlet ibis, black swans, white swans and many species of ducks. Hialeah Park raises all its flowers and plants in greenhouses on the grounds. Hundreds of thousands of plants are raised from seed, and require as many as five transplantings before they are of a size to grace the flower boxes in the grandstand and clubhouse, and the flower beds along the drives and in the infield. Hialeah Park has a grand total seating and standing capacity of about 24,000 people.

First race—Pent Neuf appears the best suited of the platers gathered for the first event. Has the speed and is ready for the best. Gold Mesh belongs in company of this sort and figures close to the top one. Ghostfiver should be a contender.

Second race—Clocks turned in a fair effort last out and probably will make a good showing in this field. I'm going to try to make him win it. Spandau is not overmatched in this company and should be in the thick of contention. Ouragan for the minor award.

Third race—Wiesenheimer was a bang-up second in that recent try. Should improve enough off that race to take care of these. Double B. is a fair sort and will be right there among these. Go Home for the show money.

Fourth race—Endymion likes the route and is fit. Needs only a share of the racing luck to turn back these. Hillblond failed us last out, but can better that race. Barbed Retort probably will hold the others safe.

Fifth race—Clyde Tolson has all his speed as he has already demonstrated over this track. Promises to lead this crew to the imaginary wire. Aerial Bomb set a good pace before tiring in that recent try and will be a keen factor. Range Dust is not out of it.

Sixth race—Beckhampion fits in this field nicely. Has worked well and promises to do a lot of running. Gold Tower and Market Wise are speedy and should fill out the money bracket.

Seventh race—Bootless retains a flash of class that should carry him home in front of this pack. In good hands and ready for the best. Fencing has been drawing plenty of play lately and will be the one to beat. Chance Ray for the show end.

Eighth race—Perlette appears to have an edge over these. The distance suits and I'm going to string along. The Runner and County Bond to take care of the place and show positions.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take Pick Out, Sunabell and Spiteful.

Best Bet—Wiesenheimer.

Jockey Kurtsinger Becomes Landlord; Gets Big Apartment

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 3.—Charley Kurtsinger, 33, who rode two Kentucky Derby winners, is a landlord now.

The widely-known jockey, who won the racing classic on Twenty Grand and War Admiral, took possession of a ten-apartment building on Cherokee Parkway today.

The building, owned by George W. Langford, Louisville and Miami capitalist, was exchanged for Kurtsinger's 197-acre farm near Anchorage, Ky., close to Louisville.

Specific terms of the transaction were not revealed but it was understood to involve around $75,000. Kurtsinger has owned the farm since 1931.

Weights for Widener Announced; Top Horses Now in California

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Jan. 3.—W. L. Brann's Challedon and Charles S. Howard's Kayak II—both now racing in California—have been allotted top weights for the $50,000 added Widener Stake at Hialeah Park March 1.

Should Challedon come to Florida for the race, he will be assigned 132 pounds, while Kayak II will carry 128.

Of the horses training for Hialeah's opening next Wednesday, Bimelech, voted the outstanding 3-year-old of 1940, will be burdened with 126 pounds. The mighty thoroughbred owned by E. B. Bradley, won $110,005 during the year.

Howard's Mioland drew 125 pounds for the Widener but may continue racing

Retail Sales Here Spurt

Due to seasonal influences and calendar differences, department stores sales in Washington soared 96 per cent in the week ended December 28, as compared with the week ended December 30, 1939.

The Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond, which made the report pointed out that the latest week contained two days of holiday trade while the corresponding week in 1939 had no Christmas shopping rush.

In the four weeks ended December 28, retail sales here showed a 20 per cent gain over the like 1939 period. The fifth Federal Reserve district, in the same four weeks, displayed at 17 per cent increase.

By Federal Reserve districts, the gains for the week ended December 28 were: Boston, 45; New York, 50; Philadelphia, 68; Cleveland, 52; Richmond, 74; Atlanta, 97; Chicago, 68; St. Louis, 61; Kansas City, 54; Dallas, 58, and San Francisco, 64.

Wilkins Dividend Voted

Directors of John H. Wilkins Co., Washington, have declared a 4 per cent semi-annual dividend on preferred stock and a $1.50 dividend on common stock, both payable January 15.

Ralph Cipriano for the year just ended led the Washington branch of New York Life Insurance Co. in volume of paid business, Agency Director Earl D. Krewson announced yesterday.

Wheat Storage Under U. S. Loans Continues Rise

By the Associated Press

The Commodity Credit Corporation said today that 271,410,744 bushels of 1940 wheat had been reported stored under the "ever-normal granary" loan as of December 31, expiration date for grower applications for such loans.

Growers were advanced $195,915,388 on this grain. Officials said that the final figures would be a little larger, as loan applications filed on December 31 had not yet been reported.

North Dakota was first with $91,531 loans involving 56,348,383 bushels of wheat.

The amount of 1939 wheat stored under a similar program on the corresponding date that year was 166,180,086 bushels, with a loan value of $116,259,395.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP).—Wheat prices fluctuated nervously within a ⅞-cent range today but were unable to move out of the tractor rut in which they have been confined so far in 1941.

Brokers said price movements reflected sporadic buying attributed largely to consuming interests but failure of demand from this source to expand materially with the new year disappointed many dealers and was blamed for the market's drifting tendency. At the same time, however, dealers were unwilling to press the selling side in view of potential demand and reduced commercial supplies because of the loan program.

Prices dipped ¼@½ cent at times, were up ⅛@⅜ at other times and closed ¼ lower to ⅜ higher compared with yesterday, May 87¼@87⅜, July 81⅞@82. Corn finished unchanged to ¼ down, May 62⅜@62½, July 62½. Oats, unchanged to ⅛ off. Soybeans, ¼@⅜ higher. Rye, unchanged to ⅛ off and lard, 3@13 higher.

Some mill buying of wheat was reported here and at Kansas City. The weekly crop report in Kansas referred to killing of wheat, especially in North Central sections, as a result of the November freeze. The crop was reported greening over most of the State with some reseeding under way.

Brokers said operation of the loan program under which approximately 270,000,000 bushels are involved is likely to continue to have a price stabilization effect if followed along present plans. They said loans will begin falling due next month. Unless warehouse stored collateral is redeemed it will be taken over by the Government and held off the market at prices equivalent to the loan rate plus accumulated charges and handling costs. Approximately 221,000,000 bushels are in warehouses. The price at which this wheat could be put into circulation would, in effect, be a market ceiling, they said.

Steels and Motors Lead Last-Minute Rally; Favorites Advance $1 to More Than $2

By Frederick Gardner

Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Jan. 3.—Stocks, loafing at slightly higher levels during the greater part of today's market, hit a last-minute rallying stride behind steels and motors that boosted prices for favorites 1 to more than 2 points.

Volume picked up slightly in the final hour but it still was far from heavy. The revival in the automotive metal groups stiffened prices in other departments although many pivotal stocks advanced only small fractions and a wide assortment were at a standstill.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues emerged with a net gain of .4 of a point, equaling the upturn of Monday and more than wiping out yesterday's decline of .2 transfers totaled 506,040 shares, compared with 527,470 the day before.

Board rooms found nothing outstanding in the news to account for the belated upswing. Talk was heard, however, of sizable British holdings of steels and motors, which were up for liquidation, being taken over by private syndicates. It was recalled that 53,000 shares of Texas Corporation were "sold over the counter" yesterday after the close, apparently from British account. Belief that both the motor and steel divisions would be greatly benefitted if the threat of foreign sales were lifted from the market was thought to have caused some buyers to reinstate commitments in these categories.

Many potential purchasers continued to stand aside pending disposal of the Reserve Board's anti-inflation recommendations and the delivery of Presidential messages to Congress expected to clarify the defense program, the amount of the Nation's forthcoming tax bill and the question of just how near the country is to actual participation in the war. The good business outlook accounted for part of the revived optimism, it was suggested.

Bethlehem Steel gained 2¾ points, United States Steel, 2⅝; General Motors and Chrysler, 2½ each; United States Industrial Alcohol, 2⅜, and Union Pacific, 2¼. Savage Arms jumped 3½ to a new top for the past year and Universal Pictures tacked on 5 to its recent sharp upturn.

Modest improvement was shown for United States Rubber, Studebaker, Electric Boat, New York Shipbuilding, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Paramount Pictures, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Anaconda and American Telephone.

Backward were duPont, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, J. C. Penney, United States Gypsum and Public Service of New Jersey.

United States Government bonds again weakened and corporate loans were shaky. Commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was off ¼ of a cent a bushel, up ⅝, and corn unchanged to down ¼. Cotton was unchanged to up 15 cents a bale.

United States Government issues slipped in one of the lightest bond markets of a month. Their downward course—one Treasury declined 1 7-32 point—carried most corporates to lower prices. Even the late-session upswing of stocks had little buoyant effect on the bond.

Transactions totaled $6,657,500, face value, compared with $6,466,000 yesterday. Many leading issues were ignored throughout the day.

Rails followed irregular trends. Nickel Plate 4½s gained ¾ point at 60, but the 5½s dropped ½ at 72⅛. Off fractions were Chesapeake & Ohio 3½s at 104; North Western 4¾s of '49 at 1⅛, and Union Pacific 3½s of '71 at 100. Gaining like amounts were St. Paul 5s at 5⅛; Santa Fe 4s of '95 at 109½, and Pennsylvania General 4½s of '65 at 107⅞.

Transfer of a single bond sent Denmark 4½s down 6⅝ points at 27½. The remainder of the foreign list was uneven, with gains predominating for dollar loans of Latin America and Japan.

Phone Stations Gain

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—New York Telephone Co. reported today a gain of 92,205 telephone stations in 1940, compared with a gain of 76,990 in 1939. The December gain was 12,137, compared with a gain of 9,345 in December, 1939.

Firms Advised To Keep Excess Taxes Separate

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange suggested today to corporations with securities listed on the "big board" that they state the amount of their Federal excess profits taxes separate from other taxes in their annual income statements.

"The effect of the current Federal excess profits tax upon the earnings of corporations," said the exchange in a letter, "is a matter of great interest to security holders. . . .

"We do not wish to over-emphasize the effect of Federal taxes upon corporate earnings, but it seems to us that the necessity for adequately informing security holders makes desirable some such treatment as that suggested."

Demand included also some South American wools for January or later shipments. Quotations on South American wools for future shipment were lower than prices on similar wools that had arrived in Boston. Domestic wools were slow, but nominal quotations were steady.

Construction Gains 33 Pct., Sets New Top

Big Defense Contracts Push Year's Total to $3,987,243,000

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 3.—Huge contracts for national defense construction rushed through during the final six months of 1940 lifted engineering construction awards for the year as a whole to the highest level on record, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Contracts awarded in 1940 totaled $3,987,243,000, a gain of 33 per cent over the year before and 1 per cent greater than the previous record established in 1929. More than $2,500,000,000 of new engineering construction reached the contract stage in the second half of the year, Engineering News-Record said.

Fast Pace Continues

New awards were hitting a fast pace as the year ended, totaling $398,704,000 in December, the second highest ever reported, exceeded only by the record volume of October.

Every section of the country participated in the gains except the Middle Atlantic States, where awards were 3 per cent smaller than the previous year, Engineering News-Record said.

Spurred by tremendous Federal contracts for defense, public construction set a new high of $2,824,989,000, an increase of 34 per cent over the previous top reached last year. Private awards totaled $1,162,254,000, the largest volume since 1931 and 31 per cent greater than a year ago.

Industry Leads

Industrial building was the most important factor in the gain in private work. Contracts exceed the record of 1929 and more than doubled last year's volume. Boosting industrial building to the new peak was the expansion in plants closely allied to national defense, aircraft, engine, machine and machine parts and chemical process plants. Commercial building and large-scale private housing were only 3 per cent greater than 1939.

Public construction reached new peaks in several fields. Erection of barracks, cantonments, defense housing and Government plants lifted the total for public buildings to unprecedented heights, more than doubling the previous mark set last year.

Air base, airport, shipyard and shipway construction helped to boost unclassified construction to a new pinnacle, 54 per cent ahead of last year and greater than the record year of 1930.

Contracts for streets and roads were 5 per cent greater than 1939, also a new record.

Masonite Profits Decline in Period

By the Associated Press

Masonite Corporation, maker of insulation and other building materials, reported yesterday net profit from September 1 to December 21, first four periods of the fiscal year of 13 periods, of $343,256, equal to 58 cents a share on the common stock. This compared with $441,058, of 70 cents, the corresponding 1939 period.

U. S. Plywood Corporation

United States Plywood Corporation reported net profit for the 6 months ended October 31 of $276,162 after excess profits taxes, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.28 a common share, compared with $330,915, or $1.39 on common, in the comparable 1939 period. The company said tax provisions for the latest period represented 40 per cent of earnings, against 19 per cent a year earlier.

Jones & Laughlin Files Big Issue

By the Associated Press

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of Pittsburgh advised the Securities Commission yesterday of its intention to issue $28,000,000 of 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds, series C, due January 1, 1961, the proceeds to be used with $14,000,000 of bank loans and corporate funds for refunding purposes.

The company said that it intended to redeem $25,836,000 principal amount of first mortgage bonds, series A, due in 1961; $6,750,000 principal amount of 4 per cent first mortgage bonds, series B, due serially from 1940 to 1946, $5,400,000 principal amount of 4¼ per cent first mortgage bonds, series B, due serially from 1947 to 1950, and to pay off $4,750,000 of one to ten year 3½ per cent installment bank loan notes of Frick-Reid Supply Corporation, a subsidiary.

The registration statement listed 29 underwriters.

National City Joins Chase in 3-Billion Class

Gotham Banks Show New Deposit Peaks; Earnings Mount

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 3.—Year-end statements of the big Wall Street banks today disclosed the Nation now has two commercial banks with assets of more than $3,000,000,000 each—the Chase National and the National City.

The National City moved into the $3,000,000,000 class with aggregate assets of $3,096,466,387, compared with $2,509,395,688 at the close of 1939.

National City reported deposits at the year-end amounted to $2,908,437,735 against $2,331,257,943 at the end of 1939. Cash on hand and due from banks increased to $1,364,824,538 from $933,912,307 at the finish of the previous year.

Net earnings of the National City, exclusive of the City Bank Farmers Trust Co., were reported as $11,457,350, not counting bond profits of $6,712,098 and recoveries on assets. Profit was equivalent to $1.85 a share on the capital stock and compared with $10,663,644, exclusive of $6,978,525 bond profits, or $1.72 a share, in 1939.

The Chase National, the country's largest commercial bank, reported record deposits of $3,543,338,000 compared with $2,803,730,000 at the end of 1939. Total resources rose to $3,824,403,000 from $3,085,819,000 the year before.

Chase earnings amounted to $13,550,000, equal to $1.83 a share, against $13,315,000, or $1.80 a share, in 1939.

The Bankers Trust Co. showed deposits of $1,460,559,000 against $1,125,410,000 at the close of 1939.

Deposits of the First National Bank rose to $811,399,000 from $628,946,000 at the end of 1939. Earnings totaled $10,240,647, equal to $102.40 a share on the 100,000 capital shares, compared with $10,407,174, or $104.07 a share, in 1939.

Chicago Deposits Soar

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP).—Bank deposits in Chicago, as of December 31, 1940, when State and national calls for condition were made, have risen to the highest level of all time with a total of $4,177,745,000 in 32 national and 22 State institutions.

This is more than twice the total deposits in Chicago banks during the depression in 1932, when $1,782,309,000 were held.

On deposit at the time of the last call, September 30, 1940, was $3,994,210,000.

London Stocks

Small but persistent investment buying helped boost government issues an outside of ⅝ point. The Consolidated 2½s posted one of the widest gains.

British American tobacco came back briskly after a morning drop on a disappointing dividend and the preliminary earnings statement. Other industrials closed unchanged or a shade higher.

Domestic rails were fractionally ahead. Several non-producers in the Kaffir group attracted modest demand. Oils inclined lower under leadership of Shell Transport.

In the foreign bond market Chinese customs loans rose one point.

The Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation issued similar calls, bringing the total number of banks affected to 13,512. They included 5,158 national banks, 1,315 State banks belonging to the Federal Reserve system, and 7,039 other banks insured by the FDIC.

The three bank supervisory agencies join in such condition requests only twice a year, at the beginning and middle of the year, although the controller of the currency and the Federal Reserve Board sometimes issue such calls as many as four times a year.

Rail Loadings Decrease 21.8% In Holiday Week

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 545,307 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 152,448 cars, or 21.8 per cent, compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 2,757, or 0.5 of 1 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 45,852, or 9.2 per cent, compared with 1938.

All classes of loadings declined during the Christmas week. The drop was slightly larger than usual.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of loadings, based on 1929-30 as 100, declined to 78.3, compared with 79.5 the previous week, and 75.2 a year ago.

Loading of revenue freight in 1940 totaled 36,353,609 cars, an increase of 2,442,111 cars, or 7.2 per cent over 1939, and an increase of 5,896,531 cars, or 19.4 per cent above 1938.

Ford Output Spurts in Year

Detroit, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. reported today that its plants in the United States and Canada produced 1,041,198 vehicles during 1940. Included in the total were 35,683 tractors.

In addition to this output the Ford plant at Dagenham, England, assembled 35,764 units in the first 11 months of 1940. No figures were available on production in Ford branches in other countries.

In 1939 the company's total production was 854,509 vehicles, including 184,000

Brewers Host To Celtics Tomorrow

Pro Cagers Play Brooklyn Five At Riverside Stadium

Two former stars of Kate Smith's Brooklyn Celtics will be featured by the Washington Brewers tomorrow night at 9:30, when they continue in quest of the American Basketball League lead by meeting the Celtics at Riverside Stadium.

When the youthful Kate Smiths, then playing under the name of Kingston Colonials, smashed through to the American Basketball League's championship two years ago Nat Frankel and Ben Kramer were two of their best bets.

Frankel, as a result of his outstanding play, was selected as the American Basketball League player most valuable to his club in 1938-39.

Kramer, former Long Island University All-America, remained with the Kingston Club last season, but was made a free agent and signed by the Brewers when the Kingston and Troy clubs merged. Kramer proceeded to play some of the finest basketball of his career with the Brewers and figured in two upsets of the defending champions.

Both Frankel and Kramer are particularly anxious to help the Brewers repeat their recent 34-to-31 defeat of the Celtics at Riverside and will be numbered among the Brewers' best bets to turn the trick.

The Celtics will bring back their star-studded line-up intact and will feature established professional favorites, namely Chick Reiser, Mickey Kupperberg, Bernie Fleicel, Jim Fitzpatrick, Moe Frankel, Pete Berenson and Sam Kaplan.

A Heurich Amateur Basketball League game will be offered as the 8:15 o'clock preliminary.

House of David Star Returns For Game Here

That the House of David quint will be at full strength when it invades the city tomorrow night to engage the colored Washington Bruins was assured last night by the report that Jack LaRocca has fully recovered from an injury sustained Tuesday night in Uniontown, Pa. The game will be at Turner's Arena.

Return of LaRocca, a former star with the New York Jewels of the American Professional League, enhances the chances of the bearded crew to halt the newly organized local club. The Bruins launched their season last Sunday with a thrilling 49-47 overtime victory over the Philadelphia Crescents.

Fats Jenkins, former Renaissance eage star and coach of the Bruins, stated last night that he is greatly pleased with the manner in which the outfit is rounding into a first-class unit. Jenkins was by no means satisfied with the winr over the Crescents, contending that the victory was achieved more through individual play than through team performance.

N. Y. U. Cagers Win 8th of Season

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—The undefeated New York University basketball team won its eighth game of the season tonight, scoring a 55-39 triumph over Illinois Wesleyan after holding a 33-18 halftime advantage.

Ralph Kaplowitz led the victors with seven baskets.

Wesleyan, paced by Fred La Plant, who scored 11 points, kept N. Y. U. from increasing its edge through the second half, but its inability to organize a sustained offensive led to its fourth setback of the season against two victories.

Duke's Blue Devils Beat Lehigh, 66 to 30

Durham, N. C., Jan 3 (AP).—Duke University's Blue Devils defeated Lehigh here tonight in basketball, 66 to 30.

The Blue Devils got hot in the first half, holding 38 to 17 advantage when intermission time arrived.

Dormant in early season games, Glenn Price, Duke's usually reliable forward, came into his own and scored 22 points. He was the scoring leader of the night, with Valasek and Shokes getting 10 points each. Binder, with 10 points, led for Lehigh.

Golden Gate Track Cannot Be Opened Before January 11

By the Associated Press

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 3.—The twice postponed opening of the new $1,500,000 Golden Gate Turf Club at Albany cannot be scheduled before January 11, Chairman Jerry Geisler, of the State racing board, ruled today.

Geisler's ruling came after two officials of the board inspected the heavy racing strip, and reported it was not safe for horses.

The opening, originally scheduled for December 28, was postponed until January 1 because heavy December rains turned the new track into a quagmire. On New Year's Day it was again postponed because the turf was so badly torn up.

Astor Clarke, Tony Santini Near Record

Blue Ribbons Beaten In Annual Matches At Lucky Strike

Del Rio's crack doubles team of Astor Clarke and Tony Santini neared a national record last night when they defeated the Blue Ribbons from Connecticut on the drives at Lucky Strike with a total pinfall of 1,404 to 1,307, in the intercity doubles competition with Harry Peters and Joe Gacek.

In this near-record performance, Clark contributed the high game and total when he posted a 174 in his last game and a 743 score.

ARCADIA

Lucile Young, one of the country's top women bowlers and anchor "man" for her Arcade Pontiac team, was the leader of the Ladies' Independent loop last night at Arcadia with a high game of 153—which tied Mary Esten's record high for the season—which she followed with a 349 high set. Mrs. Young's top counts helped her team take high game of 551 but the Shah & Shah girls were too strong for the string, their 1,556 being top. The D. D. W.'s won all three games from United Typewriters while Shah & Shah whitewashed the Forsythe Shoe quintet.

The two Department of Commerce leagues resumed play at Arcadia with Miss Armstrong, Foreign and Domestic Commerce, taking high game in the ladies' loop with 121, as Miss Edelkamp, CAA, won the set with 323, which sparked her team to both high game and set of 523 and 1,496, respectively. In the men's division, C. Rains, Patent Office, was high for game with 133, with his teammate, Ticer, taking the set after a 365 pinfall. The Patent Office team garnered highs of 583 and 1,695, putting them in first spot by one game by virtue of two wins over Coast and Geodetic Survey. Foreign and Domestic Commerce is on top by seven contests in the ladies' section.

PENN RECREATION

The Insurance loop resumed play after the holidays at Penn with Swanson, Great American, and Bean, LeRoy Mark, the leading men for game and set with 155 and 390, respectively. The LeRoy Mark lads, aided by Bean's high, took team game with 588 with the Standard boys the stronger for the set after a pinfall of 1,677. Both Standard and Home won all three games, whipping Globe and Aetna, respectively.

BROOKLAND

Virginia Kreamer, Moore Hardware, was the feature of the Brookland ladies' meet with her high game of 145, which she followed with a top set of 342. The Willis Esso girls took the team game and set with 539-1,513. Gulf Service leads by pinfall although Gemeny's Flowers is equal in wins and losses, both having 29-19. Federal Litho is in third spot with 26-22.

Van Vleck Is Star As Wayne Wins, 38-34

Detroit, Jan. 3 (AP).—Center Bill Van Vleck put on a one-man show tonight to pace Wayne University's basketballers to a 38-to-34 seesaw triumph over Dartmouth's Eastern Collegiate champions before 3,000 fans.

Van Vleck scored 19 points, but 8 of them came on four one-hand tosses that broke a 28-28 tie midway in the final period and put the Tartars ahead to stay after the lead had changed eight times.

Women Early And Bright For Congress

All Seven Feminine Members Show Up With New Hair-Do

By Ruth Cowan

Associated Press Staff Writer

Uncle Sam's powder puff lawmakers were all prettied up yesterday for their first appearance in the Seventy-seventh Congress. Each of the seven present had a freshly done hair-do.

The only one absent was Mrs. Caroline O'Day, four-time Democratic Representative-at-large from New York. She has not been well lately and decided to conserve her strength until Congress gets down to business.

The first Congresswoman on the job was Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican) of Massachusetts. Only a few of her men colleagues were on the floor when Mrs. Rogers, vivacious and energetic, pushed open a swinging door and entered the chamber, where she has served for more than 15 years. She shook hands here and there, chatting gaily. She was in brown with a gold colored scarf around her neck.

She was only a few minutes ahead of Jeannette Rankin (Republican), of Montana, in a sapphire blue wool suit. A corsage of yellow rosebuds glowed at her shoulder. A halo of white hair brought out the lively sparkle in her dark eyes. She was trying hard to appear calm at her return to the House after 22 years, but only succeeded in looking beamingly happy.

Among fellow Representatives who greeted her were some of the handful who served with her back in 1917 and '18 when she was the Nation's first Congresswoman. A peace advocate, she voted against entry of the United States into the World War.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, smart in a black satin frock, her almost boyish bob softly waved, a huge deep purple orchid on her shoulder, was ready to begin her ninth term in the House.

She and Mrs. Margaret Smith (Republican), of Maine, who is beginning her second term, drew the first tasks assigned to women in the new session. They served with two men as tellers in the election of the Speaker.

Mrs. Frances Bolton (Republican), of Ohio, who is also starting on her second term, wore a black gown unadorned by flowers or jewels, save a small clip at the V-neck. Jessie Sumner, brownish red-headed Republican from Illinois, enlivened the scene with a wine-colored frock.

In the Senate the lone woman member, Senator Hattie Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, was at her seat, ready for action. The only woman lawmaker in that body, she wore her brown hair slightly waved, and in a bun in back.

Purse Snatchers Rob 3 Women And Obtain $122

Three victims of purse snatchings last night lost a total of $122.

Biggest loss was reported by Myrtle Wagner, of Colmar Manor, Md., who told police that two colored boys took her purse away from her in the 100 block of H Street Northeast. It contained $110.

Anna G. Reynolds, 43, of 1227 Hamilton Street Northwest, told police a boy snatched her pocketbook in the 900 block of Gallatin Street Northwest, and rode away with a girl who drove a car with a California license. The purse contained $12.

Doris Clark, 512 Second Street Northwest, was robbed of a purse with $10 in it.

Friends of Eire Protest to Nazis

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—The American Friends of Irish Neutrality, claiming to represent some 200 Irish organizations, tonight telegraphed the German Embassy in Washington a protest against "the unwarranted invasion of Ireland's neutral territory."

The association said it was "voicing the sentiment of many millions of Americans" in regarding "with great concern the ruthless killing of Irish people which has occurred within the past two days and which allegedly has been caused by German action."

Youth Admits Grable Threat

Pittsburgh, Jan. 3 (U.P.).—A mild-mannered youth who allegedly sent extortion letters to persons demanding that they join his "Yellow Hornets Club" under penalty of injury, was arrested tonight and charged with attempting to extort $2,000 from the blond film star, Betty Grable.

The youth, James Willard Porter, 18, of Washington, Pa., confessed sending a threatening letter to Miss Grable, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced tonight, and admitted sending 15 other letters to persons in the Washington district.

Robert Parker's Funeral Today

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today for Robert H. Parker, 83, who died yesterday at his home, 5406 Forty-first Street Northwest.

Mr. Parker was employed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for 42 years, from 1881 until September, 1923, when he retired. He served in several capacities in that period and at the time of retirement was chief of the service division. He was a native of Baltimore, and the husband of the late Annie K. Parker.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. R. B. Fleharty, and two grandsons, Ralph B. and William Fleharty.

Slayer Sentenced To 9 to 27 Years

For the slaying of Peter R. Henderson, WPA foreman, with an ax handle last June 10, Bernard S. Riley, 24, colored, was sentenced to serve 9 to 27 years in prison yesterday.

Down Lovers' Lane Together

SISTERS IN MATRIMONY—Leota Lane (left) and Edward J. Pitts, a New York theater official, were married yesterday in Mt. Kisco, N. Y., while her sister, Lola Lane (right), eldest of the sister movie actresses, made plans for her marriage Monday to Henry Clay Dunham, yacht broker. Leota, a former opera singer, gave her age as 26, said she had been twice married and twice divorced. Lola's marriage will be her third, too

Anthony Malevich presents Devi Dja and her Balinese Dancers in Wardman Park Theater Friday night. Program of dances of Bali, Java, Medan and Papua, accompanied by gamelan.

Wardman Park Theater was crammed to capacity last evening for the first appearance of Devi Dja and her troupe of Balinese dancers whose entertainment was received with most cordial demonstrations of approval. The interesting and varied program was not limited to dances of Bali alone, but included samples from Java, Medan and Papua, and ran the gamut from savagery to courtly ceremonial. Native musicians provided the rhythmic accompaniment with gongs, drums and the Oriental equivalents of xylophones and marimbas.

BROWN

With the exception of the primitive spectacles, such as a jungle dance from Papua, the kris dance of exorcism, the program exemplified a highly stylized art, which in many of its gestures and poses resembles the Hindu technique of Uday Shan-Kar. It is not for the Western critic to discuss this stylization, which is based upon the symbolism of an alien culture. One must be content to record the grace and beauty of this style, and to marvel at the eloquent suppleness of arms and hands.

The most impressive of the major dances were "The Temptation of Buddha," rich in ritualistic details, the Pangkor or court dance of Java, and the exciting Ketjak for the exorcism of evil spirits. Humor had its part in the Piring folk dance with the quaint use of porcelain plates as castanets, and the Djaran Kepang pantomime of flirtation.

The printed program was redundant in mentioning a native gamelan orchestra, since gamelan is the Balinese word for orchestra. According to the requirements of the dances, the gamelan was reduced to nothing but drums, or augmented to a half-dozen instruments. But at no time was the number of metal-keyed instruments sufficient to give a satisfactory impression of the brilliance and the complex syncopation of Balinese music. The music used was comparatively simple, with only a few cross-rhythms.

One thing, however, was unmistakably evident in the work of the small gamelan. Balinese music is primarily utilitarian and almost devoid of the emotional quality we are accustomed to in our own compositions. It would seem that the music is not intended to be listened to for its own sake, but solely to stimulate movement. Its thematic formulas are traditional, and the short melodies are repeated with improvised variations in rhythm and accent.

Taft Offers Bill To Cut Roosevelt Monetary Powers

Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, yesterday introduced legislation to carry out proposals of the Federal Reserve Board that President Roosevelt's powers over money be drastically trimmed.

Saying he wanted to check the dangers of inflation, Taft introduced a bill that would repeal the President's power to change the gold content of the dollar, revoke the power to issue $3,000,000,000 in greenbacks and repeal the power to purchase foreign silver.

The Taft bill did not cover the question of raising the margin that banks must hold as a reserve against deposits, demanded by the Reserve Board, but Taft indorsed this objective in a statement.

Meantime, congressional leaders said the entire fiscal situation would have to be studied by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee under Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, before action could be taken.

Fair and Cold Due for Week-End

Fair weather over the week-end was forecast by the Weather Bureau last night, with a drop of several degrees in temperature tonight. Fair and still colder is the prediction for tomorrow.

Highest temperature expected today is about 40 degrees, compared to the high yesterday of 45 at 3:30 p. m. Lowest expected is 36, compared to 39 at 7:30 a. m. Friday.

All fire apparatus ni the city and equipment from Hartford and West Hartford fought the flames. The National Guard was ordered out and 50 militiamen helped control the huge crowd.

Body of Skier, Killed In Avalanche, Found

Alta, Utah, Jan. 3 (AP).—The body of Kenneth C. Wright, 21, of Salt Lake City, was recovered today from a snowpile where a New Year's Day avalanche buried him while he was skiing.

The body was found by workmen using 40-foot long rods. The slide that roared down Rustler's Peak missed usual skiing lanes on which an estimated 1,500 New Year's Day visitors frolicked.

Sen. Johnson Snubs Downey At Swearing-in

Rejects Escort And Walks Alone To Senate Well

Momentarily flaring discord yesterday marred the opening of the new Congressional session in which leaders have branded unity as the crying need.

Veteran, white-haired Senator Hiram W. Johnson bruskly brushed aside his Democratic California colleague, Sheridan Downey, who sought to escort Johnson to the well of the chamber to be sworn in for a fifth term, and proceeded down the aisle alone, despite Senate custom.

Downey, who, like Johnson had opposed a third Presidential term but suddenly switched and, after a White House conference flew to California to reply to Johnson's campaign speech for the Republican nominee, Wendell Willkie, was visibly embarrassed by the rebuff. Downey two years ago was escorted by Johnson when he appeared to take the oath two years ago. Johnson yesterday termed the custom "nonsense."

California House Republicans likewise had a heated row that almost led to blows between two of them, the Associated Press reported. The dispute came in an hour-long conference which resulted in the unseating of Representative Albert E. Carter, of Oakland, as the State delegation's Representative on the party group which allocates committee assignments.

Representative B. W. Gearhart, of Fresno, was elected in Carter's place, but declared that he would not accept the post. Carter likewise informed the Republicans that he would refuse a proffered new term as the delegation's member on the congressional campaign committee, with the result that the caucus wound up in confusion and with both positions still to be filled.

On the other hand, Senator Gerald Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and his new Republican colleague, William Langer, ended a month-long period of nonspeaking to each other when Nye greeted Langer in the Senate, escorted him during the oath-taking and later was host to Langer at luncheon. Nye also participated in an informal floor discussion that led to Langer being sworn in as Senator pending hearing on complaints filed by some North Dakotans against his being seated.

4,720,282 Aliens Register; Forms Still Pouring In

The Department of Justice has received 4,720,282 completed alien registration and fingerprint forms—and they are still pouring in.

"To this total should be added 21,433 registration forms and fingerprint cards of aliens who registered at American consular offices throughout the world," said Earl G. Harrison, director of alien registration. "These figures represent additional aliens who have been admitted to the country since August 27, when alien registration began."

The total does not include 45,678 registrations of alien seamen who are required to register at the port of entry once a year in order to come ashore at all.

WRIGHT, MARGARET A. On Th

Contract Bridge

This question concerns the defense of today's hand which is played by North and South at a contract of four hearts. You are West, and you lead the king and queen of diamonds, which take the first two tricks. The ace of spades is good for another trick, but how can you develop the fourth trick to defeat the contract? If you get stuck, refer to the answer to the problem which is shown here.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

	♠ K Q 8 5 ♡ Q 9 7 ◇ J 6 2 ♣ K Q 8
♠ A 4 ♡ J 10 6 ◇ A K Q 10 9 3 ♣ 6 3	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ J 10 7 2 ♡ 8 2 ◇ 7 5 ♣ 9 7 5 4 2
	♠ 9 6 3 ♡ A K 5 4 3 ◇ 8 4 ♣ A J 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ◇	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	4 ◇	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ◇

The Answer

After taking the king and queen of diamonds, West can see that the dummy has the only outstanding diamond, so that if he leads his ace, East, not knowing that declarer is void, will refuse to ruff. However, if West leads a low diamond which dummy will cover, East will realize that he is being asked to play his highest trump. If East has the eight of hearts, the contract will be defeated, as declarer's ace or king will be forced out. East does have the eight of trumps, which he plays on partner's three of diamonds, and declarer must go down one, losing two diamonds, a diamond ruff and the ace of spades.

THE ALLEY DWELLING AUTHORITY, Room 1202, 1300 E Street Northwest, NOTICE TO OWNERS AND TENANTS OF ALLEY DWELLINGS AND OF OTHER PROPERTY IN SQUARES CONTAINING INHABITED ALLEYS. In accordance with the terms of Section 6 of the Act of Congress known as the "District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act," The Alley Dwelling Authority hereby notifies owners and tenants of alley dwellings and of other property in squares containing inhabited alleys, that alley dwellings in such squares may be demolished, removed, or vacated, and that the square may be replatted on or before July 1, 1946. As defined in the said Act—

(a) The term "alley" means (1) any court, thoroughfare or passage, private or public, less than thirty feet wide at any point; and (2) any court, thoroughfare, or passage, private or public, thirty feet or more in width, that does not open directly with a width of at least thirty feet upon a public street that is at least forty feet wide from building line to building line; (b) the term "inhabited alley" means an alley in or appurtenant to which there are one or more alley dwellings; (c) the term "alley dwelling" means any dwelling fronting upon or having its principal means of ingress from an alley. This definition does not include an accessory building, such as a garage, with living rooms for servants or other employes, if the principal entrance to the living rooms of the accessory building is from the street, property to which it is accessory; (d) the term "dwelling" means any building or structure used or designed to be used in whole or in part as a living or a sleeping place by one or more human beings. THE ALLEY DWELLING AUTHORITY. By JOHN TILDER, Executive Officer.

A FLEET, COSTUMED FIGURE SOARS HIGH OVER THE CITY TOWARD JASPER COMBES' HOME....
ALL I'VE GOT TO DO IS PRODUCE COMBES' STOLEN ANCIENT FLUTE, AND I GET A BIG CONSTRUCTION ORDER. WISH IT WERE AS SIMPLE AS IT SOUNDS!
THANK GOODNESS FOR MY SUPER-SENSITIVE HEARING! THIS SOUNDS INTERESTING...!
WHAT SUPERMAN EAVESDROPS UPON...
THAT COMBES JOB CERTAINLY WAS A CINCH! WHO'D HAVE THOUGHT AN OLD FLUTE WAS WORTH SO MUCH!
I FULLY EXPECT THAT THE JOB WE'RE PULLING TODAY WILL BE EVEN MORE PROFITABLE!
AS THE PLOTTERS DEPART, SUPERMAN TRAILS THEM OVERHEAD....
JUST THE BREAK I'VE HOPED FOR! — COMBES, GET READY TO SIGN ON THE DOTTED LINE!

HEY--WHERE WERE YOU AT REVILLE? THEY GOT YOU A.W.O.L
I KNOW. WHERE'S THE SERGEANT?
UH--- SCUSE ME SERGEANT--- HERE I AM JOE PALOOKA--
WELL--WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE? YOU'RE ALMOST A DAY OVER-DUE!!
I AINT GOT NO EXCUSE. I'LL JIST TAKE MY PUNISHMUNT.
IF YOU WAS A DUMBELL--OR EVEN A ROOKIE--GO TO YOUR QUARTERS! YOU'RE UNDER ARREST!
YESSIR.

WINNIE WINKLE — The Novitiates — BY BRANNER

OFFICER COULD YOU PLEASE TELL ME WHERE WE CAN CATCH THE BUS TO HIGHLAND AVENUE ??
THREE BLOCKS THAT WAY, MISS !!
GOOD HEAVENS! WHAT'S GOING ON THERE?!!
LOOKS LIKE A CYCLONE OR AN EARTH-QUAKE!!
DON'T MIND THAT, FOLKS! THAT'S ALL STAR STUDIOS! THEY'RE SHOOTING SOME NIGHT SCENES IN A BIG WAR PICTURE !!!

MR. AND MRS. — Why Wives Get Sore — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

MRS. GADDER'S NIECE IS BEING MARRIED AT THE CHURCH TONIGHT. I DON'T SUPPOSE YOUD CARE TO GO
NOPE—COUNT ME OUT
I'M ONLY GOING AROUND TO SIT IN A REAR PEW. BETTER COME ALONG
NIX— TOO TIRED. I'M SET FOR THE EVENING
WHERE ARE YOU GOING? WHAT IS IT?
FIRE ENGINES!
SOUNDS LIKE IT WAS NEAR HERE. SEE YOU LATER!
WELL— UPON MY WORD! THE COMPANIONABLE HUSBAND!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Listening Post — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

WOSAN WASN'T ARMED WHEN HE WAS PUT IN THAT CELL WITH DROGO, WAS HE, INSPECTOR?
OF COURSE NOT— HE WAS SEARCHED LIKE ANY OTHER PRISONER— DON'T WORRY. DROGO WON'T START ANY-THING IN JAIL—!
I WASN'T THINKING OF THAT— IF THERE'S A CONFESSION MADE, HOW ABOUT US LISTENING FROM THE NEXT CELL?
CAN WE GET THERE WITHOUT BEING SEEN?
SURE— GOOD IDEA— COME ON!
QUIET— THEY'RE IN THE NEXT CELL— THEY CAN'T SEE YOU, BUT THEY CAN HEAR YOU IF YOU'RE NOT CAREFUL!
FAIR ENOUGH— IF THEY CAN HEAR US, WE CAN HEAR THEM—

You'll hear the aims and aspirations of the Nation's newest lawmakers over WJSV this afternoon in a special program C. B. S. has arranged so that you can get to know them.

There'll be ten Senators and at least nine Representatives on the broadcast to introduce themselves and tell you of their plans, and Commentator Al Warner will be on hand to ask them a few questions. The time for this get-together between the legislators and the public is from 4 to 5 p. m.

The new Senators to be heard from are Raymond E. Willis, Republican, of Indiana; Joseph H. Ball, Republican, of Minnesota; C. Wayland Brooks, Republican, of Illinois; Berkeley L. Bunker, Democrat, of Nevada; James M. Tunnell, Democrat, of Delaware; Harold H. Burton, Republican, of Ohio; Hugh A. Butler, Republican, of Nebraska; William A. 3d Corps Area Will Add Two Draft Centers

Troop Replacement Base Also to Be Put In Operation Soon

Two recruit reception centers and a troop replacement base will be brought into operation in the Third Corps Area in the next two months in a prelude to large-scale Selective Service inductions this spring, it was learned last night.

In a move to gear the selection machinery for the enrollment of steadily increasing numbers of trainees, the War Department will open reception centers at Camp Lee, near Petersburg, Va., and at Cumberland Depot, near New Cumberland, Pa. They will augment Fort George G. Meade, Md., the only reception station in this area at present.

Camp Lee is scheduled to handle all Virginia selectives and will go into operation in March. The Cumberland station will receive its first draftees in February and is expected to handle only Pennsylvanians.

Half to Be Sent West

The Virginia base also will comprise a large replacement center (where recruits are sent on permanent assignment after passing through reception centers where they are first enrolled) for the medical and quartermaster branches. Trainees numbering 7,500 are to be stationed with the detachments of the former branch while 1,200 recruits will go to quartermaster units.

Meanwhile, headquarters of the Third Corps Area, which comprises the District, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, confirmed previous reports that at least half of the 4,918 men to be called up in the second induction will be stationed in Texas and Oklahoma.

A total of 2,000 trainees will be assigned to Fort Sam Houston, Tex., near San Antonio, while 680 will go to Fort Sill, Okla.

Of the 2,680 selectees going to Southern encampments a proportionate number of the 210 Washingtonians to be sworn in in inductions starting January 11 will be included.

Selectives not going to Texas and Oklahoma will be stationed at Army bases in this area and in Georgia and North Carolina. The requisitions follow: Fort Belvoir, Va., 376; Fort Monroe, Va., 376; Fort Story, Va., 500; Fort Myer, Va., 2; Nansemond Ordnance Depot, Va., 117; Fort Benning, Ga., 342, and Fort Bragg, N. C., 375 (all colored).

Travel in Pullmans

It is expected many of the 210 Capital selectives will entrain for Texas and Oklahoma within a week after their induction at the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, a week from today. They will travel in Pullman cars.

With completion of the Camp Lee and Cumberland Depot centers the Fort Meade station will be devoted exclusively to the induction of selectives from the District and Maryland.

Thus, with three centers operating simultaneously, the draft schedule, it is hoped, will be stepped up sufficiently to handle the thousands of citizen soldiers mobilized in heavy spring inductions.

So far throughout the country Selective Service has handled only a "token" induction of 25,000. Although the draft now is far behind schedule it is hoped that the 800,000 scheduled for the new armies by spring will have been accomplished with a general speedup of the program as exemplified by yesterday's move.

In a development on the local scene 385 white and colored registrants went through physical examinations at five District hospitals last night. From their number 44 colored men are to be chosen for induction January 13, 16, and 17 at Baltimore. The white candidates are being selected against future calls.

Break in Engine Bottleneck Expected in a Few Months

ONE OF WORLD'S FASTEST FIGHTERS is the new Republic pursuit plane, powered with a 1,200-horsepower air-cooled engine

What about the engines which power our warplanes? How bad is the "bottleneck" in their production? What is involved in relieving this situation? These and many other pertinent questions are answered in the following article, the second of a series.

By Devon Francis
Associated Press Aviation Editor

New York, Jan. 3.—When Roscoe Turner, the elder statesman of American air racing, won the big-money Thompson trophy event at Cleveland in 1938 by running his 1,200 horsepower engine wide open for a solid hour, he helped peg American aircraft power plants as the world's best.

Flushed, tired and more than $20,000 richer for his hour's toil, big Roscoe taxied his silver monoplane to the line and cut the switches.

"Wide open, all the way," he announced, amazed.

Forthwith mechanics tore down the engine to see what had happened to it. Airplane engines were not meant to take that punishment. Its interior looked almost as good as the day it came off the factory production line.

Criticism of American warplanes, in comparison with those of Germany and England, cannot be made on the counts of speed or engine dependability.

Criticism can be more justly leveled at our engine production. That is both America's strength and weakness in the race for air rearmament. We have the world's best radial, air-cooled plane engines, but our current production will equip 600 to 700 combat planes a month.

The engine "bottleneck" will be relieved appreciably by late spring or early summer.

But what that will mean in terms of greater American air power remains for determination. Much of our production is destined for England. President Roosevelt's "rule-of-thumb" division of our warplane output equally between our armed forces and England has been revised.

3,000 Engines a Month in Sight

The greater part of the output of that of some factories, is going to that of some factories, is going to England as fast as it comes off the assembly line. That is in keeping with the policy of all aid short of war.

In the next five or six months two major engine factories and their branches, buttressed by a trickle of production from automobile factories now tooling up to make plane engines, are expected to be turning out 3,000,000 horsepower a month.

In terms of units, that is the equivalent of 3,000 engines of 1,000 horsepower each. That would equip, every month, 1,500 airplanes of all types—bombers, patrol planes, pursuits and observation planes — including the "spares" which go with each order.

On American engines, even more than on American airplanes, is going to depend in good part the maintenance of British bombing power. On them will be predicated the future of American air power.

In the radial-shaped, air-cooled field no other nation has been able to approach American engines in dependability and power output.

The two leading radial engine manufacturers, the Pratt & Whitney division of the United Aircraft Corporation and the Wright Aeronautical Co. (the latter a subsidiary of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation), are turning out engines of greater horsepower than any engines in production abroad.

U. S. Trails in In-Line Engines

It is a Pratt & Whitney engine rated at 1,850 horsepower which carries along the new Navy Vought-Sikorsky shipboard fighter at more than 400 miles an hour at optimum altitude. That is a top, not a cruising speed. The same engine, with slight alterations, is being rerated for a 2,000 horsepower output.

Improved Wright engines, rated at 1,650 horsepower, are speeding the longer-range Pan-American Airways clippers across the Atlantic. Wright, too, has engines in the 2,000-horsepower class.

Much has been said in recent months, beginning with a statement by Secretary Morgenthau, of the Treasury Department last winter, about the potential engine "bottleneck." Airlines with engines on order were, in fact, asked to release them to the Army Air Corps.

Continuance of the bottleneck will depend in part on the Air Corps' engine procurement policy, the demands of Great Britain and on how fast this country can overcome serious handicaps in liquid-cooled engine manufacture. For the last two years, the Air Corps has favored equipping its pursuit planes with in-line liquid-cooled engines, arguing that they could be better streamlined than planes with air-cooled radial engines. Radials are star-shaped, with larger frontal areas.

Our only large in-line engine is the Allison with a rating of 1,090 horsepower.

In-line engine production is still only a few hundred units a month, though the General Motors Corporation, parent company of the concern manufacturing Allisons, announced recently 1,000 engines a month would come off the line by November, 1941.

When the Germans seized Norway and conquered the Low Countries and France, they forced the British to base all their bombardment planes in England.

Today, the British must have American planes of great power, range and bomb-carrying capacity such as the Consolidated "24" and the later, faster versions of the Boeing "17."

Both types, four-engined, were developed specifically for the peculiar problems of American defense. Our bombers have lengthy coastlines, a vast continent and outlying possessions to protect.

Once the problem of British needs is reconciled satisfactorily with American needs in air rearmament, the breaking of the engine bottleneck will depend on the accelerated production of high-powered air-cooled engines and the further development and production of liquid-cooled types.

U.S. Pilot Lands Lost Bomber On Texas Pond

Fights Through Storm To Safety After Five Bail Out; One Killed

By the Associated Press

Edinburg, Tex., Jan. 3.—Two Naval airmen who rode out a blinding snowstorm in an ice-weighted bomber after five other members of the crew bailed out—one to his death—were safe today after bringing their 13-ton plane down in shallow water.

Lieut. Murray Hanson, 30, pilot of the bomber, and Ensign Robert B. Clark, co-pilot, set their big ship down last night on a lake described by cattlemen as a "puddle of water" on the nearby Santa Fe Ranch after bucking snow, ice, fog and rain for 500 miles across rugged western Texas.

It was midafternoon yesterday when Hanson ordered the five crewmen to bail out near Big Spring, Tex., after ice began forming on the wings. The big two-engined plane momentarily went out of control in a window-smashing storm.

Four of the five rode to earth with only minor injuries. W. F. Percich, 25, machinist's mate, of Friday Harbor, Wash., was found dead, his parachute minus its rigging.

"After that," the pilot related, "it was fog and rain. It got worse as we flew south. About 6:45 p. m. yesterday we knew we should be near the coast. We were flying low under clouds. We saw lights on the ground and then reflection of light from water.

Hanson and Clark had found one of the two or three small lakes—dry except during periods of heavy rain—on the brush-covered 135,000-acre ranch. The ranch was once a part of the great King Ranch.

"I did not know how much water was there, but it was water," said Hanson. The plane was not equipped with landing wheels. Examination today showed some damage to the under portion of the plane, apparently not serious.

Hanson and Clark tried to make their way to U. S. Highway 281, only seven miles east of the lake, but were turned back by the mat of thorny growth that covers the ranch. They spent the night in the plane.

At daylight, Hanson started toward the highway. After pushing through the brush a few miles he was found by Augustin Longoria, cowhand employed by the Santa Fe Ranch. He and Longoria returned to the plane. Longoria was left on guard, and Hanson and Clark reached the ranch house at mid-morning.

Commander G. L. Compo of the U. S. Naval Air Training Station at Corpus Christi and Lieut. Comdr. W. T. Rassier congratulated the fliers on the outcome of their struggle.

Rassier was squadron leader of the flight of three bombers built by the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation which were to be delivered to the Navy at Pensacola, Fla.
